British A-Bomb Alleged Waste

Canada Officially Pleased, But Some Cabinet Members Said Angry

By BRIAN O'LEARY, Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Oct. 4 (Special)—Canada was sharply critical today of Britain's first atomic bomb explosion despite the fact that a Canadian government observer was present at the historic event.

Officially, the Canadian government was pleased to see Britain move back into the ranks of the major powers, alongside the United States and Russia, the only other countries to test atomic bombs.

But privately, some members of the Canadian government were sharply critical of Britain's action, saying it was a waste of time, energy, material and money.

One cabinet minister, who did not wish to be quoted directly, said bitterly that this British atom bomb explosion was "nothing more than a prestige sop to please Churchill."

"The British know perfectly well they can never produce atomic bombs en masse such as the Americans can," he said, "because of the terrific expense . . . and why should they bother? America is her ally, and about the only country which can afford to produce the atom bomb via the assembly line.

"It would have been much better," he added, "if the British had spent all this time, energy, material and money on something much more productive for their economy which they could have sold on this side of the Atlantic for dollars."

This critical attitude of the British government was a general reflection of Ottawa's current attitude towards the sterling area in general and Britain in particular.

Next month, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent will go to London for Commonwealth talks with special emphasis on trade and economic questions within the Commonwealth.

The Canadian attitude is expected to be one of mild criticism, pointing out to her sister members of the Commonwealth that the basic question underlying the sterling area's problems can best be solved, not by additional dollar loans, but by cutting government expenditures, such as food and rent subsidies.

Britain Keeps Mum on Secret Bomb Tests

ADELAIDE, Australia, Oct. 4 (Reuters)—Britain, maintaining a thick veil of secrecy over her atomic blast off the Australian coast Friday, has not yet informed Australia exactly what kind of weapon was tested, defense Minister Philip McBride said today.

McBride said the general assumption was that it was a bomb, but no statement had been made to confirm this. He did not know whether the weapon was exploded on the ground, in the air or over the sea.

The minister said details would eventually be released by the British government.

"I don't expect that information for some time yet," he added.

Eye-witnesses who watched the thunderous explosion at the barren Monte Bello Islands, from an observation post 55 miles away on the Australian coast, believed the explosion was from a tower on one of the islands.

The shape and size of the great cloud created by the explosion indicates that its devastation was over an unusually wide radius. Some observers said it might have been a hydrogen bomb.

The Australian government fisheries research ship Warren was reported today to have left the mainland for the explosion area to check on the radio-activity of fishing waters around the Monte Bellos. It is estimated that fish several miles away from the detonation, which appears to have been on Flag Island in the centre of the atomic prohibited zone, could easily have absorbed sufficient quantities of radio-active material to make them dangerous to eat.

WILKINSON RESIGNATION CONSIDERED

The provincial cabinet today was expected to accept the resignation of George A. Wilkinson, a member of the Labor Relations Board.

Mr. Wilkinson's resignation has been in the hands of Labor Minister Lyle Wicks for several days.

He was an A.F.L.-T.L.C. nominee to the board, appointed when the board was formed in 1947.

Saw Blades Found Again In Don Jail

Bars Cut; Camouflaged

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP)—Three saw blades were found Friday night on a window sill in the hospital section of Don Jail where a few hours earlier a window bar was found sawed and another partially sawed.

The blades were found by Inspector Frank Kelly and Det.-Sgt. Bernard Simmonds who are preparing reports for a royal commission inquiry into Don Jail conditions to start October 14.

Officials said they believed the blades were used in cutting the bar which had been camouflaged by soap mixed with black shoe polish.

Toronto fire department today sent ladders to the jail to enable close examination of every window from the outside.

Acting Jail Governor Archibald Graham said he believes the sawing was done three or four months ago.

Another official said the cut bars were in a window in the hospital section where convicted murderer Leonard Jackson was confined after he was brought back to Toronto when wounded by police bullets in a Montreal gun fight last March.

"We think it's likely that Jackson sawed these bars while he was still confined to hospital," said the official.

Memorial to The King

Sir Leslie Boyce, present Lord Mayor of London (left), shortly to give over to London's new mayor, Sir Rupert de la Bere, has been named by Prime Minister Churchill to organize a drive for fund to be used to build a memorial to the memory of King George VI who died last February after a long illness at the age of 56. The first task, said Churchill, is to raise a statue "to carry to the living generation and to those who come after us a physical presence of the king."

Mize Gets Second Homer In 2-0 Pitchers' Duel

New York (A)	000 100 01x—2	4	1
Brooklyn (N)	000 000 000—0	4	1

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—A tremendous homer by 39-year-old Johnny Mize and equally tremendous pitching by 34-year-old Allie Reynolds paced the Yankees to a 2-0 victory over the Dodgers today in the fourth game of the World Series. The Yanks thus evened the series at two games each.

Mize's homer into the right field stands in the fourth inning was the only score as long as Reynolds and Joe Black waged a pitching duel for seven innings. The Yanks made a second run in the eighth off Johnny Rutherford on a mighty triple by Mickey Mantle plus a wild throw by Peewee Reese.

A crowd of 71,787, largest of this series, saw Reynolds stop the Dodgers with four hits and chalk up ten strikeouts.

Here is the game, play-by-play:

FIRST INNING

DODGERS—Cox struck out, swinging at a 3-2 pitch.

Reese singled to left centre for his seventh hit of the series.

Martin fielded Snider's slow roller and stumbled, flipping the ball to Rizzuto while falling in an effort to force Reese. However, the ball sailed into centre field, Reese going to third on the error and Snider holding at first.

Robinson took a called third strike. Campanella went down swinging.

YANKEES — McDougald flied to Snider. Pafko made a running catch of Rizzuto's liner. Martin walked. Robinson scooped up Mize's roller and threw to first to retire the side.

SECOND INNING

DODGERS—Pafko struck out for Reynolds' third strikeout in a row.

Hodges grounded out, Rizzuto to Mize.

Mize scooped up Furillo's hopper and threw to Reynolds covering at first.

YANKEES—Berra, with the index finger of his left hand taped up, struck out.

Woodling doubled into the left field corner.

Martin bounced out, Reese to Hodges.

THIRD INNING

DODGERS—Black took three balls and then struck out.

Cox flied to Mantle deep in centre field.

Reese lined a stinging drive off the top of Rizzuto's glove for his eighth hit of the series.

Reese was thrown out attempting to steal second and put up a mild squawk on the call.

YANKEES—Reynolds bounced out, Reese to Hodges.

Black came off the mound to field McDougald's bunt and throw him out at first.

Rizzuto walked on four pitches.

Mantle flied to Snider.

FOURTH INNING

DODGERS — Mize picked up Snider's roller and made the put-out unassisted.

Rizzuto made a fine play to throw out Robinson on a high-bounding grounder.

Campanella struck out.

YANKEES—Mize hammered a long home run into the right field stands for his second homer in two days.

Snider raced back against the auxiliary scoreboard to make a sensational leaping catch of Berra's 400 - foot blast. He sprawled to the ground but held the ball.

Woodling fouled to Cox near the third-base boxes.

Pafko came in quickly to collar Bauer's looping fly.

FIFTH INNING

DODGERS — Pafko slashed a ground single into left field.

Hodges drew the first walk given up by Reynolds.

Furillo moved the runners along with a sacrifice bunt which was fielded by Mize who threw to Martin covering at first.

Black attempted to squeeze Pafko in but missed the bunt and Berra made a diving tag on Pafko for the second out.

Black walked on a full count.

Cox fouled to Berra who made a neat catch in front of the Dodger dugout.

YANKEES — Martin grounded out, Hodges scooping up Cox's low throw.

Reynolds grounded out, Robinson to Hodges. McDougald walked. Rizzuto walked on five pitches, causing activity in the Dodger bull pen. Mantle flied to Snider.

SIXTH INNING

DODGERS — Reese flied to Bauer. Mantle caught Snider's high fly after almost losing it in the sun.

Robinson, for the second time, was called out on strikes.

YANKEES—Mize, who received a great ovation, drilled a one-bounce ground-rule double into the stands.

Berra skied to Snider. Woodling was intentionally walked. Cox fielded Bauer's roller and stepped on third, forcing Mize.

Martin popped to Campanella.

SEVENTH INNING

DODGERS — Campanella walked on four pitches. Pafko struck out. Hodges rapped into a double play, Rizzuto to Martin to Mize.

YANKEES—The official paid attendance was announced as 71,787. Reynolds struck out swinging. Black threw out McDougald. Reese threw out Rizzuto.

EIGHTH INNING

DODGERS — Furillo lined a single off Rizzuto's glove, the shortstop just failing to make a leaping catch.

George Shuba, a left-handed hitter, batted for Black and flied to Mantle.

Rocky Nelson, another leftie, batted for Cox and was the victim of Reynold's ninth strike-out.

Reese chased Woodling back to the wall for his long fly.

YANKEES—Johnny Rutherford came in to pitch for Brooklyn and Bobby Morgan took over at third base.

Mantle belted a tremendous triple off the centre field wall and scored when Reese's relay bounced into the stands.

Mize walked on a full count, and Collins ran for him.

Furillo made a running catch of Berra's liner to right, making Mantle's run earned.

Morgan threw out Woodling on a close play.

Bauer went out on strikes.

NINTH INNING

DODGERS—Collins took over first base for the Yankees.

Snider went out on a high fly to Mantle in left-centre.

Robinson was called out on strikes for the third straight time, again being fooled by a fast ball across the knees.

Campanella went out on a bounder to McDugald inside the third baseline to end the game and square the series, 2-2.

Angry Reply to Reds' Recall Demand Drafted

Stiff Retaliatory Measures by U.S. Under Study; Charges Against Ambassador Refuted

By DONALD J. GONZALES
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UP)—The United States today drafted an angry note to Moscow protesting the "shameful" unprecedented demand for immediate recall of Ambassador George F. Kennan, America's topmost expert on Soviet affairs.

From President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson down through State Department ranks, tempers were high over the Kremlin's blunt order.

Stiff retaliatory measures were reported under close study, including the possible demand for the ouster from this country of new Russian Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin, who presented his diplomatic credentials to Mr. Truman just 10 days ago. No serious thought was given, however, to a final break in diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

Western observers in Moscow said there was no reason why chilly, formal relations could not continue indefinitely between the United States and Russia, at least until after the American elections. They believed, however, that the U.S. Embassy staff would be reduced.

State Department officials said this government definitely would take these twin actions:

1. Denounce the "rude" Kremlin decision to oust Kennan as invalid, unjustified, improper and a reflection on the Soviet Union's peace propaganda campaign. Authorities said an American note outlining this government's ire probably would be delivered early next week.

2. Rejection of Soviet charges that Kennan made "completely false and hostile" statements against the Soviet Union will be backed up by this government's refusal to appoint a new Ambassador to Russia until after inauguration of a new U.S. president next Jan. 20.

Trigger-Happy Bandit Hunted In Vancouver

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4 (CP) — A baby-faced bandit with an itchy trigger-finger was sought today following the wounding of a cabaret manager in a $400 holdup here Friday night.

The youthful bandit successfully evaded police when he fled on foot from the office of the New Palomar cabaret after shooting the night club's 42-year-old manager, Sandy De Santis.

De Santis was reported in good condition in hospital with a bullet wound in the thigh. Police said the slug lodged in the office floor after striking the manager.

Despite roadblocks set up minutes after the robbery, the bandit vanished after running from the cabaret, on downtown Burrard Street. He chose the supper hour for his raid and the street was crowded with homeward-bound workers.

Red Feather Cash Drive Extended

Incomplete Canvass Far Short of Quota

The Red Feather campaign, originally scheduled to close today, will definitely continue into next week, according to co-chairmen Ralph B. Mathews and John A. Craig.

It will not end until a 100 per cent canvass has been made of the area to be covered, between Sidney and Jordan River.

Although half the $195,000 quota is now in hand, officials of the drive to provide funds for 17 welfare agencies understand that many canvassars have not turned in their kits because their jobs are not complete.

Metchosin is still well in front of the other 13 districts competing to reach their individual quotas. It "ran off" the Times box score Friday with 186 per cent of its quota returned, and now has reached 250 per cent.

Central Saanich has 94 per cent, and Langford is in third place with 80 per cent.

Volunteer workers are still spending hours every evening covering their districts, and have promised that everyone will be given the chance to donate to the annual drive.

Although Greater Victoria is only half-way along the road to its objective, it is well ahead of Vancouver, which has collected less than 40 per cent of its desired total of $1,260,000.

RED FEATHER BOX SCORE

Official standings of the 14 districts contributing to the Red Feather campaign at noon today were as follows:

	25% 50% 75% 100%
Victoria	$117,000
Oak Bay	34,000
Saanich	27,200
Esquimalt	10,000
Central Saanich	2,000
Langford	400
Luxton	200
Colwood	500
Metchosin	100
Sooke	900
View Royal	1,500
Malahat	100
Jordan River	100
Sidney	1,000

TROPICAL A WEEK AGO

Snow in Winnipeg; Will Freeze Sunday

WINNIPEG, Oct. 4 (CP).—An icy mass of arctic air, which whipped down on Winnipeg Friday, brought one-fifth of an inch of snow today and a forecast of 20 above for Sunday morning.

It came one week to the day after Winnipeg's temperature rocketed to 96.3 degrees, an all-time record for any September 27.

The snow snarled traffic and mashed fenders on the Salter and Arlington bridges as trolley and motor buses, cars and trucks skidded on the inclines.

The cold blast swamped city coal dealers with rush calls for fuel. One dealer reported he had more than two dozen orders telephoned in within a half hour after he opened for business today.

It missed wrecking the Manitoba grain crop, which is more than 97-per-cent harvested, but the harvest of the province's sugar beets was brought to a standstill.

Gardeners reported vegetables left exposed overnight were frost-bitten, but the damage would be light.

The first snow came about 6 p.m. C.S.T. Friday and lasted about one hour. At midnight, there were more snow flurries and at 7.40 a.m. today a 2½-hour fall started. Skies started to clear by 10.30.

The weatherman blamed Manitoba's lakes. The cold air moved southeastward, picked up moisture over the lake and dumped it on that part of Manitoba lying southeast of the lakes and also on northwestern Ontario.

Half R.C.A.F. Jets Arrive In Scotland

PRESTWICK, Scotland, Oct. 4 (BUP).—More than half of the 63 R.C.A.F. Sabre jet fighters making the greatest mass flight of Canadian jets over the Atlantic arrived here Friday from Keflavik, Iceland.

Forty of the speedy, silver fighters, en route to France, landed in quick succession. Twenty-two other jets remained at Bluie West airfield in Greenland, and one was in Keflavik.

The plane at Keflavik, R.C.A.F. officials said, had become unserviceable, but was now repaired and awaiting the 22 planes at Bluie West field before making the trans-Atlantic hop.

Caddy on California Holiday Sees Yank

BALBOA, Calif., Oct. 4 (AP)—Bored with flying saucer stories?

Like to get back to the old-fashioned type of fantasy like, say, a good sea monstern yarn? Then lend an ear to the tale of Barney Armstrong, veteran skipper of the fishing boat Sea Fern.

Armstrong said today he was returning from fishing late Monday when, a couple of miles outside Newport harbor, "I spotted something sticking up out of the water about four feet."

Armstrong said he throttled down and started to circle, closing in to about 25 yards.

He described the thing as a sea monster" with a round head about four feet thick, hard and horney on the outside and encrusted with barnacles.

"I thought it had one eye, about the size of the window on a diver's helmet," the seaman said. "His mouth was a big slit, about two feet thick."

As he circled, the head turned and the eye followed him. The head pivoted, Armstrong said, on a round body about 29 feet thick that extended downward beneath the surface. He was unable to estimate the length.

Suddenly the creature sank straight down, "leaving a boil about the size of my boat." Armstrong's boat is 41 feet long.

The skipper said his passenger, Orrel Reed Jr., saw the thing, too, and agreed as to the creature's description with one exception, Reed thought it had two eyes.

ONE WOMAN'S DAY

By NANCY HODGES

FLYING COWS

WHAT with robots with brains, directed missiles, flying saucers, and local citizens who earnestly assure me they have seen "Caddy," I have almost reached the stage where I am ready to believe anything is possible, no matter how impossible it may seem. And that, too, despite all the evidence that science is producing these days to refute the old adage about seeing being believing.

Take the case of the little boy in Montreal the other day. Four-year-old Stanley Isbitsky told his parents at 5 o'clock in the morning—I don't know what he was doing up at that time—that he had just seen a cow jump over the famous cross on Mount Royal.

HEY, DIDDLE DIDDLE!

HIS parents thought he was suffering from a nightmare, the result of an overdose of nursery rhymes, such as "Hey, diddle diddle, the cat and the fiddle, the cow jumped over the moon." But Stanley insisted that it was a great big black and white cow and that it went 'way up in the sky above the mountain.

Now if he hadn't been so positive about its being a black and white cow that was doing antics over the mountain, I might have inclined to the theory that the apotheosis of a certain contented cow of commercial fame had reached a new high—or that the same bovine had, in an unusual fit of discontent with her boring life in the national magazine advertising pages, soared aloft in search of new pastures on Mars.

AIRBORNE BOVINE

BUT STANLEY, LIKE the little boy in the nursery rhyme who laughed to see such fun, had the last laugh after all. For it transpired that he had indeed noticed a cow jumping over the mountain, if not the moon. And if he had watched a little earlier he might have seen it jumping over the moon.

For the cow he had seen was a big plastic Hostein heifer, filled with helium, that had escaped the day before from New Richmond, Wis., where it was made by the Doughboy Industries plastic plant.

HEADING DUE EAST

THE 15-FOOT critter was destined to fly over a U.S. National Plowing Contest at Kasson, Minn., presumably to provide entertainment for the contestants and divert them from the straight and narrow line. But it broke loose from its moorings during a test flight at the plastic plant the day before and, when last seen by its frustrated fashioners, was heading due east in a strong wind.

According to aeronautic experts it could reach a ceiling of a thousand feet and, with a favorable wind, could easily cover the 600 miles to Montreal by the time little Stanley Isbitsky saw it. In the meantime I have heard no more news of its whereabout, so don't know if that helium-filled heifer has exploded or whether it is causing consternation among the natives in the northland.

WORSE THAN FRANKENSTEIN

AFTER THAT cow-and-the-mountain incident, it makes one wonder if there was anything in the report that came out of West Virginia the other day. According to eyewitnesses up in the hills there "an unearthly being, a fire-eating monster with a bright green body and blood-red face, worse than Frankenstein, floated towards them."

One man claimed its whole body seemed to glow like fire and that it waddled like a duck, while a woman eyewitness declared that the monster had a strong metallic odor, warm and sickening. So a local newspaper editor organized an armed posse and went to the scene.

BADLY SCARED

HE LATER REPORTED: "I hate to say I believe it, but I hate to say I don't believe it. Those people were badly scared, and I sure smelled something."

And the authorities who scoffed at the monster story and claimed it was another version of the flying saucer yarn, explained by the meteor shower that had occurred over a three-state area, probably won't change the minds of those eyewitnesses. No doubt we shall be reading more of this blood-red and green, glowing Frankenstein turning up somewhere else, probably along with the cavorting cow, to scare the daylights out of somebody and add to our growing collection of North American legends.

Woman Seriously Hurt When Struck By Bus

Mrs. Alice Colclough, 66, of Devonshire House, 750 Fort St., received multiple, serious injuries when struck by a bus Friday at 4.40 p.m. at Douglas and Courteney Streets.

Suffering from a fractured skull and right hip, broken arches and toes of both feet, she was nevertheless reported in satisfactory condition in Royal Jubilee Hospital today.

Dr. E. L. McNiven, attending physician, said her injuries were not considered of a critical nature.

Police traffic officers said Mrs. Colclough was crossing Courtney from north to south in the west crosswalk of Douglas when struck by a B.C.E. bus in charge of James Thornicoft Hassell, 2572 Prior, proceeding south on Douglas and turning west on Courtney.

Steel Fuel Barges Serve Harbor Craft

VANCOUVER (CP).—Vancouver is believed to be the only seaport in Canada with floating service stations.

The steel barges, called marine stations by the owning oil companies, serve boats just as service stations ashore serve cars. There are five moored to pilings near the entrance to the harbor.

The companies figure there are several advantages in operating these barges in place of the fraditional fuel wharf ashore. Big factor is the safety in isolation.

The average station dispenses about 500,000 gallons of fuel a month, 90 per cent going to fishboats and tugs. The rest goes to harbor pleasure craft.

Poje Will Know Fate In Appeal on Monday

Tony Poje will know Monday whether he gains his freedom or goes back to prison.

Poje, vice-president of local 1-80 of the International Woodworkers of America and business agent for the union in Nanaimo, was sentenced Sept. 16 to three months' imprisonment for contempt of an injunction order issued by B.C.'s Supreme Court.

He was released from Oakalla Prison Farm Sept. 26 on orders of B.C. Court of Appeal, pending its decision of an application by his counsel that the prison term be quashed.

Poje was released from Oakalla on his own recognizance.

He is to present himself to the registrar of Appeal Court, William Bamber, at 10.30 Monday morning and will remain under his charge until 11 when Mr. Justice C. H. O'Halloran will hand down judgment.

If the court allows his appeal, he will walk from the courtroom a free man. If the appeal is dismissed, he will be taken back to Oakalla by R.C.M.P. to finish the sentence.

At the same time, the court will hand down its decision regarding fines of $300 each imposed on 14 other I.W.A. members found guilty of contempt.

The union appealed against these fines at the same time it appealed Poje's imprisonment.

American Automobile Association Motor Clubs will open their 25th annual Western Conference in Victoria Sunday. George I. Warren will be chairman of the session, to be attended by delegates from 16 clubs in Alberta and B. C., 11 states and Hawaii.

Veteran Tells Cops Policing a Picnic

WINNIPEG (CP)—After more than 50 years in and out of police uniform, 80-year-old Bill Wren of Montreal still hasn't had his fill of law enforcement.

Mr. Wren, who retired 14 years ago as chief of Montreal's Westmount district, keeps a fatherly eye on Canadian police work. He attended the recent annual conference of the Chief Constables Association here.

He's the oldest living member of the association, and officials figured the conference wouldn't be complete without him.

"Police force conditions have certainly improved since I joined up in 1898," he said. "We used to work 30 days a month with few holidays. Now it's a picnic."

Charge of 'Quibbling, Bickering' In Council Called Unjustified

Recent charges by the Chamber of Commerce that city aldermen and the mayor spent their time "quibbling and bickering among themselves while ignoring important issues," were altogether unjustified, Alderman Percy Scurrah told a meeting of the chamber's civic affairs group Friday.

"I'm still simmering over the chamber's criticism of the council" he said.

Ald. James Neely supported Ald. Scurrah. He said council had endorsed the chamber's own efforts to get Victoria's steamship service restored.

The chamber had charged the council with ignoring the loss of shipping services from Victoria to Vancouver.

Ald. Brent Murdoch referring to the chamber's charge of "disharmony" at City Hall, said that "as a rule" council members got along well together. The recent outburst involving Ald. Skillings, he explained, involved only three members of the council.

Ald. Scurrah then asked if the original attack on City Council by the chamber's civic affairs group had been approved by the entire group.

Len Hobbs, chairman of the civic affairs group, replied that the criticism of City Hall was "the considered opinion of some of the members."

The meeting adopted a resolution providing that in future all important statements of the group should be submitted to the full membership for approval.

A Symbol of Security

as pictured by little Monique Lavallee

7 years old, Monique is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Lavallee, Town of Mount Royal, Que. This sketch is her own version of what security means.

"Security" can mean many things to many people. Adults think in terms of a good job, a home of their own, the material comforts of life . . . a child sees it as something direct, simple dan close to home. In the imagination of this youngster, for example, security meant the sturdy, well-loved dog—always ready to defend his youthful friend and playmate against all comers . . . Canada Savings Bonds, too, can be a symbol of lasting security and protection for you . . . ready to build the kind of future you plan for.

Get the Savings Bond habit!

Canada Savings Bonds—Seventh Series mature in 10 years and 9 months. They pay an average of 3.44% per year if held for this full term. The bonds are cashable at full face value plus interest at any time at any bank in Canada. Each bond bears ten 3¾% coupons—the first of these being payable on August 1st, 1954 (1 year and 9 months from date of issue). Subsequent coupons become payable August 1st yearly thereafter until maturity. If the bond is cashed before the first coupon becomes payable simple interest is paid at 2.14% per year calculated monthly. The average return per year gradually improves the longer the bond is held, until it reaches 3.44% at maturity. The Seventh Series is available in denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $5,000, and the limit for holdings in any one name is $5,000. They are non-assignable and non-transferable.

Do you think Canada should adopt some method other than hanging for carrying out sentences of capital punishment?

Mel King, proprietor of Shopwell Groceteria, 649 Langford Street: "I think one of the most humane ways of disposing of people is the gas chamber. It's quick and painless. It doesn't seem to me to be very humane to string them up by the neck and leave them to dangle. It's bad enough to make them die. There's no need to make them go through torture."

Eugene Colley, glazier, Hobbs Glass Ltd., 126 Dallas Road: "Well, one way is just as good as another if you ask me. When a man takes that drop on the scaffold his neck snaps right there. It's quick. Whether they hang him or electrocute him or put him in a gas chamber, he's just as dead when they're finished with him. Actually, it's not really a question of how long it takes for a criminal to die. It's the time he spends waiting for the execution that's the real punishment."

Mrs. May Orrick, Sweetheart Florists, 784 Fairview Road: "Frankly, I feel it would be a great expense on the country to do away with capital punishment altogether and simply put the offenders in jail for life. So I agree there should be capital punishment. I feel the gas chamber would be too easy, though. I think they should have some punishment before death. While they are in jail, of course, they have to live with their consciences. Hanging is quite quick. Most of the methods used are quick."

Bob King, proprietor King's Hardware, 3365 Cedar Hill Road: "I agree that capital punishment is necessary. I don't know if hanging is the most humane way of doing it. But in most cases the person sentenced to that fate hasn't had much consideration for others. I don't think we should make it easy for persons found guilty of crimes which carry the death sentence."

Alex Sutcliffe, truck driver, 3246 Douglas Street: "I think hanging is as good a way as any other. The gas chamber and electric chair are too easy. The fact that they do hang people in this country probably makes a person think twice before committing a crime for which they might be put to death. If a murderer's insane, of course, they shouldn't be put to death. They never are, of course.

City Sawmill Men Quit I.W.A. For New Union

Move Unopposed in Supervised Vote

Steam engineers and firemen at three Greater Victoria sawmills have left the ranks of the International Woodworkers of America (C.C.L.), to join the International Union of Operating Engineers (T.L.C.).

About 30 men from Crowe Gonnason Co. Ltd., Moore-Whittington Lumber Co. Ltd. and Sooke Lake Lumber Co. veneer division are affected by the change.

In government-supervised votes taken this week the men, until now members of the I.W.A., showed themselves 100 per cent in favor of being represented by the engineers' union in future bargaining.

"The engineers' union was approached by the men during the I.W.A. strike," said Ed Callan, union business agent. "This step is long overdue. Engineers and other craftsmen should belong to their own union, and this is the first time our particular craft has been given the right to vote on their wish to join a craft union of their own choice."

Mill engineers at Youbou, Mesachie Lake, Honeymoon Bay, and Port Alberni, besides several mainland plants, belong to the engineers' union.

At Port Alberni the I.W.A. fears the engineers may reject a unanimous conciliation board award that granted them the same wage increases won by the I.W.A. in its strike.

"Their leaders are attempting to use the threat of a shutdown that would affect thousands of men in an attempt to win higher wages for their own members,' an I.W.A. official complained.

BRITISH FAKE TV ANTENNAS FOR LOOKS

LONDON, Oct. 4 (Reuters)—Thirteen out of every 100 television aerials on rooftops outside London are fakes, a government checkup disclosed today.

In many cases, homeowners erected the dummies to deceive neighbors into believing they could afford a TV set.

A government spokesman said the dummy aerials in many cases could only be explained as examples of "social snobbery."

The checkup was carried out by detection trucks which were investigating whether TV owners had paid up the annual fee required by the government.

Incitors of Koje Isle Riots Doomed By Reds

CHEJU ISLAND, Korea, Oct. 4 (AP).—The North Korean colonel who masterminded the bloody Koje Island prisoner-of-war riots last June has been sentenced to death by his own government, a United States officer said today.

Capt. Joseph M. Brooks said he got his information from anti-Communist prisoners. The co-operative P.O.W.s told him the fanatical Col. Lee Hak koo was sentenced to death by the Red Korean government shortly after he surrendered to U.S. troops.

Books said Lee, fiercely resentful, masterminded the Koje riots in the hope of regaining face at home.

Lee was sentenced to death because he surrendered with many of his troops early in the war—apparently because he misjudged the tactical situation.

Lee has been held under maximum security on Koje since he was dragged out of rebellious compound 76 where Brig.-Gen. (now Colonel) Francis T. Dodd was held captive.

It was Lee who defied Brig.-Gen. Haydon Boatner's command to empty compound 76 in an orderly fashion last June. Instead, Lee ordered his men to resist with home-made knives and spears when guards moved in to restore control.

In the fighting that followed, 81 Red prisoners were killed.

Aberdeen Angus cattle, highly developed in Scotland, were first brought to North America in 1873.

Suchan Parents Case Proving Hard on Judge

Accused of Harboring Son, Boyd Gang Slayer

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (BUP)—County Judge Robert Forsyth today pondered the charge he will make to a jury that will be asked Monday to decide whether Steve Suchan's parents were guilty of harboring two jailbreakers a year ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Lesso, whose son is to hang for murder, were accused of hiding Edwin Alonzo Boyd and Leonard Jackson for a month following their Nov. 4 escape from the Don jail.

Both counsels wound up their case Friday but the judge adjourned the trial until Monday because "it is not an easy or simple case to define." He did charge the jury.

The issue, as outlined by the counsels, was whether the Lessos knew the two men who roomed with them as Thomson and Wilson were the escaped prisoners. Lesso, who collapsed once during the trial, said they did not know.

Mrs. Lesso did not take the stand.

Crown Prosecutor Arthur Klein said the jury should disregard the fact that the Suchan's eldest son is to die on the gallows Dec. 16 for murdering Sergeant of Detectives Edmund Tong.

Makins Appointed British Ambassador to Washington

LONDON, Oct. 4 (UP) — Sir Roger Makins, 48-year-old career diplomat and son-in-law of the late U.S. Secretary of war Dwight F. Davis has been named British Ambassador to the United States to succeed Sir Oliver Franks, the Foreign Office announced today.

Makins, a top economic expert, has served twice previously in diplomatic posts in Washington.

Franks a former Oxford University professor who has held the ambassadorship since 1948, plans to return to academic life.

Makin's appointment to the post—Britain's top foreign assignment—was somewhat of a surprise. A Foreign Office spokesman said he will take over the job late in December or early next year.

Rita Leaves Aly's Roof For Plush Paris Hotel

PARIS, Oct. 4 (AP).—Rita and Aly have split up again.

The Hollywood actress, Rita Hayworth, left the home of her husband, Prince Aly Khan, where she had been staying more than a week and moved into a plush Paris hotel.

The reason for the newest breakup—which happened two days ago—was a mystery. Rita issued a statement through her lawyer, but it gave no clear reason why she moved out.

When she came to Paris two weeks ago, she went straight to the Neuilly home of her husband, against whom she has filed divorce proceedings.

Aly Khan, son and religious heir of the wealthy Aga Khan, leader of many millions of Moslems, minimized the idea of divorce in talks with reporters last Saturday and Rita said then she did not intend immediately to press through the divorce papers on file in Reno.

Miss Hayworth, in a written statement issued by her lawyer today, said in part, "I can only say what I have already stated and that is that my plans have not changed." She did not explain that remark.

Brawny Fans

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (BUP).—Almost 300 blanket-wrapped fans were lined up in near-freezing weather at Yankee Stadium at dawn today, waiting to buy bleacher seats for the fourth game of the 1952 series.

The temperature was 41 degrees, nine above freezing.

Italy Permits Banned Church To Open Doors

ROME, Oct. 4 (AP)—The Italian government today lifted its ban against operations of the American-sponsored Church of Christ in Italy. The United States Embassy, announcing the decision, said it followed discussions between the Embassy and the Italian government.

The denomination's 22 churches and one orphanage will be permitted to operate as usual during the period while their application for permanent permission is being acted upon by the government.

Last Sunday Italian police permitted the Church of Christ to hold its first public services in three weeks.

Cline R. Paden, head of the American-led church here, said at the time that it was only a "temporary concession."

The Church of Christ, the Assembly of God and Pentecostal Church have protested to the U.S. State Department against police interference with their services.

Activities of the Protestant Church of Christ had been banned in Roman Catholic Italy on grounds that the church did not have government permission to operate here. The church said it had applied for permission but that there had been no action on the request.

C.P.A. to Extend Northern Service

EDMONTON, Oct. 4 (CP)—W. Grant McConachie, president of Canadian Pacific Airlines, said today the company is extending its Edmonton-Whitehorse service to Fairbanks, Alaska, and will put larger passenger planes on the daily Edmonton-Yellowknife run.

Five 40-passenger Convair aircraft will be put on the Edmonton-Whitehorse-Fairbanks route March 1. Their 300-mile-an-hour cruising speed would reduce flying time to four hours to Whitehorse, to six hours to Fairbanks.

The Airlines executive said 55-passenger DC-4s will be used on the Yellowknife run, replacing 22-passenger DC-3s.

Mr. McConachie, piloting an amphibian plane, left today for Beaverlodge, Sask., centre of northern uranium development.

At the Half-Way Mark

LAST MONDAY EVENING RED Feather agency canvassers opened an appeal to citizens of this district for $195,000. That amounts to roughly $1.70 for every man, woman and child in the community, or $6.80 for a conventional family of four. The workers hoped their efforts would succeed within the week.

To date they have been able to turn in only about one-half of the desired total. Greater Victoria is lagging in its response to the plea to finance those different organizations on which so many men, women and children must depend.

The campaign will continue, its co-chairmen state, until each resident of Greater Victoria has had an opportunity to make a contribution.

At this point, however, those who have been tardy in giving donations, and those who, on second thought, believe they could afford to give more, might consider the results if the $195,000 objective is not reached. In the first instance inability to make that total available to the different agencies would necessitate a reduction in their budgets. That can mean one thing only—a corresponding reduction in service.

It is important that the people of this community realize they are asked to contribute to the campaign on a yearly basis. Spread over an average, the sum required is less than cigarette money. The hypothetical per capita amount sought is approximately 10 cents an agency. But there are 17 agencies and some of our 115,000 citizens will, by force of circumstances, be receiving, not giving.

Because the campaign aims at the provision of a year's funds to the different groups concerned, the donation cannot be limited to a mere tag-day token. Greater Victorians are asked to take that fact to heart. It is not their nature to turn their backs on requests from those in need. Citizens who have neglected to give to date may prove that point by acting quickly and generously now.

Keeping Abreast of Friend and Foe

IT IS EVIDENT FROM THE NEWS reports that more than an experiment in nuclear physics took place Thursday off the northwest coast of Australia. By this long-prepared detonation of an atomic weapon, Britain gave forcible proof of her ability in atomic research and her competency to share in similar knowledge gained by the United States.

It has been a source of irritation in British government and scientific circles that with the termination of the war, the co-operation in nuclear experimentation that helped produce the Hiroshima bomb came to an end.

The United States, fearful of losing the advantage she had gained at great expense and effort, passed a law prohibiting the exchange of atomic information with other nations. That this ban hit at her former partner, whose scientists had played an important part in theoretical and practical work, made no difference.

Subsequent spy revelations in Britain as well as the United States intensified the American determination to safeguard her secrets. Britain and the U.S. pursued independent paths of research.

Almost total secrecy has shrouded the British project. Rumors that a new trigger device has been perfected, that the weapon was a hydrogen bomb, that more energy than heretofore was released, and so on, have apparently been no more than guesses. However, it appears that progress has been made, with Canadian scientists participating, and Britain can now meet her partner on a more equal footing.

It was typical, and a hopeful sign, that Britain gave postwar priority to study of peacetime uses of atomic energy, and second place to atomic armament. That has been Canada's policy as well.

But with Russia reportedly making advances in atomic munitions, it is fortunate that Britain has not postponed this phase too long. The Monte Bello explosion, and others perhaps to follow, mark a new stage in atomic development. It is one that will be viewed with satisfaction in this country despite a general horror of atomic war and all that it implies.

Newspaper Boy Day

THROUGHOUT CANADA TODAY newspapers are paying tribute to the young businessmen who represent the final link in the chain that brings their product to its readers. It is proper that they should honor the newspaper boy, not only in recognition of the service he gives, but in appreciation of the virtues which he develops in his tasks.

The newspaper boy runs his own business. He buys his papers wholesale and retails them to his customers. He enjoys success as he adheres to the high standards of integrity, courtesy and service that are the hallmarks of the good merchant. He learns business ethics and business practice, keeping his accounts up to date, and he is encouraged in reasonable thrift by the knowledge that he works for the money he receives.

Stories are legion of successful men who laid the foundation of their careers in the boyhood employment of newspaper delivery and street sales. In that field they learned the importance of wholesome aggressiveness, fair dealing and self-reliance. They grew up to the responsibilities of rendering service, in fair weather and foul, of practicing courtesy in their contacts with their clients, and in recognizing their obligations.

To these good young Canadians, newspapers extend their praise today, confident that subscribers, particularly in Victoria, will join them in congratulations for a job well done.

Gander and Back Before Tea

From London Calling

FOR a man about to attempt something spectacularly new the senior of the Canberra's two pilots was surprisingly explicit and matter-of-fact on the evening before the flight. He was Mr. R. P. Beamont, who is thirty-two and who since 1947 has been chief test pilot of the English Electric Company, the makers of the aircraft. In August last year he set up a record of four hours 18 minutes for the westward crossing of the Atlantic with one of the same type.

He told the two dozen journalists who met him at Aldergrove in Northern Ireland after the preliminary weather briefing: "Quite frankly, we are out for records. We hope to knock perhaps 10 minutes off last August's time for the outward trip, and with any luck we will come back in less than four hours." That was what we, the reporters, had anticipated, and we went to bed feeling rather blase—that, now, records could be broken to something like a railway timetable. It was perhaps a great compliment to the Canberra, but we were wrong.

BY NEXT morning everything was changed. The latest weather forecast said that on its way out the Canberra would fly into headwinds of more than 100 miles an hour—one of the capricious high-level gales that beset jet aircraft. But the flight was still on, and there, before dawn, were the mechanics warming up the aircraft's Rolls Royce Avon engines.

The crew had by now lost hope of breaking the westward record. Their new estimate was four-and-a-half hours. But it seemed possible that they might, said Mr. Beamont, return in 3¾ hours at nearly 600 miles an hour.

THE existing record for an eastward crossing, such as it was, had been set up by a German crew who flew from New York to Berlin at 199 miles an hour in 1938. At the end of the war a British Mosquito aircraft had made the flight at the then fantastic speed of 445 miles an hour, but that was not officially recognized. There had been no representatives of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale to time the attempt, or to put identification seals on her engines as they did on the Canberra's.

She took off at 6.34, just after an almost cloudless dawn. We lost sight of her as she chased the sun westwards, and went indoors to wait for news of her. For hours, none came. Weather ships out in the Atlantic reported that they heard nothing from her as she passed at 40,000 feet above them. There was a growing feeling of tension.

BUT then came the news from Gander. She had been sighted there. She had made the crossing in 4 hours 34 minutes, at 456 miles an hour. So the crew had been right, and the weather forecast, too. The westward record had not been broken.

After two hours the Canberra set off to return, and we heard that the estimate of 3¾ hours for the trip still stood. Now it seemed more than ever possible that a time remarkable even for jet flying might be set up. It was! A weather ship some hundreds of miles west of Ireland reported late that afternoon that the Canberra had passed over her ahead of schedule. And when shortly afterwards she landed in the cloud and driving rain that had blown up since morning her time for the return proved to be 3 hours 25 minutes: an average of 606 miles an hour for more than 2,000 miles.

THERE were about 500 people waiting to welcome back the aircraft and its tired crew. The three of them—Mr. Beamont; Mr. P. Hillwood, second pilot; and Mr. D. A. Watson, navigator—they, all in their thirties, had become the first men ever to cross the Atlantic and return in a day. They had been away 10 hours, of which eight were flying time. They had set up two records, and incidentally had breakfast in Ireland, lunch in Newfoundland, and tea back in Ireland. And on the spectacular return flight Mr. Beamont had not been the pilot. He had handed over the controls—and the actual breaking of one record—to Mr. Hillwood.

OVER their tea the crew told us the flight had been uneventful, even though they admitted that coming back at more than 600 miles an hour had been exhilarating. There had been a minor electrical adjustment to be made at Gander: that was all. Nor was there any doubt as to their whereabouts. The weather ships just had not heard their signals. And with that they casually walked back to the aircraft and took off for their base in Lancashire—taking with them a salmon they had been given in Newfoundland a few hours before.

Snowy Splendor

Vic Peeps' Diary

Being A Chronicle Of Our Times

MONDAY, 29th — (Winnipeg). This day I left off great skirts, it coming on hot, and put on my summer silks; and took me off for a stroll through this city, my very first. Now this is a cross-roads renowned for its elegance in ballet, musique, and other cultural pursuits: but Lord! how these simple folk cavort in jackanapes raiment, and discourse of little else but athletick affrays. To supper with Master John Payne, and I chatted betimes with Master Gordon Fahrni, a chirurgien of amiable disposition and careful hands. Anon to the arena, with Masters Philip Chester and Max Freedman, excellent gentlemen, to attend on a football contest, and observed with vast amusement the discontent of these spectators when a man in striped shirtings picked up the ball, and walked resolutely towards the Winnipeg goal. But by and by this same man picked up the ball and walked towards the Calgary goal, whereat there were extravagant hosannahs, a medical student crying aloud: "I love ya, ya bum!" Up betimes and away to Master Chester's house, much admiring an exquisite collection of Canadian peintures on these walls.

* * *

TUESDAY, 30th — (Winnipeg). To lunch with many splendid gentlemen from all sectors of this land, rejoycing in the fact that it is yet so small that compatriots of Halifax, 4,000 miles distant, may sit awhile in amiable discourse, each known to the other and finding common aymes in their talks. My supper was a lobster, demm'd elegant, with Master Donald Cromie. Anon I tarried at a tobacconist's counter, much intrigued by a mechanical kitten which, when wound, made off in chase after a wire butterfly. Thinking this to be a handsome gift for my girl, I set it on the floor of the Fort Garry Hotel, and with infinite mirth observed the fury of this aymless pursuit. Whereupon several citizens gathered, and laughed themselves fit to burst, and all purchased kittens. Which pleased the girl to the pores.

* * *

WEDNESDAY, 1st — (Par avion). This morning, at 1.10, I sat with Master and Mistress Payne, eating a pate on rye, and sipping a glass of rich milk, when a loutish messenger brought word that my transport was delayed, there being gayles from the west. Whereupon we passed the time in idle chatter, until my carriage came; and it being laggard, perforce warned the coachman to make all haste to the field. Which he did at such high jolts, on freshly-damped streets, that I feared for my life, and cursed the noxious business that took me from my hearth. Thus aboard, and sat glumly, stifled by fetid air, until Calgary; whereat the serving-girl brought word of further delays, there being heavy fogges in Vancouver. So, with dawn breaking, to a coffee house with Master and Mistress David Kinnear, Master Kenneth Caple and Master Bertram Powley; and Master Kinnear wondrously produced a life-giving tonique, with which we bolstered our coffee, and anon we were mighty genially merry together. So to Vancouver for a sleep, and by and by to the new Cancer Institute with Dr. Fritz Strong, to inspect this new healing centre, the finest these eyes do see. So to chat with Master Kenneth Drury, Master William Herbert, Mistress Sallie Phillips, Mistress Joan Dangelzer, and many more, all agreeing that the prospect of the city and mountains from the I.O.D.E. room is the noblest in this land. Thus with my in-laws for a piece of steak, splendid, and an elegant greengage jam. Anon home with Master Robert Phipps, and to a deep, fitful repose.

* * *

THURSDAY, 2nd. — This morning, thinking to trimme my waistline, I lay on the floor and did some bends, which gave me an unconscionable ake. To lunch with Master John McIntosh, and was greeted by an oafish waitress, who poured soup over our clothes, but more on Master McIntosh than anyone else. By and by to tea with Master and Mistress William Aitken, from abroad, and perceived him to be suffering from a blood-shot eye. Which he professed to have taken "admiring the beauties of your city," a pretty compliment, but dubious. So with Master and Mistress Simons to towne, for a platter of Chinese food, simple but enough. My dog being all bleats and miseries, I took him some bones.

* * *

FRIDAY, 3d—Comes to me this day an anonymous letter, proferring me a scurrilous diet, as follows: water, lemon juice, castor oil, clear soup, one slice wholewheat toast, grapefruit, cottage cheese, hot water, fruit cocktail, black coffee, stewed fruit—but hold! I cannot continue with this loathsome and grisly fodder. A pox on the knave that sent it! To my club with Master Pearlman. We sat awhile, listening to a game of baseball, and ate some roast beef. By and by to Parliament, for amiable discourse with Master Robert Wallace and many friends, much amused in observing that this energetic government hath calendars on the wall dated August. So to Mistress Alan Taylor's to pick up my girl from a party, and found her in high humor. So home, and to the hockey, in unseasonably humid ayres. But the ghost of Mons. Leger hung heavy on this place.

REVISED REVISION

The appearance of the new revised version of the Holy Bible on Tuesday of this week make it a very noteworthy day for all Christian people whose religious feelings are compounded of something more than modern reasoning and to whom the beauty of English language is a matter of some importance.

The acceptance of the new version as the monthly choice of a book club is, of course, of great significance.

This having been achieved, one begins to wonder whether the talents of the 32 scholars might not usefully be employed for another 15 years in a similar revision of the works of William Shakespeare. And after that is accomplished perhaps the Book of Common Prayer might merit some attention.

JUVENILE SADISTS

Having read with horror and disgust the account in the Daily Times of the stoning of Mr. Justice O'Halloran's cat and of other instances of wanton cruelty to defenseless animals by "juveniles," I wish to inquire why the names of these miserable little sadists—or "big" ones—should be withheld from publication, and the disgrace and abhorrence which would rightly be their lot?

But oh no, these today pampered slobbered over "young" people can not be either disgraced, punished, or even blamed. We are not allowed to know who they are.

As to "punishment" the lash, and plenty of it, is the only suitable punishment for these abominable torturers, the only kind they'd fear and understand.

(Mrs.) S. G. BEESON.

Duncan, B.C.

(Editor's Note: The law forbids publication of the name of any juvenile charged with crime unless the case is transferred from juvenile to a higher jurisdiction.)

NICKEL CUP

Your Dave Stock reports Don Coburn of Fort William, as saying "The few places that still sell coffee for five cents do so as a come-on . . . they take a loss on the coffee, etc."

I don't see how restaurants can lose much on an item costing them about 70 cents per pound and which, even at 5 cents per cup, returns to the cash register the tidy sum of at least $2.50; and which, at 10 cents per means $5 to the till. If restaurants were to charge comparatively on other items they'd have to hit us $5 each for their 70-cent steaks instead of the $2.50 as at present.

Good old Mrs. Woolworth sells Java at 5 cents the cup, but don't let her kid you she's losing money. And, Mr. Coburn; well he'd better do some fresh figuring.

Mystery of Migration Puzzles the Experts As Birds Hear Inner Call and Head South

By DR. G. CLIFFORD CARL, Director, Provincial Museum

THE shortening periods of daylight alternating with lengthening periods of darkness which make up our autumn days stimulate many of our bird species to prepare for the southward migration. Those which are seen only in pairs or family groups during the spring and summer now congregate in large flocks and move around the countryside restlessly as if waiting for an agreed time of departure. Bands of robins appear in the garden trees in noisy swarms, feed on the available fruit then move off to other meeting places.

Carl

Groups of waxwings, sleek in their well-tailored plumage, drift through the boulevard trees, their wispy call notes alone proclaiming their presence. Long-legged and long-beaked curlews appear on rocky headlands or occasionally in vacant fields pausing a few days on their flight to the south.

Turkey vultures wheel overhead on broad wings, the naked head and neck of each bird noticeably small against the blue of the sky. In time they, too, disappear, probably southward, no one seems to know where.

There are obvious advantages in going south for the winter. More daylight hours are available for feeding, more food is obtainable and severe winter weather is avoided. No one questions these benefits. The problem is rather what factor or factors determine when the birds are to leave and how are they guided.

A partial answer to the first question has been obtained by experiments carried out some years ago at the University of Alberta. Dr. William Rowan there discovered that by artificially controlling the amount of light falling upon temporarily caged birds he could induce them to migrate at abnormal times. Thus, crows were caused to fly southward in the spring when normally they would be traveling north.

Apparently the decreasing periods of light stimulated the glands and other "machinery" of the birds in such a way that the normal fall behavior was brought into operation six months in advance. It appears then that hours of daylight or the ratio between day and night, rather than temperature, determines the migration time of birds.

This explanation also accounts for the regularity of bird movements; despite differences in weather conditions birds arrive and depart about the same time each year.

How they are guided in their flights over immense distances is another question—one which so far remains largely unanswered. Memory, a keen eye, a "sixth sense," all have been advanced in explanation but none is completely satisfying. While memory may serve in guiding those which have previously been over the course it can not be an aid to those birds of the year flying it for the first time and unaccompanied by the parents.

Similarly while keen sight is of great importance particularly in locating precise nesting territories of previous seasons this sense alone can not be the sole guide.

A sensitivity to magnetic fields (as in a compass) or to energy waves of other types (as in a radio) has been suggested as an explanation of this extraordinary ability to keep on a particular course. Homing pigeons become confused in the vicinity of powerful broadcasting stations. If these birds are sensitive to such energy waves is it not possible that all migratory birds are similarly sensitive to some directive waves and are guided by them on their long flights?

The pleasant days of fall slide by all too quickly. At intervals we realize that changes in the landscape and in the weather have been taking place and we discover that white-crowned sparrows, violet-green swallows and yellow warblers are no longer here. They have finally responded to the inner urge to move southward.

Perhaps we understand a bit of the mechanics of this "urge" but to cover our ignorance of such matters we call it "instinct." What matter what it is or how it functions so long as it brings the birds back again next season?

Clifford Hugh Douglas: Jan. 28, 1879—Sept. 29, 1952

An appreciation by Major A. H. Jukes, president, The Social Credit Association of Canada in British Columbia.

THE origin of the Social Credit movement, now world wide, was an article by Douglas entitled "The Delusion of Super-Production," in The English Review of December, 1918.

Prior to this, Douglas, who was a civil and electrical engineer, had been employed by the Westinghouse Co. in the Far East. On completion of a survey for water power ordered by the government of India he was told the development could not be proceeded with as there was no money.

This to him seemed unrealistic as the machinery was priced very low, labor and material were plentiful, engineers were available and there was what he called the dire need of the people for electric power. In other words what was physically possible was not financially possible. This experience made a deep impression on Douglas.

Later he was employed by the government in England to build the Post Office Railway. Again he was held up by a shortage of money but the sudden outbreak of war saw money immediately become available. Shortly afterwards he went to the Royal Aircraft Works and while there discovered a flaw in our method of computing prices.

He produced a mathematical proof, which no one has ever disproved, to show that we create prices quicker than we create incomes. This means our present system is not self-liquidating and that no production can be carried through (under accepted accounting and banking methods) without creating a debt which can only be liquidated through the creation of a still greater debt.

To keep the system going, continuous inflation is a necessity but continuous inflation is a continuous fraud on the public.

This, Douglas endeavored to explain to responsible people. To his amazement he met with not only studied indifference but actual hostility. This intrigued him so he determined to find the reason. He had proved that all industry and trade could be stifled by shutting off the flow of bank credit which was the prerogative of the private monopoly of banking. The license to act depended on bank credit.

He therefore wrote his first book, "Economic Democracy," in 1920, showing how the operations of finance progressively centralized control and placed concentration of power in fewer hands.

In 1930 the keystone control was set in place—a super central bank, later a world bank. Douglas then wrote another book, "The Monopoly of Credit," showing how a few men have got possession of enormous power on a world scale.

There were two ways of looking at this. Either the financial system had grown haphazardly, in which case the emphasis was on the system as such; or, the system was itself the outcome of planning by certain power groups who sought control over others.

Douglas began by exposing the system—blaming it for the poverty in the midst of plenty. But his attack on the system brought from under cover those who were profiting by the system. They counter-attacked. Every available means were used to keep Douglas and his ideas off the air and out of the press. He and his followers were labeled funny money cranks and subjected to merciless ridicule.

Nevertheless Douglas had exposed the money myth.

He carried the fight one stage further to prove that power groups of alien origin—selected international financiers—were using the financial system to impose their policy on the world which meant that the individual's freedom would eventually disappear.

Party politics were to him a "criminal absurdity" as they only divided the people over trivial differences at a time when they should realize the vital issues which were at stake.

He condemned as unlike Social Credit the platforms and methods of the so-called Social Credit "parties" in Alberta and B.C., including the organization of party politicians knows as the Social Credit League. Those who follow the lead of Solon Low, Manning and Bennett were pursuing methods unrecognizable as Social Credit. The most recent criticism was issued on August 23, 1952

Those who see the vision of Douglas, and they include prominent scholars in all parts of the world, know that the people in their desperate search for freedom with security will be driven to read Douglas' works. Then will the contribution of this great man be acknowledged.

THE CHURCH PAGE

By LANCE H. WHITTAKER

The cartoon at right, one of a series by Jack Hamm which appear periodically on this page, is chosen for a special reason. Its subject, meant to have general application, has a more specific reference in Victoria today.

The text of the cartoon could well be applied to members of the Social Credit party who have seen fit to make unsubstantiated attacks upon the honesty of predecessors in office in B.C.

Whittaker

The Church Page has been a lonely voice upholding the cry for more Christianity in government. Just two weeks ago an effort was made here to refute a charge of Social Credit self-righteousness in an editorial carried in a Victoria paper.

That effort to uphold the claim for more forthright churchmen in politics has been nullified in large part by the recent statements by Solon Low and Hon. Wesley Black.

Statements a Disappointment

The case for better men in government rests very largely on the record of bitter partisanship and lack of responsibility in public utterances that has been evident in the past. Mr. Low, in his "whisky and nylons" statement, and Mr. Black, with his unsupported allegations of dishonesty, have shown a political bias in no way inferior to that of any other politician.

To say that these strictures came as a disappointment is to understate the case. British Columbians, whatever their political beliefs, must have been appalled.

It seems superfluous to point out that public sufferance of this kind of political mud-slinging reached a limit with the Coalition break—in fact, the government must credit that surfeit of charge and counter charge for much support in winning the election.

This kind of villification is not in character for self-professed Christians.

A Vigilant Eye Is Needed

This is not to say that the electorate does not expect that a vigilant eye will be kept upon public business; nor will anyone cavil at verbal blasts based upon indignation at demonstrable dishonesty; but not a particle of proof has been brought forward by either Mr. Low or Mr. Black to support their charges.

It is safe to say, as has been said before in this space, that—all other factors being equal—voters will be inclined to entrust public business to men with an unashamed record of honest Christian endeavor, and this without reference to denominational affiliations.

But the public will be just as quick to condemn baseless statements which are calculated purely to cast unwarranted aspersions for political purposes.

This is not Christianity, by any standard.

AT FIRST BAPTIST

Oldest Bible in Victoria To Be Sermon Subject

What is believed to be the oldest Bible in Victoria will lie side-by-side with the New Revised Standard Version on the pulpit in First Baptist Church on Sunday morning.

Together with a copy of the 1703 Bible, which was carried on the Plains of Abraham, it will give substance to the sermon topic chosen by Rev. G. R. Easters, "The Changeless Book."

The 1595 Bible is known as the "Breeches" Bible, the 1703 version is one of the first pocket Bibles, owned by Mrs. Harry Elwell.

The "pocket" Bible is a King James version, hand-printed and engraved by an English printer by the name of Bill (the same printer who produced Mr. Easter's Bible of 1636). The front page has an etching of the royal coat of arms of the reigning monarch of that day.

The Bible was the property of Dr. William Paget, who was surgeon-in-chief of the ancient H.M. 48th Regiment of Trois Rivieres, Que. Dr. Paget was one of the surgeons who attended General Wolfe when he fell fatally wounded.

It has come to Mrs. Elwell through her mother's family, a cherished heirloom for nearly 250 years.

Astronomers Probe Space In Lecture Series Here

The latest findings of astronomers with regard to the universe will be discussed by G. J. Odgers, astrophysicist at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory, Saanich, at a meeting of the Victoria Centre, Royal Astronomical Society of Canada, next Wednesday at 8 in Victoria College-Normal School auditorium.

The lecture entitled, "The Expanding Universe," will also deal with the relationship between the atom and the universe.

Mr. Odgers is one of the leading scientists at the observatory here. He studied mathematics and physics at Melbourne, Australia, and Cambridge University, England. He also studied in summer schools at the universities of Gottingen, Germany, and Paris.

Mr. Odgers' paper will mark the first of a series of lectures on astronomy to be heard here this winter. The public is invited to attend the meetings.

Names of other speakers and the dates of their lectures are: Norman G. Rogers, "Space Travel," November 12; Dr. Jean K. McDonald, "The Sun's Turbulent Surface," December 3; Dr. R. M. Petrie, "Astronomy in Europe Today," January 14; Prof. J. D. Keys, "Nuclear Physics and its Application," February 12; Mrs. J. R. Noble, "The Philosophy of Modern Astronomy," March 11; W. G. Milne, "Earthquakes on the Pacific Coast," April 8.

College Evening Division Classes Attract Over 270

Evening division classes at Victoria College have attracted over 270 people, director R. T. Wallace announced today.

"It's Your Money," a course offering instruction in stock and bond investments, has a registration of 70, almost double that of the next most popular course, Office Management.

To date, 25 have registered for "Our Musical Heritage," a lecture-concert series which begins on Oct. 14, with D. Boyce Gaddes and Charles Palmer instructing. Classes will meet twice monthly.

Among weekly courses available are fluent French conversation, elemental ornithology, art of the theatre, principles of genetics, problems of Canadian democracy, and great books leaders' training course.

Object to Paying For Deeper Ditch

Strong protests were made to Saanich Council Friday by a group of Normandy Road residents against a ditch deepening by-law.

The residents, who recently supported a petition for deepening the ditch before passage of the by-law, said they had done so on the understanding that it would entail no expenditure. The total cost of the by-law now amounted to $1,950, they said.

Reason for the deepening of the ditch was to eliminate stagnate water and to end flooding of certain lands, the petition said.

The council informed the delegation that it could not now interfere with the work being done on the ditch as the by-law had been approved. However, the residents were told that they had right to Supreme Court action if they wished to quash the by-law.

St. Louis College Alumni Will Meet

St. Louis College Alumni will hold the first meeting of the term Tuesday, October 7, at 8 p.m. at the college.

All former students are invited to attend and participate in discussions of activities for the coming season.

SUNDAY SCHOOL IN CONTEST

Free Methodist Group's Target Prized Pipe Organ

BY LANCE WHITTAKER

The Sunday School of the Free Methodist Church has entered the Fifth Annual International Sunday School Attendance contest sponsored by Christian Life magazine.

That may not sound like world-shaking news, but it is, in a fashion.

The contest is modelled on the lines that seem to be developed only south of the border. It offers over $13,000 in awards to the winning school, and promises every group, no matter how large or small, a chance to share in the glory of increasing attendance and improved teaching methods.

The top award is a real pipe organ valued at $4,000, to go to the Sunday School showing the most progress in the six-week period, Oct. 5-Nov. 9.

With the pipe organ, as part of the first prize, goes 36-day all-expense tour to the Holy Land for the minister, and similar all-expense 25-day tour to the Sunday school superintendent.

Fabulous? That isn't all.

The range of lesser awards includes such prized church school equipment as motion picture projectors, visual aids to scriptures, recordings of favorite hymns, religious encyclopedias, choral gowns, hymnals, folding steel chairs for classrooms and distinctive class banners for school contests.

CLASSIFICATION

The contest is open to four groups: Class A Sunday schools are those with average attendance of 800 or more; Class B, 500 to 800; Class C, 250 to 500; Class D, 100 to 250, and Class E, 25 to 100.

The classes are scored 50% for percentage increase in attendance, 50% for originality of teaching methods and ingenuity in making the work of the school staff more effective.

Suggested aids include teacher conferences and training courses, community surveys for more pupils, a direct mail program for parent education, provision of transportation to the church school where necessary, student incentives and special rallies.

STIMULATING

This is the fifth year of the contest and consistent testimony of the growing list of church schools entered has been that the total effect makes for surprising surge of interest and growth.

A glance at the questionnaire provided for competing schools reveals much of the reason for the success of the conference. It consists of six large sheets of suggestions for church school activity and provides space for a report on how these suggestions were followed out. Fifty per cent of the marks are based on this report.

Many city ministers and church school workers will be interested in this year's results, which Rev. J. E. Campbell of Free Methodist Church has promised to relay as soon as they are known.

CHURCH PAGE ARTIST WINS CARTOON AWARD

Jack Hamm, whose religious drawings syndicate cartoons appear in the Victoria Daily Times, has been awarded third place in the annual editorial newspaper cartoon award conducted by the Disabled American Veterans. His award winning cartoon was published the week-end of July 11-13 and was captioned "Modern Day Samaritan."

His dramatic cartoon was based on a paraphrase of a Biblical quotation (St. Luke 10,30-37), "But a certain American went to him and bound up his wounds . . . and took care of him . . ." The "American" is shown kneeling over a disabled veteran on the battlefield saying, "I'm Deeply Grateful . . . I'll Not Forget." Two other persons are shown in the background with the text, "When They Saw Him, They Passed By On the Other Side."

Donation for College Comes From Holland

One of the latest contributions to the Victoria College Library Donation Fund was made this week by Dr. Pam van der Esch, former student now living with her husband in Nijmegen, Holland. Dr. van der Esch is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. M. Mitchell, 2171 Granite Street.

Entering its second week, the fund has already mushroomed to over $2,000. Although the minimum objective is $5,000, officials advise that "$20,000 is needed before adequate provision is made for students attending the college." Row upon row of empty library shelves testify to the inadequacy of the present collection.

At the close of the Library Donation Fund is it hoped that Victoria College will have a library to equal that of the University of British Columbia.

NEWS OF CITY CHURCHES

World-Wide Communion Sunday To Be Observed Tomorrow

World Communion Sunday, instituted by the World Council of Churches throughout Christendom about 10 years ago, will be observed in most city churches Sunday.

Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will be administered and in many churches ministers will preach on the theme.

Centennial United is among those giving special attention to Communion, the Sacrament being administered at both morning and evening services. Rev. Douglas B. Carr will preach in the evening on "A Pebble Upon the Shore."

* * *

At First United Church Rev. M. A. J. Waters will preach at the morning service on "Knocking at the Wrong Door." Sacrament will be administered at this service.

In the evening Miss Maria Chela from Chissamba, Angola, Africa, will speak, interpreted by Miss Margaret Dawson. Miss Chela is an African Girl-in-Training leader. She was the unanimous choice of the fellow-members of her native church to represent them at the recent meetings of the 15th General Council at Hamilton, Ont. The Sacrament of the Lord's Supper will again be administered following the evening service.

* * *

"World-Wide Communion" is the subject of Dr. McLean's morning sermon at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. At evening worship the minister preaches the first sermon in a series entitled "Our Way of Life." The titles are: (1) "Have Your Faith Lifted"; (2) "The Sign of the Cigarette"; (3) "No More Prayer"; (4) "Muddled Marriages." The senior departments of the Sunday school meets at 9.45 and the beginners and primary at 11, during morning worship.

* * *

At Metropolitan United Church Sunday, the Sacrament will be administered, Dr. F. E. H. James being the preacher at both services. In the evening his subject will be "How to Read the Bible."

* * *

The pastor, Rev. James E. Smith, will conduct both services at Emmanuel Baptist Church, speaking in the morning on the subject "Who Wants To Be Poor?" and in the evening "Shall We Go Pagan?"

The Ordinance of the Lord's Supper will be observed at the close of the morning service.

* * *

World Wide Communion Sunday will be observed in St. Aidan's United Church. Rev. J. Lyn Clerihue will speak at 11 on "Aroused by Remembrance" and at 7.30 "The Bible in 1952." Communion will be held at both services.

* * *

George and Gene Friesen, just returned from 8½ months in Germany, will be speakers at the Youth for Christ Rally in the Glad Tidings auditorium at 8 this evening.

* * *

Harvest festival services will be held Sunday at St. John's and St. Saviour's Anglican churches.

* * *

The Church of St. George the Martyr will observe the first anniversary of consecration tomorrow. Rev. William Hills will take as his morning sermon subject "The Man Behind the Leader," at his evening service, "The Year Ahead."

RETURNS HOME—Dr. J. B. Rowell has just returned from five months of vacationing and preaching in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales; and commencing his 26th year of ministry in Central Baptist Church, will preach at both services on Sunday, 11 a.m. and 7.30 p.m.

Huge Cake Centrepiece For Legion's Birthday

A monster cake prepared by the Ladies' Auxiliary featured the eighth birthday party of the Esquimalt Branch of the Canadian Legion Friday night at 622 Admirals Road.

The cake was cut during the intermission of the program, which included dancing to a three-piece orchestra, novelty numbers and solo entertainers.

Architects' Journal Praises Funeral Home

The striking architecture of McCall Bros. funeral chapel in Victoria is the subject of a photographic study published in a recent issue of the Journal of Royal Architectural Institute of Canada.

The chapel is the work of Nicolls & Di Castri, architects. Illustrated in journal are the altar and front chapel, the entrance foyer and the southwest portion of the building from the exterior.

The study also shows a night view of the entrance to the chapel.

Incorporating one of the most striking designs in the field in Canada, the McCall Bros. building has attracted widespread attention among professional architects. Its superb landscaping and outside features also add to the artistry of the entire premises.

FARM and RANCH

By HUMPHRY DAVY

Vancouver Island's turkey industry geared itself this week for the Thanksgiving week-end.

At least 150,000 pounds of turkey meat is expected to be shipped between now and the holiday to markets in British Columbia.

As far as sales go, turkey breeders have nothing to grumble about as sales are expected to be as high as last year—perhaps even higher. However, a decline in turkey prices is giving producers something to think about and may result in loses.

C. E. Whitney-Grifiths, one of the largest producers on Vancouver Island, reports that pressure of increased turkey population and storage of stocks has resulted in declines of as much as 10 to 12 cents at wholesale level for popular weight ranges. This is a serious blow to producers, he claims.

His views are shared by Mrs. Curtis G. McCulloch, Phipps Road, secretary of the Vancouver Island Turkey Improvement Association. She points out that the price of feed did not come down in line wtih turkey prices.

Other producers felt that the retail and wholesale businesses were making too great of a profit in comparison with producers. "The price of a turkey on the retail market does not represent what the producer is getting," said one producer. "Our share is very small."

However, turkey producers are hopeful that business will pick up for Christmas which is when the bulk of turkeys are sold. They expect that the volume of business in December will reach a new high.

Meanwhile, members of the association are preparing plans for their sixth annual turkey show to be held this year in the lower ballroom of the Crystal Garden instead of National Motors Ltd. The show this year will have many attractive features.

Mayor Claude Harrison has been invited to open the show.

Another event will be a meeting of the association at Courtenay on Oct. 7, where the problems of the turkey industry will be discussed. Prof. E. A. Lloyd, University of British Columbia, will address the meeting.

There appears to be still a considerable number of gardeners who are reluctant to use sawdust as a soil improver, despite the findings of the Dominion Experimental Farm, Saanichton.

Experiments show that while sawdust has not much fertilizing value, it does help the texture of the soil. This is important in the growing of crops.

However, if sawdust is used a fertilizer high in nitrogen should be included in the wood waste. Some experts recommend the addition of enough fertilizer to bring the nitrogen content up to at least 1.2 per cent—usually 24 pounds (equivalent to 115 pounds of ammonium sulfate) to a ton of fresh sawdust; or a little less than a pound of ammonium sulfate to a bushel of loose wood waste.

Now Is Time For Planning Your Garden

By JACK BEASTALL

The autumn presents a good time to make changes that will improve the general layout, display the plants more effectively, and reduce to a minimum the time needed for maintenance.

Take a walk around your district and size up the gardens you see. Extend the trip to include other portions of the city. You cannot fail to notice the monotonous repetition of layout, and any exception is so outstanding one is compelled to remark on its attractiveness.

Jack

The basic layout of every fifty-foot lot you study will consist of a straight path from street to house flanked with two pocket handkerchief lawns each surrounded by a flower border about eighteen inches wide.

Such a layout presents neither the elegance of an uninterrupted expanse of green sward, nor the magnificence of a shrub and perennial border. The work necessary to cutting small areas of grass, trimming extensive edges, and the planting and cultivating of narrow borders, is far greater than required to care for a large lawn or wide borders.

If a lawn is felt necessary to form a foreground for the house, make it as large as possible for the best effect. Extend it from fence to fence and from street to house. On the other hand, if flowers are to be the feature of the gront garden, give them right of way and use the minimum of grass as an approach to the border.

Contrary to general belief, a really good and attractive lawn is neither cheap nor easy to make, nor simple to maintain. The same area layed out with a careful selection of shrubs and perennials requires much less attention.

Many a small city garden could be improved by removing most of the existing grass and laying out a border some twelve to sixteen feet wide along each fence from street to house, and continuing the same width across the front of the building. A narrow strip of grass, or better still one of the many creeping ground covers, may then flank the walk and form an approach to the borders.

Such a plan may seem drastic compared to the present simple layout, but in all garden planning the bold, prominent mass is effective, while a dab here and there registers confusion. The one exception is specimen plants, and such require severe isolation to reveal their true beauty.

Overcrowding At Oakalla Re-Condemned

Commission Member Criticizes Delay

BY GORDON FORBES

Placing of two prisoners in a cell, the issue which touched off Thursday's riot at Oakalla Prison Farm, Burnaby, was condemned as far back as 1950 by a government-appointed commission which inquired into B.C.'s jail situation.

"The placing of two men in a cell, necessitated by the large population, is condemned, but under existing conditions the warden has no alternative," the commission reported at that time.

Commission members were Col. Eric Pepler, chairman, and C. W. Topping, professor of sociology at the University of British Columbia, and E. G. B. Stevens, chief probation officer.

The commission recommended construction of a new jail at Haney, B.C., to overcome crowded conditions at Oakalla. Construction of the jail would abolish the necessity of "doubling up" in Oakalla cells.

One of the commissioners today said the government should have given top priority to construction of the new jail.

Only preliminary work has been done on the site of the new jail, and the job is "moving entirely too slowly," he said.

Flame-Proof Materials Save Many Properties

It is appalling to read in our daily papers the tremendous loss of life and damage to propertfy caused by fire in all parts of the country. And yet it is a fact that many fires could be prevented simply by the use of fire-safe materials.

In earlier days we erected our buildings as we pleased. We believed that fire hazards were the worries of fire departments. And the firemen became heroes in their attempts to quell the fires. But the bravest and most skilled could not put out those fires once they started. They spread too fast.

Eventually it was realized that we should be building to prevent a fire from starting, or at least from spreading. From this realization came our modern protectors such as automatic fire alarms, sprinkler systems, doors and stair-wells that help to stop fire from getting through.

Modern day materials aid every builder, whether it is to be a garage, a home or a hospital, to build with the feeling that he is wisely building to help prevent disaster or heavy damage by dreaded fire.

PRODUCT FEATURES

When we plan to build or remodel, we meet several problems about which materials to choose from the many that are available. Suitability of the product we use is the first consideration. Durability over the years with little maintenance expense is the next. Appearance is important—the finished job should look good and stay good-looking. Fire safety is vitally important—lives may depend on the choice between a fire-resistant or a combustible building material. And finally, the cost should be considered with the results, the material should be reasonable in price, and easily erected.

The material—actually mineral—Gypsum—has become of prime importance in buildings today because it possesses unique fire-protective properties. Gypsum is non-combustible and actually gives off moisture when exposed to heat.

Gypsum, as taken from the ground, is a white or grey rock. Almost half the volume of gypsum rock consists of water, but this water is in solid crystal form. The water crystals in gypsum will not melt until the temperature is in excess of 212° F.

Every housewife knows that vegetables in her saucepan on the stove will not burn so long as there is water between them and the hot bottom of the pan. In just the same way, the wooden structure of a building cannot be ignited, or become hot enough to burn so long as the wood is separated from fire or heat by a protective barrier of gypsum.

Many examples can be cited where a room on one side of a gypsum partition has been completely destroyed, while the room on the other side of the partition remains untouched by fire. Other cases show all the contents of one floor destroyed, but the rooms above, protected by a gypsum ceiling, unharmed except by smoke.

BUILDING COSTS

Manufacturers of gypsum products have made reasonable the cost of their building materials so that with no extra cost, no sacrifice of beauty or efficiency, any builder can have gypsum fire-protective materials in his plans.

Since wood burns, the wooden framework of all buildings should be protected against fire by gypsum. For interior wall and ceiling work there are two types of gypsum coverings in common use today, either of which provides adequate fire protection to the structure. Gypsum wallboard is being used by many thousands because it is an easy job to quickly cover the framework, after joint treatment the walls and ceilings appear to be in one unbroken surface. Gypsum lath and gypsum plasters have been developed to provide the best possible foundation for good plastering work.

With this safety by the use of gypsum materials on the interior of the building, manufacturers looked for the best ways and means of also including this protective material on the outside of frame structures.

Today they have developed a product that suits this purpose, and with the use of it builders are ensuring themselves of fire protection ever before possible. This material is called gypsum sheathing.

Gypsum sheathing has achieved tremendous popularity with architects, builders and owners. It is very much like gypsum wallboard in character, and is made in board form, ½ in. thick, 2 ft. wide and 8 ft. long. It consists of a gypsum core covered on each side with heavy protective building paper. Gypsum sheathing has replaced wooden sheathing, which was at one time the conventional material used to close in the outside framing of a building.

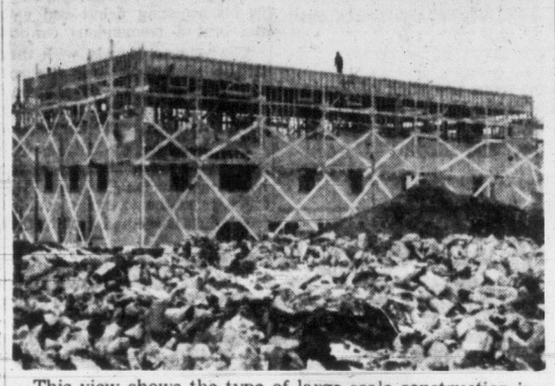
LUMBER SCARCE

During the last few years when good quality lumber was costly and difficult to obtain, the demand for gypsum sheathing grew rapidly, due to its many advantages. Erection takes about half the time required for other types of sheathing. Being built in sheets 2 ft. by 8 ft., the material fits standard stud spacing with a minimum of waste. Gypsum sheathing does not shrink and therefore the edges remain permanently tight, making a neat, rigid, wind-resistant, fire-protective wall. Being composed of gypsum, it will neither burn nor permit the passage of destructive heat. It very effectively protects the wooden framework from fire and affords a safe fire-protective backing for combustible interior or exterior finishes.

A quotation from a contractor shows the durability of gypsum sheathing when it becomes necessary to leave the sheathing out in foul weather. He remarks: "I have left gypsum sheathing that we applied on a home exposed for a month now, in all kinds of weather — rain and sleet — and there seems to be no signs of it loosening or disintegrating in any way."

In keeping pace with the country's growing communities, manufacturers of building materials are holding up their end by continually searching for improvements to safeguard the people's investments—and their lives.

In private homes, too, sturdy, long-wearing gypsum material for the wall sections ensures the maximum of safety from fire. The unique non-combustible properties of gypsum, which is actually a mineral, plus its low cost and ease of installation make it a favorite of home-builders and owners.



This view shows the type of large scale construction in which gypsum wallboard is freqeuntly used. Adapted to both large and small buildings, commercial and residential, the highly flame-resistant wall materials shown here afford extra protection for a valuable structure besides adding to durability and strength of the building.

Noisy Burglar Runs As Sleeper Roused

A burglar's housebreaking attempt in the early hours this morning on Collinson Street was foiled by his own noisiness.

Mrs. C. McIlwaine, 920 Collinson, told city police she was awakened by strange noises on the back porch at 1 a.m. She went to investigate and on turning the kitchen light on someone fled from the porch.

The burglar had apparently been trying to enter by removing the glass in a rear window. A small section of putty had been pried out.

Civil Servants to Ask 8 Per Cent Pay Boost

OTTAWA, Oct. 4 (CP—Fred Whitehouse, president of the Civil Service Federation, said Thursday night the government will be asked for wage increases of at least eight per cent for federal civil servants.

He spoke at the convention of the National Unemployment Insurance Commission Employees' Association.

On the basis of recent wage increases to non-government workers in Canada, he said the next brief of the C.S.D. to the government will ask for an increase of eight per cent or more.

Fire Chief Calls for Check on Premises

E. C. Clayards, Oak Bay fire chief, today called on all residents of the municipality to observe fire prevention week, Oct. 5 to 11, this year, by checking all possible hazards in their premises.

He advocated a thorough inspection to eliminate accumulations of broken furniture, packing boxes, rubbish and other junk in basements, attics, garages and yards.

"I would recommend regular disposal of rubbish, overheated items protected, ashes kept in metal barrels or containers, matches kept in metal boxes and away from children, frayed electrical cords replaced, usage of proper lighting fuses, mops and oil rags kept in metal containers, chimney and joints kept in good repair and properly cleaned regularly, fireplaces screened, and many other points which should be attended to in the interest of self-preservation," he said.

Citizens of Oak Bay dispose of old material through the burning in an authorized incinerator, no permit being required during the period Oct. 31 and June 1. Other burning fires may be lit upon a permit being obtained from the office of the fire chief, 1703 Monterey Avenue, and such permits in writing shall be valid for 14 days. Single day permits are obtainable by telephone, G 3321.

The telephone being the alarm system for the district of Oak Bay, residents are requested to pay particular attention to calls placed over the fire alarm number, E 3321, placing only such calls through that number when requesting the services of the fire department. All other business with the Oak Bay Fire Department may be conducted over telephone number G 3321.

"I thank the residents of Oak Bay for their consideration and support in the past in the cause of fire prevention and urge them to continue their vigilence in that direction. Help us to help keep your homes safe from fire," Mr. Clayards said.

SERVING VICTORIA FOR OVER FORTY YEARS

Short Summer, Wasn't It?

It was only an exhibition game but there wasn't a seat to be had at Memorial Arena Friday night as the New Westminster Royals and Victoria Cougars battled to a 1-1 tie. Goalie Lucien Dechene of the Royals, who spent most of the evening stepping in the way of Cougar drives, here dodges a free stick from the stick of Ernie Roche, Cougar defenseman. Others in the action shot are, left to right, Royals' Bob Leek, Ernie Oakley; Cougar coach Eddie Dorohoy, and Royals' Gordon Haidy.

Cougars Outplay Royals In Pre-Season Exhibition

BY BILL WALKER

Victoria 1, New Westminster 1

Naturally, Eddie Dorohoy wanted more than anything else for the Cougars to make a good showing in their pre-season debut against New Westminster Royals at Memorial Arena Friday night.

Eddie, who this year will pilot the Cougars in the Western Hockey League, got that wish and more.

His Cougars, with only four days' practice under their collective team belts, not only tied the vaunted Royals who have had 10 days in hibernation at Kelowna, 1-1, in a surprisingly interesting exhibition, but the capacity house of 5,000 fans rallied around Eddie in his coaching debut and gave the brat a tremendous ovation.

The veteran Royals, with their line-up all but set for the season (defenseman Pete Durham reports today), found themselves outplayed by a wide margin.

And, has been the custom with Royal visits, a portly gentleman, by name Lucien Dechene, was the barrier the Cougars couldn't pass when it seemed certain they must score.

Unofficially, Big Luke stopped 51 Cougar shots, handling the amazing total of 30 drives in the second period alone.

The Cougars worked hard to give Eddie a successful premiere and should have won. Reg Abbott hit a post in the late going, as did Andy Hebenton, while Dorohoy himself had two good chances in the third period.

All the scoring, what little there was of it, which was also a surprise, was confined to the first period.

UNFORTUNATE BREAK

Cougar goalie Jerry Cotnoir scored the first New Westminster goal himself at the 6.48 mark when he knocked Ollie Dorohoy's rebound off the end boards into the net.

Hebenton tied the score at 15.37 on as pretty a passing play as Dorohy will ever hope the Cougars duplicate many times this season. Bernie Strongman and Dorohoy helped fashion the gem.

Incidentally, Dorohoy had hardly stepped on the ice when he put Hebenton in the clear for an apparent goal. Unfortunately the play was offside.

ANDERSON IN FORM

The Royals, who meet the Cougars again tonight at Westminster, went their best lick in the first few minutes of the second period until Doug Anderson, one of the standouts on the ice, took centre stage with a fine performance, harrassing the Royal defense constantly with his aggressive forechecking.

Penalties were frequent, as league president Al Leader's newest official, Ross Valliere of Toronto, took command early and kept it. In all there were 14 infractions, nine to the Royals and five to the Cougars.

Rival players, probably intent on making the best showing possible, as for some their jobs may hinge on an eye-catching performance, displayed more feeling than good manners. A couple of nose-to-nose exchanges were tossed in for good measure, no blows being thrown, however.

ED SATISFIED

And was Dorohoy satisfied with his charges, some of whom obviously were in the need of the good stiff workout, as were the Royals to a greater degree, it seemed?

"You bet," he said, "but I sure wish Stan Long, Edide Mazur and Colin Kilburn would get here real soon.

"That opener next Thursday night is the real one I want to win."

Lineups:
New Westminster — Dechene; Bergeron and Bedard; Ullyot, O. Dorohoy, Boyce. Subs, McNab, Slater, Love, Leek, Fashoway, Lavell, Maxwell, Haidy and Oakley.
Victoria—Cotnoir; Roche and Webster; Anderson Evans and Medynski. Subs, Bouchard, Goegan, Strongman, Hebenton, Abbott, McIntyre and E. Dorohoy.
Summary:
First period: New Westminster, O. Dorohoy (Ullyot), 6.48. Victoria, Hebenton (E. Dorohoy, Strongman), 15.37. Penalties: Medynski, McNab, Evans, Leek, Roche.
Second period: Scoring none. Penalties: Maxwell, Love, Haidy.
Third period: Scoring none. Penalties: McNab, Bedard, Maxwell, Maxwell (misconduct), E. Dorohoy, Fashoway, Abbott.

'OH, HAPPY DAY,' EAGLE SCREAMS AT DAMN YANKS

BROOKLYN, Oct. 4 (AP).—Here's how the Brooklyn Eagle, Brooklyn's daily newspaper, has informed its readers of the fortunes and misfortunes of its National League baseball champions in the World Series with New York Yankees.

Wednesday (after the favored Yankees were beaten 3-2 in the first game):

EXPERTS, DROP DEAD!

Thursday (after the Yankees leveled the series at one game each with a 7-1 victory):

THOSE DAMN YANKEES!

Friday (before the third game):

MAKE LIKE WEDNESDAY

Friday (after the game which Brooklyn won 5-3):

OH, HAPPY DAY!

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

PICKING UP THE PIECES—And there's a lot of loose ends lying about, some of which the Cougars helped tie up the New Westminster Royals with last night.

First there's Don Webster. Dapper Don is back for another season of hockey if he can make a puck contract stand up to the recompense he receives for a GOOD television position in Los Angeles.

Don forsook hockey last year for video, but the old urge is back in his veins again. He jarred a couple of Royals in old-time form last night, too.

Walker

After seeing the new seating arrangement in Memorial Arena, who could overlook manager Joe Dukowski. Grinning from ear to ear, Joe murmured. . . "Now, if we could only get the seats extended up from the new mezzanine to the others and eliminate the promenade!" The new plan adds 866 seats to the place. . . It looks more like an arena every season. The new plan seats 5,327.

And wasn't that a pleasing exhibition of hockey for a practice affair? . . . and Andy Hebenton didn't look out of place on left wing either . . . a trifle disappointed at not getting more than a look-see at the Montreal training camp, Andy is set to prove the oversight was a big mistake. . .

Add two new names to the list of officials in the W.H.L. this year. . . . One is Ross Valliere who ruled the game with an iron and disciplined hand last night. . . The other is Scotty Morrison, rated the No. 1 official in the Quebec Senior League last year. . . Bill Knott and Eddie Powers are the holdovers from last season.

* * *

The Dominion Football Association sponsored soccer school has grown by such leaps and bounds this year that officials in charge are running out of coaches. . . Even one appearance would help if any ex-booters are interested in giving something back to the sport.

A word to the wise is sufficient: Lester, you and Eddie's Cougars have got a following. Bet there aren't many places which get a sellout for an exhibition game.

* * *

From here and there: It is rumored that Guyle Fielder, P.C.H.L. rookie award winner of the Royals last year, will, or has already ended up with Edmonton Flyers. . . Vic High track stars Ted Whan and Don Burgess have enrolled at the Western Washington College of Education . . . Joe Medynski is probably a firm believer in the axiom that "looks are deceiving at times" . . . the J. A. Whan who won one of the prizes at the rink last night is Ted Whan's father . . . the carpenters didn't finish working on the new seats until 5.30 Friday afternoon. . . Ernie Roche is the Cougars' pro-tem team captain. . .

* * *

This week's order of the irremovable digit to that sports fan who smashed, beyond immediate repair, the temporary lacrosse box and equipment off Richmond Ave. so that the kids couldn't play any more. . . If he had only asked, Whitey Severson and the boys would have gladly moved to a more friendly locale.

DODGERS NOW FAVORED TO TAKE FIRST SERIES

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP).—The Brooklyn Dodgers became 6-to-5 favorites today to win the World Series, as a result of their triumph in the third game.

However, the Yankees were favored to win the fourth game at odds of 8 to 5.

DRESSEN'S GANG BOUNCES

Don't Count The Bums Out

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—It appears to be unsafe to write the Dodgers out of this World Series. Charlie Dressen's gang has bounce.

Going into today's game at Yankee Stadium holding a 2-1 lead and with their magnificent rookie, Joe Black, ready to give it another whirl, the National Leaguers were back in the driver's seat, fully recovered from the severe trouncing the Yankees gave them in the second game.

Serious doubts were expressed that the Dodgers would heal in time to get back in the playoff. They answered that one in full as they slugged easy Ed Lopat from the hill in Friday's fine 5-3 comeback.

Peewee Reese showed the huge throng of more than 66,000 why the National League considers him to be as brilliant a shortstop as there is in the business. The old geezer, Elwin (Preacher) Roe, showed them pitching class in the pinches which they will remember.

In throwing Black back at Casey Stengel's crew, instead of saving him for relief duty the rest of the way as he had originally planned, Dressen again proves that he has the heart of a born gambler.

But he was taking a shrewd gamble. Should the big negro beat Allie Reynolds again and make it 3-1 in victories the Dodgers would become overwhelming favorites to win their first world championship.

NO MONKEYING AROUND

Stengel has no choice but hand the ball to Reynolds, his only 20-game winner, and hope that the chief would have a better game in his system than he had in losing the opener. Reynolds, in his best form, is a hard man to shave. Casey would have held him back another day and probably have used Johnny Sain today if Lopat had won, but he can't afford to monkey around with second-line pitchers at this stage.

Not only did the low pitch which got through Yogi Berra let in the two deciding runs in the top of the ninth, but it bunged Yogi up to where he is certain to be much less than his usually effective self for the balance of the series if, indeed, he is able to play at all.

For some reason known only to himself, the Yank backstop always catches with the index finger of his left hand sticking out of the glove. That was the digit which got split on the play, and he was wearing a bulky bandage on it last night. He said it was "hurting terrible."

There was considerable argument whether Yogi should have been charged with a passed ball. Many observers including this one thought that young Tom Gorman, who had just relieved Lopat, cut loose a wild pitch, but the official scorers saw it otherwise.

BLINDMAN'S BUFF

Whichever it was, Berra appeared to be a fellow playing blindman's buff as he searched the premises for the pellet while Reese and Jackie Robinson came tearing across the plate. Of course, Andy Pafko followed up with a single to right field which would have scored them anyhow, but no one will ever know whether he would have made the hit if the wild goings-on had not unsettled Gorman.

HOOP LEAGUE MEETS MONDAY

The Victoria and District Basketball Association will hold a business meeting Monday night at 8 in the St. Louis College.

Vice president Frank Ireland reports the league is making headway in its revival program and that is will meet with officials of the school board soon to discuss gym facilities.

Atanas Hurt As Canucks Clip Bombers

PENTICTON, B.C., Oct. 4 (CP).—Canuck Walt Atanas was carried unconscious from the ice Friday night in a rough-and-tumble exhibition hockey game which Vancouver won, 2-1, over Seattle Bombers.

Sixteen penalties—eight apiece—were handed out in the game between the Western Hockey League clubs.

The veteran Atanas was charged into the boards by Bombers' John Bailey in the third. Extent of his injuries was not known immediately.

Canucks had the edge in play most of the way and outshot Bombers, 22-19, but it was mostly due to the fine work of goalie Emil Francis that the Vancouver club stayed in front.

Summary:

First period — 1, Vancouver, Leier, 19.34. Penalties, Lebodia, Smith.

Second period — 2, Vancouver, Tarala, 9.06. Penalties, Foley, Smith, Lebodia, Conn, Atanas (2), Arnett, Bailey, Fontinato.

Third period—3, Seattle, Dick (2), Smith, Arnett, Bailey.

Stamps Stomp On Spokane

CALGARY, Oct. 4 (CP)—Calgary's Western Hockey League Stampeders made an auspicious debut into the 1952-53 season Friday night, romping to a 5-1 victory over Spokane Flyers in an exhibition contest in the Stampeder corral. Spokane is a Western International League amateur club.

Stampeder coach Hank Blade juggled his lines through the contest to come up with the best combinations with which to open league play at Saskatoon next Wednesday night.

DOES NOT BLAME GORMAN

'All My Fault' Claims Berra

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP).—What happened?

Is Yogi Berra guilty of one of the most colossal blunders in World Series history?

Or was the squat catcher crossed up by bespectacled Tom Gorman, the freshman pitcher of the New York Yankees?

Who deserved the rap for the "rock" that cost the Yankees Friday's world series game?

The issue was still up in the air today as veteran sports writers, players and baseball officials continued to discuss the highly controversial play that resulted in Brooklyn's 5-3 victory.

Berra, New York's slugging all-star receiver, joined the exclusive group of world series "goats" when he failed to chase a passed ball in the ninth inning while two Dodgers dashed madly home. Those tallies proved to be the winning ones.

Why didn't Berra make an effort to retrieve the ball after it got away from him until it was too late?

"I lost the ball," the aggrieved catcher mumbled sadly in the silent clubhouse after the game. "I didn't know where it went. I didn't even see it. I just didn't see it."

Berra readily accepted the full blame for letting Gorman's pitch get away from him after Pee-Wee Reese and Jackie Robinson had pulled off a double steal.

STENGEL DOUBTFUL

Manager Casey Stengel of the Yankees doubted, however, that Gorman threw what Berra had called for.

"I think maybe that guy (Gorman) crossed him (Berra) up," said Stengel. "He (Berra) called for a fast ball. Maybe he (Gorman) threw him a curve. I wouldn't know."

But Berra stoutly defended his young pitching mate.

"I called for a fast ball and got it," he declared. "It was my fault that it got away. I knew what was coming."

SMASHED FINGER

"The pitch hit the tip of the mitt and smashed the finger," Berra said, wiping the blood off the wound. "There was such sharp pain, for a moment I was stunned. The finger is stiff now but it still hurts.

"I remember turning to Goetz (plate umpire Larry Goetz) and saying to him, 'where the hell is the ball, Larry? where is it?' "

Gorman, a very glum young man, told just about the same story after he finally got around to talking with the waiting reporters.

"He (Berra) asked for a fast ball and that's what I threw," he said. "At least that's what I intended to throw.

"My fast ball has a tendency to sink. This one really sank good. It broke into the right-handed batter (Pafko). The next thing I knew it was rolling away. No, I didn't yell out to Berra. I just didn't know what to say. But I didn't cross him up."

Congdon Holds Lead in B.C. Open Golf Tourney

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4 (CP)—Chuck Congdon of Tacoma, Wash., Friday fired a three-under-par 69 for the second day in a row to keep one stroke ahead of Art Feldman of Seattle in the British Columbia Open golf championship.

Feldman, who Thursday tied the Tacoma Rocket for first-day honors, has a 139 total. Congdon has 138.

Three pros, two Canadians and one American, turned in five-under-par 67's to take over the third, fourth and fifth positions. Host pro Freddy Wood has a two-day total of 140, Stan Leonard 141 and Seattle's Harry Umbinetti 142.

Today 54 players will tee off in the final 36 holes on the Shaughnessy course, the pros shooting for the $2,000, and the amateurs for the trophies.

Among those qualifying were Edmonton's Henry Martell and Victoria's Hugh Morrison. Martell has 74-75—149, and Morrison has 73-74—147.

EILERS ARE NOT ONLY FISH IN SEA

Wally Puts Faith in 'Kids'

By DENNY BOYD

Wally Yeamans examined the picture reflectively and smiled.

The picture, appearing in a Vancouver paper, showed members of the Vancouver Eilers basketball team, winners of the Canadian senior women's basketball championship for the last two years.

The picture indicated the Eilers were not only looking to their third straight Dominion crown but also to a European tour.

"I think," said Yeamans, "they can be beat. They're getting a little older and a little slower and this bunch of kids I'm bringing up to senior A this year might be the ones to do it."

The "bunch of kids" Yeamans was referring to was his King Realty squad, which has taken the big step from senior B to senior A this year.

They are the same kids who last year, when they were known as Macdonalds, swept through to the B.C. championship in the B division.

"I couldn't find a better sponsor than Milton King," reports Yeamans, "he was quite a basketball player himself a few years ago in the United States and he is handing us playing tips as well as keeping us going financially.

WALLY YEAMANS
. . . they can be beat

Taking us over is his contribution to the move to get basketball on a higher level this year."

Since making the decision to move up to a higher rank, Yeaman's club has worked out three times and Yeamans is confident he will have a powerful squad.

Hustling for positions on the team are a pair of veteran senior A players, Cash Kennedy and Helen Pettigrew. Yeamans is also enthusiastic about the playing of Flo Pickering, a rookie last year. Tall, fast and left-handed, Flo is making a sustained effort to spot a steady berth with the club.

Others working out are Ev Slater, Pat Mason, Pat Pettigrew, Shirley Lewis, Viola Yetman, Muriel Dodsworth, Joyce Thomas, Jackie Shearman, Pat Metcalfe, Lorraine McDonald, Hilda Scarvada and Lorarine Hilton.

On Sunday, Yeamans will confer with British Columbia Amateur Basketball Association president Wilf Cain to arrange inter-city games here with Vancouver senior A clubs.

He feels with Cain's backing, he will be able to boost basketball interest considerably by bringing mainland squads here.

After disclosing that, Yeamans looked back at the picture and said, "Yes, I think they (Eilers) can be beat."

EDMONTON TO SHOW NEW FACES

Only Three Flyers Remain This Year

EDMONTON, Oct. 4 (CP)—Only three of last year's squad have been retained by Edmonton Flyers of the Western Hockey League for the coming season. Those remaining are all-star defenseman Pat Coburn and left wingers Ching Johnson and Jim Uniac.

Playing coach Bud Poile also will go with the following players

Flyers this year replace Indianapolis Capitals of the American Hockey League as top farm club of Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League.

Fielder and Reibel won rookie-of-the-year awards last season in the former Pacific Coast League and the A.H.L., respectively.

Pilseners-Petes In Boxla Finals

Dale Sees Vancouver Having Good Chance Against Defending Champs

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP).—Last year's finalists for the Mann Cup, Vancouver Pilseners and Peterborough Timbermen, meet again this year with the first game of the best-of-seven series for the Canadian lacrosse championship set for Sunday in Maple Leaf Gardens.

The Timbermen, defending champions, won the eastern Canada title Friday night by defeating Toronto West Yorks 12-8 in the seventh game.

Vancouver, who operated under the name of Combines last year when their series with Peterborough went to seven games, won the British Columbia championships by eleminating Vancouver Indians in the sixth game of the series.

The west coast team is scheduled to arrive here today so the team can get a full day's rest before the series opens. Seventeen players and four officials are making the trip by air.

The Pilseners have earned a reputation as a hard-hitting aggregation and manager John Dale said he thinks his outfit will have a better chance against the Petes than they did last year. "At least we will be playing on a dry floor, not the swimming pool we had to put up with last year."

MINUS KEY PLAYERS

Peterborough is minus four key members of last year's championship team. Ike Hildebrand has left to train with Cleveland Barons of the American Hockey League and Jerry Fitzgerald is playing with Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four Football League. Two other standbys, Nick Magee and Emmett Creighton, have retired.

Three juniors have been called up to close the ranks. They are Grant Burns, Gary Robison and Lou Nickle. Other new members of the team include Bill Killingbeck, who returned from Fergus to the Petes this year, and Roger Smith, a junior who plays a utility role.

TEAM LINE-UPS

Other Peterborough players are: Moon Wootton, veteran goalie; Harry Wipper, Nip O'Hearn, playing - coach Bob Thorpe, Curly Mason, Ross Powless, Russ Slater, Ron Ashbee, Dootch Vitarelli and Grant Burns.

Members of the Vancouver team are: Ed Hanson, Bus Byford, Jim Anderson, Jim Kinna, Jim Swanson, Ernie Smith, Bert Tice-Hurst, Elmer and Harry Buchanan, Jack Green, Dave Redline and Fred Whitaker.

Vic High Marathoners at Starting Mark

Training arduously for a heavy season, 22 members of Gordon Hartley's Victoria High School cross-country team were caught here as they lined up for a two-mile practice jaunt Friday. Hartley's 40-man team meets Provincial Normal School October 17 in the first formal meet of the season, followed by a meeting with University of British Columbia in November. Hartley reports his team is out to repeat the upset they scored over U.B.C. last year.

'LET'S GET OUT OF THE CELLAR'

Black Hawks Sing The Same Old Tune

PEMBROKE, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP)—Each year about this time, Chicago Black Hawks break up training camp with the old familiar theme: "We're going to make the playoffs this year," and each season since 1945-46 the National Hockey League club has been a woeful last, or next to it.

Now, the Hawks are taking the attitude that things should be done in order. This year it's "Let's get out of the cellar."

"I'm not predicting a thing," said newly-appointed coach Sid Abel. "All I can say is we'll be trying to get out of the cellar and into the playoffs."

The Hawks have gone through five coaches since evil days hit the club in 1946, and Abel, who built himself an all-star reputation with Detroit Red Wings as a centre ice man, took up the Chicago offer as a challenge last spring.

PLAYING COACH

The 33-year-old former Red Wing probably will be the league's only playing coach. "I plan to go in wherever and whenever I think I can help the club," he says.

Abel may be needed much sooner than he thinks. The Hawks open the schedule at Montreal against Canadiens October 9, and from pre-season indications, Dick Irvin's club should be up there from the opening face-off this year.

The Hawks go into this season with a shakeup from top to bottom.

Taking over as proprietors were Arthur W. Wirtz, president of Chicago Stadium; his business associates, James D. Norris and Norris' younger brother, Bruce. The Norris' gave up their interest in Detroit Red Wings — to their dad—to make the Hawks deal.

The same day the new ownership was announced trade winds started to blow.

FOUR-FOR-ONE

Harry Lumley departed after two seasons as goalkeeper and went to Toronto Maple Leafs in a four-for-one trade. Hawks got defenseman Gus Mortson, centre Cal Gardner, goalkeeper Al Rollins and forward Ray Hannigan.

During the off season Hawks also picked up defenseman Ed Kryzanowski and forwards Fred Glover and Mim Enio. And they brought up Pete Conacher, son of Charlie, from their junior A farm at Galt, Ont.

Abel plans to use six defensemen. He will pair off Morston with Al Dewsbury. Captain Bill Gadsby will team up with Clare Raglan. And the other blueline pair will be Lee Fogolin and Kryzanowski.

Gardner was put between Bill Mosienko on right wing and George Gee on left. Gus Bodnar, a Chicago veteran, will pivot for Glover and Conacher.

The other line is centred by Jim McFadden with Gerry (Doc) Couture and Pete Babando on the wings.

Then there's Fred Hucul, who can play either forward or defense. Jim Peters is another who probably will fit into a utility role.

Soccer Meeting To Rule on Wage Dispute

A meeting will be held in Vancouver Monday night for negotiations between the Coast Soccer League and the British Columbia Soccer Referees' Association.

The referees have threatened to take strike action if a proposal by the C.S.L. to cut referees' wages is carried through.

Referees have, in the past, received $12 per game and linesment $5.

It had been proposed by the C.S.L. to cut the payment to $10 for referees and $4 for linesmen. However, the B.C.S.R.A. has given notice its members will not work for these decreased wages.

The former wages will be paid for all week-end coast games and the final decision will be reached at Monday's meeting.

GRAHAM BIDS FOR WELTER CROWN TONIGHT

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 4 (BUP).—Billy Graham, the New York boxing master, makes his second bid for Kid Gavilan's welterweight title tonight when he meets the Cuban hawk in his own backyard.

A record crowd of 43,000 is expected to turn out at Gran Stadium in Havana for the 15-round title fight between the Manhattan Irishman and the champion from the sugar plantations of Camaguey.

Partly cloudy skies and some rain are predicted for the outdoor bout, and in the event of a postponement, the fight will be staged Sunday.

Uplands Scene of Winter Cup Golf

Following is the draw for the first round of the winter "A" cup competition Tuesday at Uplands Golf Club:

Canadian Horses Must Pay U.S. Licence Fee

No Canadian race horse is at present allowed to race in Canada without first obtaining a permit and paying a fee of $10 to a U.S. racing organization with headquarters in New York.

Saanich Council Friday was surprised to learn this from a letter written by Chris H. Harrison, Royal Oak, on behalf of horse breeders on Vancouver Island.

"I'm afraid it's true," said Reeve Joseph Casey.

"A good racket," commented councillor R. H. Wootten.

Mr. Harrison, in his letter, requested the council to see that Canadian thoroughbred horses are allowed to race in Victoria if a race track is erected at the corner of Burnside and Prospect Lake roads.

"Should you agree to the rezoning of the Burnside property, please do so upon the condition that the Canadian thoroughbred race horse duly registered in our own Canadian livestock records at Ottawa be permitted to race there without imposition," he wrote.

With the exception of one person, Mr. Harrison said, horse breeders on Vancouver Island endorsed his letter.

While sympathetic with the views of the writer, the council felt it had no power to do anything about the matter.

W.I.L. Group To Investigate Prairie Sites

CALGARY, Oct. 4 (CP)—Baseball mogul Harold Cundal has announced he has received word that a delegation representing the Western International League will be in Calgary soon to discuss the prairies baseball situation and the possible entry of Calgary and Edmonton in the W.I.L.

The west coast delegation will meet with Cundal and Sam Timmins of Calgary and John Ducey of Edmonton. It then is to report back to a W.I.L. meeting Nov. 11.

Cundal said the delegation will include Robert Abel of Tacoma, Wash., president of the W.I.L.; Reg Patterson, general manager of the Victoria club, and Bob Brown, president and general manager of Vancouver Capilanos.

Cundal, Timmins and Ducey have been making inquiries for the last few months about the possibilities of Calgary and Edmonton obtaining W.I.L. franchises.

Comeback Wings Face Decisive Test Tonight

ROCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 4 (BUP)—The battling Rochester Red Wings, who twice have fought off elimination in the little world series, meet the Kansas City Blues tonight in the seventh and final game of the annual minor league classic.

The Red Wings knotted the series at three victories each when they whipped Kansas City, 8-4, Friday night behind the steady hurling of Al Papai and Jack Crimian.

Ed Erautt, who already has posted two victories in the series, is expected to be back on the mound for Kansas City tonight, while Rochester may counter with Cot Deal or Jackie Collum.

Kansas City	010 000 030—4	7	2
Rochester	000 033 02x—8	9	1

Four Rangers Sign Contracts

GUELPH, Ont., Oct. 4 (BUP).—New York Ranger manager Frank Boucher today announced that four more Blues had signed contracts for the 1952-53 campaign — Wally Hergesheimer, Herb Dickenson, Nick Mickoski and Jim Conacher.

The signings lifted to 11 the number of Rangers in the fold for the current season, which will get under way next Thursday night at Detroit and Montreal.

Saxton Gains Split Decision for 32nd Win

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP).—Undefeated Johnny Saxton of Brooklyn used his left hand effectively Friday night to whip Ralph (Tiger) Jones of Yonkers, N.Y., and backed up his 32nd consecutive boxing victory.

Saxton, a 3-to-1 choice, won the exhibition 10-rounder by a split decision. Each weighed 150¼.

JOINS TIGERS

BUFFALO, Oct. 4 (BUP) — Frank Carswell, Buffalo Bisons' International Baseball League homerun king and leading batter for 1952, today became the property of the Detroit Tigers.

EIGHT ON FIRST TEAM

Wings Govern All-Star Game

DETROIT, Oct. 4 (AP).—It's virtually a case of Detroit Red Wings versus the field in the sixth annual National Hockey League all-star game here Sunday.

The "dream game" of hockey will be played in Detroit for the second time. The game itself is a charity contest, the bulk of the receipts being turned over to the National Hockey League Pension Society.

Selection of the teams is on the same basis as established last year. The first team is chosen by a press and radio panel and reinforced by players from the league's four United States cities. The second team is reinforced by players from Montreal and Toronto.

The Red Wings almost dominate the first team. In addition to the four Red Wings named to the team coach Tommy Ivan added four more Detroit players to his line-up. This means the Red Wings will have eight of the 17 players dressed for the first team. In addition, Ivan will coach the team, with Carl Mattson of Detroit acting as trainer.

Detroit's representatives are goalie Terry Sawchuk, defensemen Len (Red) Kelly and Bob Goldham, and forwards Gordie Howe, Ted Lindsay, Marty Pavelich, Tony Leswick and Reg Sinclair.

Other first-team defensemen include Doug Harvey, Montreal; Gus Mortson, Chicago; Leo Reise, New York, and Bill Quackenbush, Boston. New York's Chuck Rayner is the alternate goalie.

The remaining forwards include Bill Mosienko, Chicago; Elmer Lach, Montreal, and Ed Sandford, Dave Creighton and Johnny Peirson, Boston.

SIX-YEAR MEN

Four players among the 33 will be playing for the sixth time, a perfect record for all-star competition. They are Lindsay and Quackenbush on the first team and defenseman Jimmy Thomson of Toronto and Maurice (The Rocket) Richard of Montreal on the second sextet.

Lindsay also holds another distinction. He was the top scorer in all previous games, with a six-point total on four goals and two assists.

Mixed Foursome Golf at Gorge

The Gorge Vale Golf Club mixed foursomes tournament for the Hill Trophy will be held at Gorge Vale Golf Club Sunday.

Mrs. E. Hume and Mrs. J. R. Clark are defending champions.

FRALEY'S SERIES FACTS AND FIGURES

Chit-Chat and Chowder Party

BY OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP)—Fearless Fraley's facts and figures from the world series.

* * *

Jackie Robinson insists that there has been a lot of friendliness on the basepaths between the Yanks and Dodgers, pleasant gossip and chit-chat between pitches, etc. . . It should cease today with the Yankees trying to find out who threw the overalls in Mrs. Lopat's chowder. . .

* * *

One thing you can hand the Yankees—like they handed the Dodgers the second game Friday—is that they have dignity. Announcements to the patrons are couched in precise English. But over in Ebbetts Field, the announcer startled the folks in the opening game when he announced: "Please remove your clothing" adding, only after a perceptible pause, "from the railings. . ."

As the third game started at Yankee Stadium, we lost the peace again, or at least half of it. The announcer asked for a "minute of silence to pray for peace. . ." The "minute" lasted 30 seconds. . . Eddie Lopat, whose number is 30, lasted longer but not with much more effect. . .

In the first inning Friday, Phil Rizzuto argued with the plate umpire Larry Goetz about a called strike which, the Scooter insisted, had hit him on the shoe. Goetz finally called for the ball, inspected it carefully, showed Rizzuto with a scornful look that there was no mark on the ball, and won another argument. . . Rizzuto is switching to a new brand of polish. . .

Goetz had more first inning trouble, this time when he called a third strike on Joe Collins. Casey Stengel galloped up to the plate to argue but Goetz turned his back and bent down to whisk off the plate. Stengel bent right down beside him and they looked like a couple of guys combing the promenade after the last race at Belmont . . . Goetz must have said something harsh, because Casey knocked it off right quick . . .

In the third, when Furillo led off by whacking a ball into right field which bounced into the box seats for a ground rule double, the public address announcer warned: "Please do not reach for a ball in play." That's akin to the old golf admonition: "Don't pick up lost balls until they stop rolling."

It's a shame if poor little Billy Martin doesn't get a good slice of money out of the series, he hit his home run in the second game with one of Mickey Mantle's bats—and has been using a cast-off glove which Gerry Coleman left him when he went into the Marines . . . Imagine what he'd do with his own equipment . . .

Somebody came up to Pee-Wee Reese after his base-running "stole" Friday's game from the Yankees, and asked him why he had treated "that stranger Tom Gorman" so badly.

"We're the strangers here," Pee-Wee grinned.

Well, ain't that a fine way for a guest to act?

Tulyar Proves Real Champion

By ALAN HARVEY, Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 4 (CP)—Tulyar, a real champion. That headline from a British racing journal crystalizes the general opinion that the Aga Khan's Tulyar, a lazy, compactly-built colt, is just about the best horse to run in these islands since the war.

Some enthusiastic writers even compare him with undefeated Bahram, the great horse which won the 1935 Epsom Derby for the same owner.

Tulyar's record encourages such heresies. The son of Tehran ran several races this year and won them all, including the Derby, the King George VI and Queen Elizabeth stakes at Ascot and the St. Leger at Doncaster. He won at seven furlongs in the mud and he won at 1¼ miles when the going was good. He won by a neck or he won by four lengths, but he was always too fast for the others.

ST. LEGER TRIUMPH

But the race which set the seal on his fame, the race which British fans will remember for years to come, was the one he ran at Doncaster in the St. Leger, last of the season's classics. Boxed in behind the leaders in the home-stretch, Tulyar seemed to have little hope of catching the 66-1 shot Kingsfold.

Then veteran jockey Charlie Smirke switched him to the outside. Tulyar quickened his pace and swept past Kingsfold to win by an unbelievable three lengths.

As the familiar chocolate and green colors of the Aga Khan passed the post, Smirke stood up on his stirrups, swung his right arm in a wide arc and let it fall gently on Tulyar's neck—an exultant, spontaneous gesture that will remain a vivid mental image for thousands of racegoers.

Victory brought Tulyar's earnings to £76,417, nearly £20,000 more than any other horse has ever won in Britain. It served as a tonic to British racing. Native sons felt that after some bitter post-war experiences, the British thoroughbred had come back into his own.

DIMS FRENCH HORSES

Tulyar has French and Irish blood, but all his racing has been done in England and British fans regard him as a homebrew. As the season drew to a close, it seemed certain that for once the French challenge had been repelled—an unexpected turn of events after Thunderhead II's victory for France in the first of the year's classics last May.

Now the future looks brighter. Tulyar will be on hand again next year to take on France's toughest stayers, and the British-bred Kingsfold will also be available.

Tulyar gets his unusual name from Tulear, a port town in Madagascar where the Aga Khan has business interests. He is trained by Marcus Marsh, who also looked after Indian Hemp for owner Max Bell of Calgary. Indian Hemp ran unplaced in the English Derby and was shipped to the United States in September.

Maple Leafs Undergo Face-Lifting Program

ST. CATHARINES, Ont., Oct. 4 (CP).—Fans around the aNtional Hockey League may have to take a second look to recognize Toronto Maple Leafs this season.

Coach Joe Primeau, setting out on his second term with the Leafs, has on his training camp roster only eight veteran members from the team which finished third in the league race last season and then lost four straight games to Detroit Red Wings in the Stanley Cup playoffs.

Primeau's task is to mould a winning combination from the veterans and a collection of eager second-year men and rookies. He thinks he'll wind up with a contending and crowd-pleasing team. He's not guessing where they'll finish.

A key figure in the wholesale rebuilding job is good-natured Harry Lumley, the veteran goalie who came into the Toronto camp in a trade three weeks ago that sent goalie Al Rollins, defenseman Gus Mortson and centre Cal Gardner to Chicago Black Hawks who also acquired left wing Ray Hannigan who played last season for Pittsburgh Hornets, Toronto farm club in the American Hockey League.

When Primeau settled back to talk about his team's prospects he started off with a reference to Lumley. "To begin with, we have a good goalie," he said.

POSITIONS OPEN

Veterans Jim Thomson and Fern Flaman head the defence crew. When the Leafs open their home season against Chicago October 11, they will be joined by three others chosen from Hugh Bolton and Jim Morrison, who saw some N.H.L. action last season, and rookies Leo Boivin, Tim Horton and Frank Sullivan, up from Pittsburgh.

The shakeup has extended to every forward line on the team with none intact from last season, although the final setup has not yet been decided. Right wing Tod Sloan has been shifted from his old spot with Ted Kennedy and Sid Smith to centre between Harry Watson and Howie Meeker. Ron Stewart, Calgary-born right winger who played junior hockey last season, is playing with Kennedy and Smith.

So far, it's not definite that the Sloan switch will be final. Primeau emphasized the tryout at centre is experimental. When opening night comes along he may be back with Kennedy and Smith. This threesome was Toronto's most powerful scoring line last season.

BRAND-NEW LINE

One of the top forward lines in training is headed by blonde Bob Hassard, lanky native of Lloydminster, Sask., who played with the Hornets last season. He is flanked by Gord Hannigan, brother of Ray, on left wing and Bob Sabourin, up from Toronto St. Michael's College juniors, on right. Sabourin is a training replacement for George Armstrong, who was going great guns until he suffered a shoulder separation in the physical training. He will be out of action for six weeks or so.

Rudy Migay, Bob Solinger and Andy Barbe, all up from the Hornets, form another potent forward combination. Migay and Solinger both had turns with the Leafs last season.

MAX COMING BACK

The other veteran is Max Bentley who stayed home on his farm near Delisle, Sask., to clean up the wheat harvest before joining the team. He was expected to report this week.

NEAR-TRAGIC KNOCKOUT ENDED CARMINE VINGO'S CAREER

Rocky Almost Real 'Killer' Once

This is another article in a series on the life of Rocky Marciano by Jack Cuddy, United Press boxing writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (UP).—Rocky Marciano, our new heavyweight champion, is called a "killer" because of his slashing attack and his terrific punch. But he nearly earned that designation literally in his first important New York fight on December 30, 1949.

This was the night the Brockton slugger, 180¼ pounds, met young Carmine Vingo of the Bronx, 189, in one of the three 10-round bouts at Madison Square Garden. Vingo was regarded as a real "comer" because of 16 victories in his 17 professional fights. Seven were by knockouts. The 20-year-old Bronxite had a string of 12 straight.

After a thundering brawl in which Vingo was floored once each in the first and second rounds and Rocky was staggered twice, the Brockton blockbuster knocked out Vingo in the sixth. The impact of the blow caused a brain concussion that nearly resulted in death. Carmine was unconscious more than a week and he remained in St. Clare's Hospital more than six weeks. When he left the hospital he was still paralyzed slightly in his right arm and leg. He never fought again.

The spectacular fight with Vingo and the near-tragic knockout gave Marciano so much publicity, he was accepted as an opponent by the time unbeaten LaStarza was generally considered the world's outstanding young heavyweight prospect. Marciano won a disputed, split-decision over the New Yorker on March 24, 1950.

That victory established Rocky firmly on the big-time.

By then, manager Al Weill had become matchmaker for the International Boxing Club. Boxing commissions do not permit matchmakers to manage fighters. So Weill went through the motions of making his stepson, Marty Weill, the manager. But shrewd Al—one of the smartest men in the game—continued to direct Rocky from behind the scenes.

Meanwhile, trainer Charlie Goldman—a gnomelike, bespectacled little man—was trying to polish the very rough Rock. He changed him from an upright fighter to a crouching bob-weaver so he would be a more difficult target and so he could slide in close to an opponent's body. Marciano is very short-armed for a heavyweight. Jersey Joe Walcott, whom he knocked out recently, out-reached Rocky 74 inches to 67.

Rocky continued up the ladder, despite unexpectedly hard fights with Johnny Shkor, Ted Lowry, Keene Simmons and Red Applegate. He went into the ring an underdog against "white hope" Rex Layne of Utah on July 12 and knocked out the conqueror of Walcott in the sixth round. Three months later he was boosted to world-wide fame when he stopped ex-champion Joe Louis in the eighth round at the Garden.

He clinched a title shot at champion Walcott by knocking out the highly touted Harry Matthews in the second round at Yankee Stadium July 28.

He climaxed his remarkable unbeaten and untied climb to the top two weeks ago by rising in the first round from the first knockdown in his career and coming on to knock out Walcott in the 13th round of a truly great fight.

Cowichan Curling Club Retains Six Directors

All six directors of Cowichan Co-operative Curling Association were re-elected at the first general meeting of shareholders held recently.

The directors, re-elected by acclamation of approximately 50 members of the association present, were J. Lawrence Marshall, president; R. T. Harper, vice-president; J. E. Mould, J. B. Waller, Dr. W. D. McCauley and A. R. Mann.

It was decided that skating would be available for a month prior to the curling season and for a month after its close.

Fees for skating will be decided later. Curling fees for adult male league players were set at $30 for the season, but the fees for ladies and high school students were held in abeyance until a later meeting closer to the opening of the rink.

President Marshall gave a report on the progress of the building of the rink, and expressed the opinion it would be ready at the time scheduled.

It was hoped that the rink would be completed before the end of next month, and he announced that the Canadian Ice Machine Company would commence installing refrigeration machinery within a week or so.

The president also announced that approximately $41,000 worth of shares had been sold; this includes shares sold for material and labor supplied on the rink.

W. J. Pfeffer was elected auditor for the coming year.

SMYTHE KEEPS KENNEDY FROM ALL-STAR TILT

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (BUP)—Managing director Conn Smythe of the Toronto Maple Leafs has turned down a request by Dick Irwin to use centre Ted Kennedy on the second all-star team in the annual N.H.L. All-Star game in Detroit Sunday.

Irvin, coach of the second squad, originally had seletced centre Max Bentley of the Leafs, the slender playmaker [illegible] with a groin injury [illegible] during the prairie wheat [illegible].

Smythe said Irvin then asked for Kennedy and he refused.

"They can't keep the captain of our club waiting around to substitute at the last minute," Smythe said. "It will be the first time Kennedy has missed an annual all-star game."

NATURAL PLAYING ABILITY LOST

Over-Coaching May Be Soccer Millstone

LONDON, Oct. 4 (BUP) — One of the greatest soccer players ever to grace a football pitch caused trainers here to shudder and fans to speculate by stating flatly recently that too much coaching is one of the heaviest millstones aound British football at the present time.

The former England, Sunderland, Derby and Hull City star, Raich Carter sent "old-fashioned" club officials reeling for the smelling salts when he said: "Too much coaching threatens to sink natural playing ability under a weight of diagrams, words and theory.

"It is my honest belief that if a boy cannot kick a ball properly at the age of 10 he will never be able to do so." And Carter should know what he is talking about. A magnificent player in his younger days, and a successful player-manager recently with second-division Hull City, Carter was one of the greatest players to don the English football Jersey. And he was a self-taught player.

He turned out for England in schoolboy international matches and even at 16 years of age was the target for just about every league club manager in the British Isles before he finally signed for Sunderland — the club he led to a great cup final victory in 1937.

"It is easy to tell whether a youngster has real football artistry. Just throw him a ball and watch how he deals with it. You can tell from his balance whether he has real football ability or not."

Asked for his views on the influence of British coaches on Continental football, Carter snorted: "Did we really teach them so much? Tactics, maybe. But their uncanny skill is something that belongs exclusively to themselves.

"And all this talk about two-footed players! If it is not there we can teach it, say the coaches—few of whom can claim impressive playing records. Rubbish. True one can learn a lad to use the other foot but as long as he lives he will never be equally accurate with both feet."

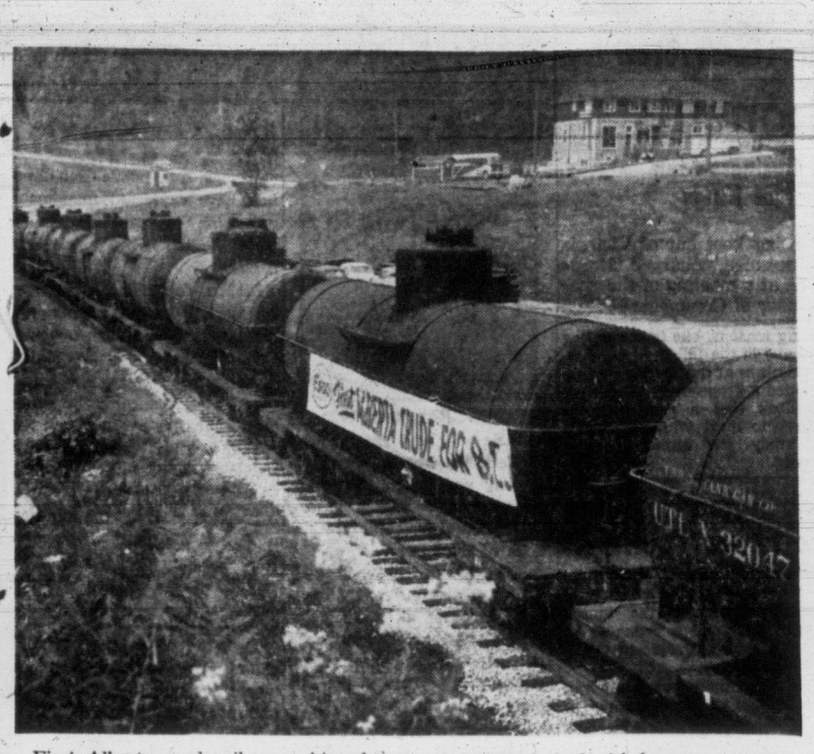
YOUR NEWSPAPER CARRIER . . . . HONOR HIM—HELP HIM

SATURDAY OCT. 4TH IS NEWSPAPER CARRIERS' DAY



First Alberta crude oil ever shipped to British Columbia arrived at Imperial Oil's refinery at Ioco this week in a 32-car train. This shipment is the first of daily trains carrying 5,400 barrels each expected into Ioco from the Leduc field during the coming year. The inaugural train was decked with banners announcing the first Alberta crude delivered to the coast plant and was run on to a new C.P.R. siding built at Ioco to handle the job of unloading the shipments of prairie oil.

Defense Spending Stepped Up

By BURKE CAHILL
Times Business Editor

Canadian expenditures on national defense in July and August were well ahead of last year, says the current issue of the "Commercial Letter" published by the Canadian Bank of Commerce. They were, however, still below the average monthly expenditure budgeted for last April. Until August government revenues were up from last year, reflecting the high level of incomes and purchases. Due largely to decreased yields from corporate income taxes August revenues declined slightly.

Canada's cumulative surplus in merchandise foreign trade at the end of August was nearly $244,000,000 compared with a deficit last year at the same time of $336,000,000. In part the improvement is based on the 10% drop in prices of goods imported this year. Volumewise Canada's imports are slightly higher this year.

Canadian farmers are expected this year to harvest all-time record crops of wheat, barley and soya beans; near record crops of rye, sugar-beets and shelled corn; and above average outturns of most other field crops. The expected wheat outturn deserves special mention, at 675,000,000 bushels it is more than 100,000,000 larger than the previous record set in 1928.

HIGHWAYS

In Canada there is now a motor vehicle for every five people: in 1939 it was one for eight. Nearly 75% of vehicles presently registered are passenger cars, including taxis. Average mileage per vehicle is higher than 10 or 20 years ago. In the past 10 years gasoline consumption, a gauge of the growth in traffic, has doubled. Growth of the trucking industry is evidenced by the registration of commercial vehicles — 650,000 in 1950 as against 323,000 five years earlier.

In addition, it must be remembered that road carriers are becoming larger, heavier and more capacious and need paved roads with good grades and easy curves not found on too many Canadian highways.

Two years ago—later figures are not available — about one-third of all commercial vehicles were registered in Ontario, the most populous and most industrialized area. Almost another third were registered in the prairie provinces where large-scale highly mechanized farms predominate.

The need for highways in Canada for commerce, pleasure and civilian defense has been growing at an almost overwhelming rate, but construction of surfaces of adequate grading and curvature has not kept pace. In 1950 there were 567,000 miles of roads in Canada; about 25,000 miles were paved, comprising about 15% of all surfaced roads. Paved highway has expanded at a faster rate than other types of surface. It is now about two and a half times as extensive as in 1930, while the mileage of surfaced roads has doubled, and total mileage is less than 50% greater. Total vehicle registrations, however, have little more than doubled in the same period, but commercial vehicle registrations are almost four times as numerous.

Until the Trans-Canada Highway Act was passed in 1949 the federal government had (with certain exceptions) left the financing of roads to the provinces. Roughly speaking, the cost of the Trans-Canada Highway will be borne half and half by the federal and the provincial governments. It will be a first-class all-weather road across Canada by the shortest east-west route—not a super-highway. It is scheduled for completion in 1956 but may be delayed by shortage of supplies and the capacity of the Canadian construction industry.

The article examines in some detail the whole question of financing highway costs and touches on the use of toll-roads for heavily-traveled routes.

In Canada the lag between highway construction and traffic growth has been widening each year, as it has in the United States. There, in spite of continually larger sums spent each year by various governments, fewer miles of highway are built due to rapidly rising costs.

In assessing Canada's highway requirements the problem is two-fold: Use—generally proportionate to population—is the primary criterion. Secondly, the high rate of industrial expansion requires the development of natural resources. This has created an insistent demand for the extension of Canada's highways to more remote areas. Highways to open up such areas are essential to the continued growth of Canada's industrial economy.

Oil Company Team Strike

EDMONTON, Oct. 4 (CP)—The three-company team of Canadian Fina Oil Limited, West Canadian Petroleums Limited and Ross Oils Alberta Limited today announced discovery of an oil pool in the area of north Stettler, which is 95 miles southeast of Edmonton.

Officials said the well entered the D-3 at 5,394 feet and the 35-foot D-E zone yielded oil at the rate of 50 barrels an hour.

Top Men From Western Coal Industry Here

Top-flight executives of Canada's foremost coal producers arrived in Victoria Friday to judge a four-month-long contest, sponsored by the Victoria Wood & Coal Co. and Fairbanks-Morse Ltd., which ends today.

Chairman of the judging committee is J. M. Davidson, general manager of Lethbridge Collieries and internationally-known mining expert, a member of the mining institutes of Canada, United States and Great Britain.

In co-operation with Fairbanks-Morse, Victoria Wood & Coal invited letters over the past four months from customers on the merits of the F-M coal stoker. Prizes will go to the letters selected by the judges on the basis of content and presentation.

To be given to the winners are three Fairbanks-Morse automatic coal stokers, valued at over $400 each, five tons of stoker coal and supplies of briquettes.

Judging the customers' contest here today sponsored by Victoria Wood & Coal Co. is Willaim Bird, general manager of the West Canadian Collieries Ltd., Blairmore, Alta. He is visiting the city with other top executives of western Canada's coal-mining industry.

Hudson's Bay Shareholders Plan Meeting

WINNIPEG, Oct. 4 (CP)—The Hudson's Bay Company will hold a special shareholders' meeting Oct. 28 to consider establishment of a Canadian register and transfer office.

The "extraordinary general court" will also consider resolutions to increase the company's authorized capital to £6,000,000; the issuance of 2,492,224 paid up £1 shares, to be distributed one for each share held of record Oct. 13, and the clarification and revision of some company by-laws.

The company also announced an interim trading dividend of 4 per cent and an interim distribution from land of 2½ per cent, payable to shareholders of record Oct. 13.

Simpsons Mail Order Firm Sold

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP)—Shareholders today unanimously approved the sale of the Simpsons, Limited, mail-order business to the new Simpsons-Sears Limited Company.

E. B. Burton, president of Simpsons, called the special meeting of class A and B shareholders to ratify the Sept. 18 agreement between Simpsons and Sears Roebuck of Chicago to set up a joint company to handle Simpsons' mail-order business.

Commenting on the effect of proposed changes in the capital set-up of Simpsons, Mr. Brown said the company now would have to earn only $1,025,000 a year to satisfy the claims of prior securities. Formerly, the company had to earn $2,602,000.

He said the present dividend of at least $2 a share seemed "reasonably assured." Company earnings should provide about $1,000,000 in addition to the dividend payment, he added.

MONTREAL, Oct. 3 (CP) — Government of Canada issues showed a slightly better tone on the Montreal bond markets today. Trading was quiet.

Low Markets Hold Trading Prices Down

By HARRY KINGDOM
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The Toronto stock exchange this week added an extra half hour to its trading schedule—but no one seemed to use it.

The volume of shares traded appeared, in fact, to decline slightly. In the previous three weeks, an average of about 2,107,000 shares were traded daily. This week the daily average was down to 2,098,000 shares.

Some observers found in this lower volume a ray of encouragement for a stronger market.

The trend in the last four weeks has been downward. An average of all four indices kept by the exchange — industrials, golds, base metals and western oils — shows a decline of 14.98 points in the four weeks.

NO CONFIDENCE

The encouragement stems from a theory that a heavy volume of shares traded in a declining market indicates a lack of confidence. Conversely, a light volume on days when the market declines and a heavier volume on days when it rises should indicate a confidence that the market is due to rise soon.

A survey of the last four weeks with this theory in mind shows:

In the three weeks between September 8 and September 26, the average share volume on declining days was 2,387,000. On days when the market rose or was mixed the share volume averaged 1,827,000. This heavier volume on low days should indicate a weak market.

But this week, the picture changed slightly. On four declining days, the share volume average was 2,000,000. On the one mixed day, the volume averaged 2,197,000 shares. The heavier volume on a better day fostered the belief that the downward trend is petering out.

These figures, of course, provide only an indication and the value of the theory and deductions from it will be seen in the next few weeks.

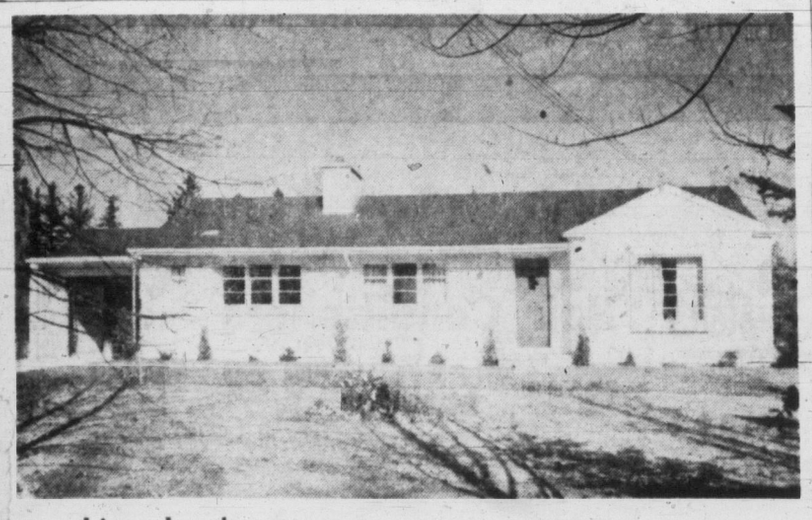
A look at Toronto and Montreal activity this week showed prices mixed in Toronto with industrials and papers weaker in Montreal. On Tuesday, a decline set in in both centres and continued until papers and industrials turned mixed in Montreal Thursday. Friday, both Toronto and Montreal reported further declines.

MARKET TREND

New York trading was quiet all week with prices mixed on Monday. A decline set Tuesday, continuing until a demand for rails and television shares steadied prices Thursday. Prices remained steady Friday.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto stock exchange indices showed industrials down 3.81 at 314.67, golds down 1.18 at 86.70, base metals down 5.04 at 180.60 and western oils down 4.43 at 120.88.

In the Montreal averages, banks were down .30 at 31.20, utilities down .1 at 87.6, industrials down 4.9 at 203.0, combined down 3.3 at 164.5, papers down 21.92 at 672.14 and golds down 1.91 at 64.63.



Long Lines Lend Wider Feeling

It looks big because it spreads out wide across the lot. The long horizontal roof lines complement the wide feeling. The entire exterior design is quite simple.

The L-shaped living-dining area commands a view both front and rear, with the windows toward the street made smaller for more privacy.

Including the basement this house contains 18,548 cubic feet — without basement 13,340 cubic feet. Garage contains 3,380 cubic feet.

A study in greatness...
THE SCALPEL, THE SWORD
by Ted Allan and Sydney Gordon

Dr. Norman Bethune was a Canadian, a humanitarian, a renowned surgeon. His biographers describe him as a man who "lived on many levels, had many careers and became the stormy petrel of some of the decisive happenings of our era." As a highly paid Montreal practitioner he was an outspoken advocate of socialized medicine. He took his great skill to the Spanish Civil War and later to China where he saved countless lives and lost his own.

Victoria-West-Esquimalt Carriers Tops in City

The 16 Times carriers at circulation station B, Victoria West-Esquimalt, were jubilant today at winning lengthy-service contest against 11 other city stations. Boys went through whole contest period without one service complaint.

NATIONAL NEWSPAPER WEEK

Spotlight on Youthful Vendors Who Make Most Public Contacts

By DON INGHAM

The most important "man" in the newspaper business—the boy who sells papers on the streets, and delivers them to thousands of homes — today faces the spotlight in National Newspaper Week.

To 95 per cent of newspaper readers he is the paper. He is the sole contact with the huge organization behind him, and if he fails in his job, the paper fails. He carries the final responsibilities of putting the paper where the public can read it.

Most of the newspaper boys are alert young businessmen who constantly seek to expand their business, and to give the service the public desires.

One outstanding group is the carrier crew working out of the Times' Victoria West-Esquimalt station. The boys took part in a lengthy contest with 11 other stations, and went through the entire period without one service complaint.

The street salesman have a selling job rather than one of delivery, and one of the best is Billy Turner, 12, who has had more harrowing experiences in his short life than most adults five times his age.

BILLY TURNER
. . . life of adventure

Billy was born in Shanghai, where his father was a member of the municipal police force. When the city fell to the Japanese, Billy, his parents and younger sister were sent to an internment camp for three years.

"There was only one main meal a day and most of the time it was beans," he recalled. "Nothing but beans, beans, beans for eight months steady."

A grade 8 student at St. Louis College, and showing no ill effects from his internment, he wants to be an air force fighter pilot.

Like Billy, most newspaper boys have lofty ambitions. Already they are on their way to attaining their goals, as shown by their willingness to do their share in an important undertaking—the daily distribution of a newspaper.

GRUNT, GROAN—PROMENADE ALL

37 Pro-Rec Classes Start Again Oct. 6

By PETE LOUDON

Pro-Rec springs to life again Oct. 6, when 37 separate classes of popular "groan and grunt" sessions start throughout sports centres in the Greater Victoria area.

Liniment sales will be heavy as local men and women turn out for the free classes conducted by the Physical Education and Recreation Branch of the Department of Education.

Women over the age of 16 are invited to work out the kinks developed from summer leisure with keep-fit exercises, games, square and folk dancing, tumbling, vaulting, swimming, diving, life-saving and bowling. If they have any strength left, they can learn tap and elementary ballet dancing as well.

Male members can rebuild their sagging sinews with fundamental gymnastics, tumbling, vaulting and weight - lifting. Springboards, trampolines, rings, highbars, parallel bars and the aerial trapeze will also be available with instruction for the uninitiated. Swimming, diving, lifesaving and water polo classes are planned for the "would-be Weismullers."

Basketball and volleyball enthusiasts can practice under skilled tutelage through the appointment of John Clark, at classes to be held Tuesday evenings in the Oak Bay High School gym.

Clark is classed with the best basketball players in Canada and is well known to Victoria basketball fans. Bill O'Brien and Dan Francis, group originals, will conduct the men's gymnastic classes.

Women's bowling meet is scheduled for Mondays in the afternoon, with Mrs. Gwen Joyce in charge. Mrs. Betty Garnot will instruct the blind people's bowling league on Saturday afternoons. These activities will be held at Gibson's Bowladrome.

Both sexes will "promenade all" at Thursday night square dancing sessions in the Crystal Garden under Mrs. Gwen Joyce, while Mrs. Helen Tregellas will lead classes at Willows School.

Mrs. Betty Garnot will hold a square dancing session as well as give swimming lessons each week for the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

The full list of instructors include: Gwen Joyce, senior instructress; Betty Garnot, Edith Aubel, Helen Tregellas, Zoe Richards, Dell Leich, Joan Kelter, Bill O'Brien, Dan Francis, Bill Angus, George Smith, Vic Dawson, John Clark. Barrie Morgan, Fred Atherley and Ed Kelter, who is the regional supervisor and chief instructor for Vancouver Island.

Race Track Plan Blocked Temporarily

Technicality Stops Saanich Re-Zoning

The application of the Royal Portage Parks Ltd. for zoning of certain lands on Burnside and Prospect Roads for the construction of a race track, was rejected by Saanich Council Friday.

In rejecting the application, the council made it clear that it was not closing the door to any other zoning application the company may wish to make in connection with the race track.

Reeve Joseph Casey pointed out that the council was "only refusing the application in its present form" and is prepared to consider any other application for the zoning of some 300 acres of land involved in the farming area.

The council's decision was based on a recommendation from the Saanich Town Planning Commission which reported that the application was not acceptable "as it is worded."

Reeve Casey said that the company realized that its application was badly drawn up and is now preparing a new application to be submitted eventually to the council.

Present at the meeting was Dr. J. M. Thomas, chairman of the Saanich Town Planning Commission, who explained why the commission had refused to accept the zoning application.

"The application was ambiguous and definitely called upon the municipality to carry out certain road projects," said Dr. Thomas. "A whole section of the application was devoted to alleged things the company planned to do."

Dr. Thomas said at the same time the firm did not commit itself to carry out any of these plans.

Reeve Casey said he agreed with Dr. Thomas that the firm backing the race track scheme had "sugar-coated the pill a little too much."

"What we want is the pill without the sugar," said the Reeve. "We want to know just what the firm intends to do and what they want."

Heavenly Peep Show Available to Public

Every Saturday night between 8 and 10, from now until the end of November, the public may view interesting celestial objects through the 72-inch telescope at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory.

An astronomer of the observatory staff will be on hand for each of the public sessions.

Britain Won't Pour Drinks 'on the House'

LONDON (CP)—John Boyd-Carpenter, financial secretary to the treasury, has rejected a proposal that British beer be sold duty free to U.S. army canteens in Britain.

A London brewery firm said 100,000 cases of American beer, each containing 24 12-ounce cans, are imported duty free to U.S. troops in Britain each month. Surely, said the firm, Britain could supply the same kind of beer at $2.50 a case, thus earning $3,600,000 a year.

Promoter Condemns Victoria Opponents

'Bunch of Small-Minded Business Men' Blamed for Spoiling Sport of Kings

Racing, the sport of kings, is being kept out of Victoria by "a bunch of small-minded businessmen," charged George Irvine, Vancouver racing promoter, at a meeting of the civic affairs group of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce Friday.

He said his group, representing United States racing interests, was prepared to finance a race track here for Royal Portage Parks Ltd. if a site could be obtained in Victoria.

"You have a wonderful place here," he said, "ideally suited for racing. But there is too much opposition to a track here. If we can't get a site here, however, we will take our proposition to Nanaimo or elsewhere up-Island."

Mr. Irvine claimed that racing today is run by gentlemen. "The Queen races," he said, "Winston Churchill and other world figures have their stables."

WORTH A MILLION

He declared that Victoria could have a "million-dollar industry" and a source of permanent attraction for visitors if race tracks were constructed here.

A government commission to regulate racing here would be "the way to ensure that the business was conducted properly at all times," Mr. Irvine said.

He claimed that the public of Victoria and farmers, breeders and all related businesses would benefit from the racing centre.

This city could again have a fall fair, he claimed, with two racing seasons, one in the spring and one in the fall.

Members of the chamber group adopted a proposal by Courtenay Haddock that a committee be struck to meet with Mr. Irvine to study the situation more closely.

Job Slump Held Due To Fewer Tourists

Unemployment showed a slight increase last week due partly to the slackening of the tourist trade, C.A. Mudge, manager of the National Employment Office here, said today.

However, there were some vacancies for skilled workers, he said. These included typewriter repairman, millwright, cement finisher, platers, fur cutter, watch and clock repairman and taxi drivers.

Mr. Mudge said in the women's section there was a demand for hairdressers and domestic workers.

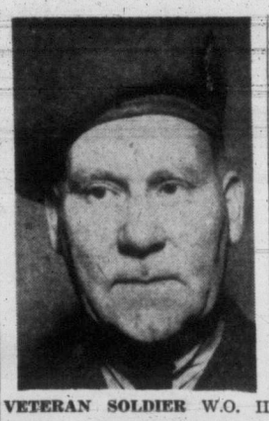
He also reported that the demand for stenographic help had eased to a point where the majority of vacancies are for juniors at junior wages.

EARLY BIRDS GET WARNING

Two drivers for Shepherd's Dairy were stopped by city police officers at 5.30 and 5.40 this morning and warned to stop delivering milk until 6 a.m.

A city by-law prohibits delivery of milk until 6 a.m.

A driver of a rival firm telephoned police to report one of the cases.



VETERAN SOLDIER W.O. II Drysdale will be presented with the Canadian Forces Decoration for long and valued service at Tuesday night's parade of the 40th Technical Squadron, R. C. E. M. E. of the reserve army, by Maj-Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C., M.P. A two-war veteran, he is chief armourer of the Reeme squadron, a noted rifle marksman and instructor and has taught many young soldiers in the fine points of bugling.

Greater Victoria Dog Obedience Training Club reports that fall classes are full, with a waiting list of 11 dogs and owners for the winter course, next January.

The novice classes have been divided into big dogs and little dogs. In the "big dog" classes are six Great Danes and four other "large" animals; the little dogs range from cockers to pekingese.

Development Along Highway Meets Protest

Victoria Automobile Club directors have expressed unanimous opposition to "ribbon development" on the new Patricia Bay Highway.

Ribbon development is when commercial establishments are permitted along a highway. Instead of having any depth, the development strings out along the highway, impeding the movement of traffic.

The directors have informed Public Works Minister P. A. Gaglardi of their objection.

The club also told the minister it favors the most direct and feasible route for the new highway between Langford and the city.

The first Canadian Baptist churches were in the Maritimes where individual Baptists were known as early as 1752.

KEEP IT UNDER YOUR HAT

Save this stunt until two or three bona fide tricks have been performed, then take the floor. Place three nuts, or cookies or pieces of candy on the table. Cover each with a borrowed hat.

Make a great point of having nothing concealed in the hands or up the sleeves, and profess your willingness to have the audience mark the three articles so there can be no question of a substitution.

Then lift up each hat in succession, eat the nut or piece of candy, and restore the hat to its original position. This done, pick up the hats one at a time, and show each to be empty. Now announce that you will bring the three nuts, et al, under whichever hat the company chooses.

The choice being made, you do so. How?

Solution: Simply put the hat on your head, which certainly brings the three articles under it.

Uncle Bob Times Club

What a big pile of entries to judge this week! There are photographs, drawings, colored pictures, scores of dotographs, stories and essays on "holidays" and "back to school." Also, there are 20 new members of the Uncle Bob Times Club this week.

First we will announce five prizes for coloring the dotograph. Some of the winners are new members. Here is the list:

Linda Otty, 746 Humboldt St., South Park School.

Frances Martin, 2721 Tudor Rd., Frank Hobbs School.

Lynda Colbert, 812 Island Rd., Monterey School.

Sylvia Dorothy Winterburn, 2641 Grahame, Quadra Primary.

Sara Catherine Mattick, Box 2396 R.R. 4, Cordova Bay.

That's all for the dotograph, but the contest wasn't limited to the dotograph coloring and as we promised prizes every week there are five more prizes to announce for the week we missed when Uncle Bob was away on a holiday. Here they are:

Margaret Keay, 206 Niagara St.

Patrick Warrington, 345 Irving Rd., Margaret Jenkins School.

Linda Rush, 784 Third St., Sidney.

Roberta Ogden, 20 Helmcken Rd., View Royal.

Ronald Wilson, 2806 Austin Ave., Craigflower School.

The five last named are all on our list of artists. Linda is the youngest of all. She is only six.

Patrick Warrington who is 10 years old, sent in one of the best entries received for a long time. He drew and colored some tropical flowers, a crane, a parrot and a tropical fish.

For today that winds up the prizewinners but leaves some entries still to judge.

There are some snapshots and travel stories and the essays on school and holidays.

More prizewinners will be announced from these and some of the snapshots will be printed in this column.

In the meantime remember the contest is still open to do what you like best to do and keep those pumpkins growing. Ronald Wilson writes in to say he has a big one.

Gloria Mobey sent in a page cartoon of the Times office on pumpkin judging day.

It was really funny.

We put it up on the notice board and the reporters had a lot of laughs over it.

She also sent in a song "Oh You'll Have a Lovely Pile of Pumpkins" to the tune of a "Lovely Bunch of Coconuts."

I wish we had room to print it all.

Crown Jewels' Amazing Adventures

Remarkable History Recalled as Precious Stones Leave Tower for Coronation Renovation

The British Crown Jewels will soon be undergoing renovation in readiness for the Coronation. They owe their immense value not only to the vast number of precious stones they contain, but also to the astonishing adventures they have undergone.

By ARTHUR NETTLETON

The Tower of London will shortly lose for a time its most dazzling series of exhibits—the Crown Jewels of England. This collection of priceless articles will be removed temporarily, to undergo a thorough examination and renovation for the Coronation.

They are so historic and irreplaceable that even to give a provisional estimate of their total market value is impossible. But a single jewel from the Imperial State Crown has been stated to have a current value of £100,000, and whilst it is true that this particular gem is the famous irregular ruby once worn by the Black Prince, there are 2,762 other precious stones in this crown alone.

Other articles in the regalia are adorned with further jewels of great worth, and the importance of these symbols of the monarchy is further increased by the amazing adventures which some of them have undergone.

With one or two exceptions the items in the present-day regalia are not the ones used at coronations before the restoration, yet they have direct links with the English sovereigns who reigned nearly 1,000 years ago.

FROWNED ON BY COMMONWEALTH

The old crown jewels, some of which had been in use from the time of Edward the Confessor, were broken up by order of the Commonwealth parliament 300 years ago, yet the new regalia fashioned for the Restoration of Charles II was made largely like the old. Moreover, many of the jewels torn from Charles the First's regalia were recovered after 1660 and incorporated in the new regalia.

The St. Edward's crown used at coronations since that time, and with which Queen Elizabeth II will be crowned in Westminster Abbey, is virtually a replica of the one destroyed, and many of the stones were originally in the old crown.

Among the objects which have come down intact from before the commonwealth are the ampulla and the anounting spoon. These were mysteriously spirited away when their destruction seemed likely, and they were preserved by ardent royalists until the restoration.

USED 1,400 YEARS AGO

The ampulla, a golden eagle nine inches high containing precious oil, is actually the oldest item among the coronation plate. It was used when English kings were crowned 1,400 years ago.

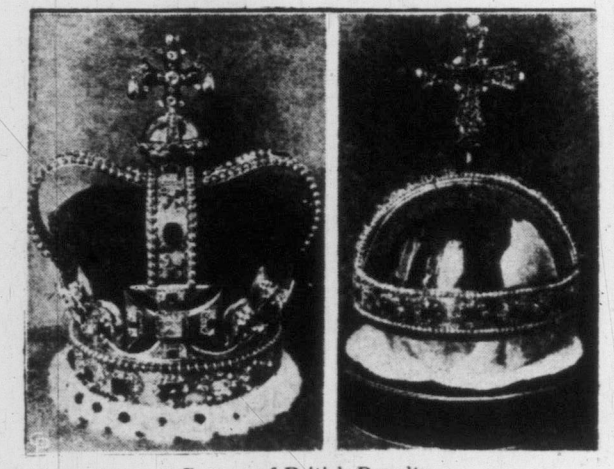
Its hiding-place during the commonwealth is thought to have been in Westminster Abbey—an appropriate spot, for until the reign of Henry III the regalia of England was always kept there. For their greater safety Henry had the crown jewels removed to the Tower of London after he had discovered that some items had been sold to a traveling tradesman by one of the Abbey monks.

The Tower had been the official home of the regalia ever since. Only in wartime, or for coronation purposes, have the crown jewels been transferred elsewhere.

TRIED TO STEAL THEM

Since they were housed there, only once has a serious attempt been made to steal them—and that was nearly 300 years ago when the notorious Captain Blood disguised himself as a clergyman and persuaded the assistant keeper to let him and three companions visit the jewel house.

Here the conspirators overpowered the custodian, stole his keys, and made off with part of the regalia. Fortunately the alarm was raised and the gang found their escape blocked by yeomen. The astonishing sequel was that Blood was forgiven and granted a place in the royal bodyguard at a salary of £500 a year.



Crowns of British Royalty.

The Imperial State Crown, which is lighter in weight than the St. Edward's Crown and which was worn by the Sovereign on state occasions as well as during part of the coronation ceremony, dates only from 1838. But some of the gems set in it are of considerable historic interest.

In addition to the Black Prince's ruby it contains pearls from Queen Elizabeth's carriage and part of the famous Star of Africa presented to the people of the Transvaal. Also included is a beautiful sapphire once in the coronation ring of Edward the Confessor.

GIVEN TO A BEGGAR

Legend gives this stone a remarkable history. The story states that Edward gave this ring to a beggar who pleaded for alms. Years later two English pilgrims in the Holy Land met an old man who asked them to return to their king a gift which he (the old man) had received from him.

It was the sovereign's ring, and it was returned to Westminster Abbey, where it was soon accredited with miraculous powers.

One decision that will have to be made about the Crown Jewels is the future of the Koh-i-Noor diamond. This celebrated stone with a fabulous history is today in the crown worn by the Queen Mother at the last coronation, but as Queen Elizabeth is Sovereign and will wear the St. Edward's Crown or the Imperial State Crown, the one containing the Koh-i-Noor will not be needed at the forthcoming ceremony.

The suggestion has been made that the most important jewels in this crown might be transferred to some other articles in the regalia.

Entire re-setting of the gems in the British crowns is, indeed, no novelty. The crown worn by the present Queen Mother at the 1937 coronation was re-designed for the event.

"MOUNTAIN OF LIGHT"

The Koh-i-Noor ("Mountain of Light") diamond had a sinister reputation before it come into British hands in 1849, but since its removal from the Far East it seems to have lost its curious powers. After it was presented to Britain by the East India Company it was put in the care of Sir John Lawrence, governor of the Punjab, who placed it in an old unlocked dispatch case.

There it remained forgotten until in 1851 its transfer to the Great Exhibition in London was requested. It suffered further indignities by being unskilfully cut, and after the closing of the exhibition it was stored in the vaults of the Bank of England. Whenever Queen Victoria required it, the gem was sent to Buckingham Palace by cab.

Another strange facet in the story of the regalia is that, a year before the last coronation, a search was made for some articles believed to be missing from the list. They are part of the Crown Jewels of Charles I, and the treasure hunt took place at Knaresborough Castle, Yorkshire.

It was prompted partly by the knowledge that the ill-fated monarch was commanded to give up his regalia at Knaresborough, where he stayed for a time during his journey as a prisoner on his way to London. In a house near the castle he drew up a list of the crown jewels which he was handing over.

As this list omits several articles known to be in the collection at that time, it is surmised that these were probably taken away secretly and hidden nearby.

Yorkshire antiquarians took up the trail in 1936 when they heard of the existence of a donkey-skin map on which the reputed hiding-place (in Karnesborough Castle) was marked. They were unable to locate this vital document, as it had passed through several hands. But many people remain convinced that it still exists and that some of the lost crown jewels may yet be found.

NATURE TALKS — ROBERT CONNELL

Fall Brings Change In Woodland Corners

With the arrival of fall the number of species of wild flowers grows noticeably smaller, and the spring and summer ones are at least partially replaced by others. This is, of course, largely due to the decrease in moisture; some are still to be found in wet or moist places. But others owe their persistence to shade and are to be found in the more open parts of the forest from early summer to mid-autumn. Some of these I had pleasure in coming upon in the fir woods in the first third of August.

Here, for example, is Tiarella trifoliate, the three-leaved mitrewort. It belongs to the saxifrage family, but the white flowers are very small and conspicuous chiefly by their numbers as they grow in open formation on the upper part of the slender stems. They are small and rather like minute white bells, the stamens protruding conspicuously and thus giving them a very graceful appearance. The stems are clothed with small hairs, and are rather reddish towards the summit, and this color is conspiculously diffused on the tiny flower stems. It blossoms from June onwards and is one of our very graceful members of the forest floor flora.

SMALL MUSK

That there is some moisture in the woods at this season is, I think, shown by the presence near the mitrewort of a small plant of musk in flower or, rather, bearing in this instance a single flower, unspotted according to its species. Close by was a cluster of prunella, the flowers a very delicate mauvish blue instead of the strong violet-blue borne in open places. This color is not an uncommon variation of the normal—indeed, at Jordan River I have found a form with pink flowers, a very pretty variation.

This prunella, or heal-all, is so common a roadside flower that it is apt to be overlooked and put down among the "weeds," but it belongs to the family of the mints, so fruitful in plants both pleasant to eye and taste, and beneficial. This plant owes its name to its reputation as a cure for the quinsy, "prunella" being apparently derived from an old name for this distressing complaint.

LIKE BUTTERCUPS

Near by grew a cluster of yellow avens, a rather buttercup-looking flower, belonging, however, to the rose family. Its curious jointed styles are worth examination with a glass—this particular species, the large-leaved, has the upper joint quite smooth and free from hairs. It is also known as "herb-bennet" or the blessed herb. This suggests what is quite true that the plant has a long history of beneficial use in medicine of the homely herbal kind—in fact the peculiar name "avens" is believed to mean "antidote" and to refer to its efficacious use not only against disease but against evil spirits.

LIFTING THE LID OFF LONDON

Watch for Grey Eyes When You Seek Gunman

BY EX-DETECTIVE ROBT. FABIAN

In 12 months Scotland Yard has confiscated 2,400 firearms, including 1,613 pistols and revolvers and 96,700 live bullets and small bombs.

There are enough lawless guns in London's underworld today to start a revolution.

But there are few gunmen. Only 19 armed robberies among London's crowded streets and suburbs last year. New York exceeds this every day.

Why? I know dozens of crooks in London who carry guns. But they will never be real killers.

I have tackled many gunmen in my service with the Yard. And I think most experienced policemen will agree that the true gunman falls into as recognizable a pattern as a tiger with its stripes.

He is under 30. His eyes are grey. Unless he is insane, the brown-eyed criminal does not carry a gun with intent to use it. He may think he does. But the showdown proves him wrong.

The man who shoots to kill has grey eyes.

I have never known a fat gunman, nor an athletic one. Nor one who was popular with his underworld friends.

The true gunman is always slender, with agitated appearance, like a man who has been kept waiting. He is solitary.

Also, he loves his gun. He cleans it frequently. When I arrested the gunman who did London's first daylight armed robbery of a jeweler's in Oxford Street he was busy loading his gun in his bedroom. He had polished every cartridge until it glittered.

If he hadn't been so particular his gun might have been loaded when we burst his door in.

THE KILLER

There was a killer who tried to shoot me in a taxi ride. When I got him to the station we found oil smears on his handkerchief. He had been cleaning his gun a few minutes before he was arrested.

Both these men had grey eyes.

You can easily buy a gun in London's underworld. Five pounds will buy you a big revolver. Ten pounds will get a slender automatic pistol, to fit the pocket. They are war souvenirs, or smuggled in from France, Belgium, Eire.

And with a gun, the crook—you might think—has a bigger advantage in London than any other capital city of the world.

The police are unarmed. London goes about its daily affairs without guns. Less than 10 citizens in every million are permitted to carry pistols in the streets.

The average cashier, who collects his big payroll from the banks on Thursdays or Fridays, may be permitted to carry a gun.

But it is nearly always an ungainly, short-muzzled gun, with fluff in the chambers and grease in the barrel. Nobody bothers to clean it.

Seven cashiers out of 10 could not hit a doorway at 10 paces.

But still the gunman hesitates. And I think I can tell you why.

It is because every man in the underworld of London knows that if he pulls a gun on a policeman, he must shoot to kill.

There is no alternative. Every police officer who meets a criminal with a gun, will go in bare-handed and try to take it from him.

Sometimes the policeman succeeds. Sometimes he dies. But there is never a time when he does not try.

I had to do it three times, in my 28 years. Some policemen do it more often. Others, mercifully, never at all. But wherever they walk their beats, day or night, they wait ready to do this dangerous job.

NOT A CHANCE

And the criminals know that in London—and in all England—a loaded revolver is less use than a water-pistol in evading arrest.

We have never once failed to arrest a crook who has shot a policeman. We just don't go to bed until he is in the cells, with his boots off, and his gun in the C.I.D. room.

I have seen dozens of guns taken recently from criminals — mostly youths. Home-made guns and war souvenirs. I have seen automatic pistols with photos of bathing beauties on the handles. I have seen revolvers fixed with flashlights for shooting policemen in the dark.

But they are seldom used. Nor will they be. The gunman in London doesn't stand a chance. There are 16,000 men in the Metropolitan Police. He cannot shoot them all.

But if you should happen to meet a thief with a gun here are some rules:

Never try to rush him. The more nervous and young he looks, the more likely he is to shoot you.

The smartest thing to do is give him what he wants—but make sure you get a good, clear discription of him. Be certain you can pick him out again.

If you must be a hero at all costs, then these are the professional ways to tackle a gunman.

If he is at close range. See if the hammer of the gun is cocked. If it is, the man is really dangerous. If not, you can grab the chamber (the part that holds the bullets and turns at each shot). While you do this, he cannot shoot. Never try this with an automatic pistol.

If he is the length of a room away. Throw things. Anything will do—books, cushions, the clock, coins from your pocket.

MY ADVICE

It is much harder than people think, to shoot accurately with a revolver. You stand a chance if you advance behind a barrage of missiles which can be surprisingly disconcerting to a gunman.

But remember, it's only a chance. And for the average citizen, the best advice is: Get a description, and leave the rest to the police.

If you can describe him, you will be certain to meet him again. But next time the gun will not be pointing at you. It will lie on the barrister's table, and the gunman will be in the dock.

OF CABBAGES AND KINGS — PETER ELIOT

Of Publishers, Authors, Paintings and Law

Horace Greeley was a man of many eccentricities, not the least of which (according to Lord Castlerose) was his insistence that the word "news" was plural. Greeley made the life of his staff uncomfortable by the emphasis he placed on this point. (He eventually changed his mind.) He once telegraphed a reporter:

"Are there any news?" To which the reporter replied:

"Not a new."

That—says Lord Castlerose—that did it.

Somerset Maugham is not the only literary member of his family. His brother, Viscount Maugham, a distinguished judge, is the author of popular, extremely well-written account of one of the most famous trials in history, "The Tichborne Case." That famous incident—no other word would describe it—involved the question of an English title and a man, later proved to be a fraud, who claimed it. If for no other reason, the case is important because scores of witnesses swore to mutually contradictory evidence.

In 1884, wealthy Governor Leland Stanford of California approached Dr. Charles Eliot, President of Harvard, and asked how much it would cost to duplicate that university on the Pacific coast.

"At least thirty million dollars," Dr. Eliot replied.

The Governor turned to Mrs. Stanford:

"I guess we can afford that, can't we, mother?"

Early American painters found little inspiration for their work in the colonies. Much good work, it is true, was produced but most of them, like Benjamin West, felt that not in the New World could a man become a painter of the first rank. West went to England and through his friendship with George III helped establish the Royal Academy. Reynolds was the first president, and on his death West was chosen his successor, and he remained president for the rest of his life, except for one year when he was deposed by his rival, Wyatt, the king's architect.

West always enjoyed introducing Indians into his paintings. "In The Death of Wolfe, probably his most famous picture," writes John Walker (in his Paintings From America—Penguin Books), "an Indian brods like some crouching river god over the expiring general, who has fallen to the ground in the graceful pose of the statue of the Dying Gaul. Critics soon pointed out that there were no Indians with the British forces at Quebec, and that though West may have learned to paint from the aborigines of the New World, he had not observed his teachers closely or he would have realized that they never went into battle barefoot." There is evidence that West later became sensitive about the missing moccasins.

The famous opera singer, Mme. Shumann-Heink, enjoyed one thing more than singing—food. According to Lord Castelrose (who made a hobby of re-telling stories of well-known people), Caruso was once passing her table, when he noticed her being served with a gargantuan steak. Horror spread over the Italian's face.

"Stena! You are surely not going to eat that alone?"

The grand old lady shook her head.

"No," she replied, "with potatoes."

Reminiscing in "The Bench and Bar of England," J. A. Strahan tells of a case where the charge was one of stealing a pair of breeches. A young barrister, briefed from the dock, defended, and much to his delight, secured an acquital. The prisoner showed no desire, however, to leave the dock.

"You are free, my man," said the counsel loftily. "You can leave the dock."

"I'd rather wait," whispered the client, "till the prosecutor leaves the court."

"Why?" asked the young counsel.

"Because," whispered the client, "I have them on."

The first method of cooking eggs on record is that used by Egyptian shepherds who cooked them without fire; the eggs were placed in a sling which they turned so rapidly that friction of air heated them to the right degree. It is usually the Greeks—not the Egyptians—who were the "firsts" in so many fields of endeavour. But Egypt had her share too. As Manchip White observed in "Ancient Egypt" (Wingate): "The Egyptian doctor was undoubtedly the first great pioneer in serious medical investigation." Amputations, setting of bone-fractures, anything to do with external medicine, was developed to a high degree of perfection. This was not the case with internal medicine, however. Sacred were the internal parts of man and even while the doctors passed on many customers to the mummifiers, the embalmers preserved their secrets from the medical profession.

OTHER FEATURES OF ANCIENT EGYPT

Cosmetics: "Egyptian women were adepts in the field of cosmetics. The use of kohl for lengthening the eyebrows and shadowing the lids was practiced from the earliest times. . . A restricted amount of rougeing with red ochre was carried out. Henna was probably used in the fashion current in modern Egypt for dying the hair, the nails, the palms and soles of the feet."

Beverages: "Beer brewing is pictured on the walls of tombs. . . Thick loaves of wheat and barley were lightly baked and allowed to ferment in water. Wine jars occur in the First Dynasty and the vine was cultivated in Egypt itself. Old Kingdom wines appear to have been predominantly red, Middle Kingdom wines predominantly white. The Egyptians cultivated an experienced palate, the wine of Buto being particularly relished. Cellars of wine were laid down and carefully inspected at intervals. 'Excellent wine of the king's growth,' runs an inscription on the necks of a group of jars."

Hefty Victorians Were Canadian Football Kings

But With a Big Four Championship To Their Credit Injury to Star Player Spelled Defeat

The beginning of autumn sets some people to thinking about the winter's coal supply. To others it means the approach of Thanksgiving and Christmas.

Boyd

But to your real sports fan, the last days of September herald the approach of the Canadian football season, the days when he can bundle up warmly and head for the park to see 24 stalwarts chase each other over the gridiron.

That's how it was 25 years ago when grid fans were champing at the bit, waiting for their first look at Victoria's 1927 entry in the coast Big Four League.

HAD B.C. CROWN

Victorians had a perfect right for their impatience as the local club had smashed through all opposition in the previous year and had taken the B.C. championship.

Coach Ernie Cook had the nucleus of his championship team to work with together with a goodly number of new recruits. Lack of weight was the only thing hampering the club.

The season opened on a highly successful note, Victoria thumping Vancouver over on the mainland. Stan Stanyer, a 165-pound halfback with mercury in his legs, paced the 20-9 mauling by scoring a pair of sensational touchdowns.

Victoria's home opener was to be against University of British Columbia. The Varsity club was known to be green as grass but it was doubted that they could hold a team with experience enough to keep up with the rest of the league.

FEATURED BY FRASER

The main strength in Victoria defense was the kicking of Gordie Fraser. When Victoria was backed up against its own goal-line, Fraser would drop back and his long spiral punts would keep the ball away from dangerous territory. He was the main cog in the offense as well as the defense just by his kicking ability.

During the week before the U.B.C. game, Fraser was practicing his kicks against a hard charging line. On one play Fraser's defense collapsed, he was rushed and buried under a pile of line-men. When the pile-up was untangled, Fraser was found to have a badly twisted ankle—serious enough to keep him out of Saturday's game.

His loss was a crushing blow for the Victoria team. Against Varsity, his kicks were missed so badly that the inexperienced visitors went home with an upset 7-5 victory against the defending champions of the provincial crown.

Only half the Vancouver squad had ever been on the field before but a clever quarterback named Johnny Currie more than made up for their rough spots with his clever ball handling and astute play calling.

Vancouver had no success trying to skirt the Victoria ends but they consistently punched out gains through the line.

SMART RUNNING ATTACK

The Victoria back-field, Stanyer, Benny McMillan, W. V. Putnam, John Harrison, Bert Nichols, Cam Forbes, Bill Oliver, Cyril Wightman and Don McMurchie gained ground with a smart running attack, but bogged down when near scoring territory.

Currie pulled a sandy on the Victoria club in the first quarter, giving his club the lead. With the Vancouver club holding a first down on the Victoria five-yard line, the local squad bunched up for the expected series of bucks. However Currie took the ball on a lateral pass around end and went over unmolested.

Twice Victoria defenders were tackled behind their own goal line after gathering long kicks and were rouged, giving Vancouver two more points.

PROVIDED THE THRILLS

But it was Victoria who gave the crowd the biggest thrill of the day.

Behind by five points, Victoria was again defending in the shadow of their goal posts. The wily Currie attempted a short on-side kick into the Victoria end zone but the ball went astray.

Stanyer gobbled up the loose ball, cut for the side-line, and set his sights on the Vancouver end zone, 90 yards away. The 90 yards were strewn with Vancouver tacklers but Stanyer swivel-hipped and straight-armed his way through the entire team to score the only Victoria touchdown of the day. Campbell Forbes' attempted convert was slightly wide and Vancouver eventually won the game on the margin of two rouges.

TIME OUT!

"Now don't you mind Dad, Tom you go right back and ask him again sometime soon when the Tigers aren't losing!"

Synthetic Blood Being Stockpiled As C.D. Insurance

More than a million pints of synthetic blood are being stockpiled by U.S. civil defense officials as insurance against a national disaster—or an enemy atomic attack.

The synthetic blood won't take the place of real blood plasma. But it will help solve a thorny problem: How to fill the hurry call for millions of pints of blood if such a disaster ever hits.

Not enough whole blood or plasma would be available for immediate treatment of casualties from even a single atomic attack on a major metropolitan area, civil defense authorities explain. And they fear such an attack would probably strike several large cities at the same time.

The 1,200,000 pints of synthetic blood extender, called PVP-Macrose, which the U.S. Federal Civil Defense Administration has purchased from Schenley Laboratories, would help bridge the danger period between the first flash of disaster and the time when whole blood and plasma could be made available in sufficient quantities.

FOUND SATISFACTORY

The extender has most of the desirable properties of blood, according to laboratory experts. It has been found satisfactory in treating shock due to trauma, surgery, hemorrhage or burns.

A single injection of 500 cc. (one pint, for example will maintain circulating volume in an injured man for 12 to 24 hours. By that time, defense officials believe, it will be possible to rush whole blood or plasma to the scene.

Though new to this country, PVP-Macrose was developed in Germany during the Second World War, and was used in treating more than 500,000 German battle casualties. Today it is used routinely in many German surgical clinics.

TIME OUT!

Gruber Conducts

Symphony Conductor Puts Record Right

Motor Cars and Yorkshire Pudding Creep Into Tilt on Merits of Composers

Colleague Steed has an unfair advantage over me. I have, in the past, taken issue in these columns with some of his statements. My editors have deleted these passages, on the grounds that anything that might be said in that paper is beneath the notice of all those associated with this journal.

Gruber

Most recently, however, Mr. Steed, feeling evidently altogether too secure in his hiding behind this journalistic immunity, cast aspersions on my planning of programs for the Symphony Orchestra in a manner that would indeed be sufficient for a wiser man than myself to consider them beneath his trouble to answer them publicly.

Mr. Steed flatters me to a degree by being so concerned over my opinions on certain British composers. It brings home to me the evident truth that my opinions are of considerable importance—something I have not been disproportionately aware of before.

FROM A NEGATIVE FACT

Mr. Steed is touchy to the point of the imaginative. From the one negative fact that I have not yet conducted any music by Elgar, he infers that I do not like Sir Thomas Beecham, that I do not like Rolls-Royce cars, that—if space had permitted him—I do not like roast beef and Yorkshire pudding, that I do not like fog, the English language, and traveling in the "Queen Mary." That, in short, I suffer from a general Anglophobia, which subversive and indeed insubordinate attitude he feels called upon to bring to public notice lest I cause the downfall of the Crown and the British Empire

All because I have not yet conducted music by Elgar!

Well, now, it is, of course, common knowledge that because one does not eat rice one is not the mortal enemy of China, from Buddha to Mao-Te-Tsung. Because one says the French trains are unkempt (as to schedule as well as cleanliness) one plots the downfall of France. And so forth, and so forth. With a relevancy that even my devious mind is hard put to see, Colleague Steed even blames a good American company like General Motors or my "preoccupation" therewith, for my having avoided programming music by Elgar. Mr. Steed means, of course, that I should do better "preoccupying" myself with the British motor industry, because it is, again, a widely accepted fact that all devotees of the Austin motor car worship at the altar of Elgar, and know all his scores by heart.

I am led to the grievous conclusion that Mr. Steed has not been perusing my writings with the same regularity and attention as I have been his—it may be beside the point to surmise that he would have done so, reciprocally, with more a feeling of duty than pleasure.

NEWS FOR HIM

In any case, I have news for him—though to you, the rest of the readers, this may be repetition, which you may choose to skip. I have repeatedly stated my opinion that Sir Thomas Beecham is an artist "sans pareil." The only reason I do not drive a Rolls-Royce car is because I cannot (forgive me for being obvious). I love roast beef and Yorkshire pudding (though I prefer a clear day to a foggy one). I think London as fascinating a city as I know. I am a regular reader of "Punch." I have driven Jaguar cars at over 100 miles an hour, which is an achievement for that fine British car all the more to be respected in view of the indifferent skill of the driver. And I recall with awe and respect a Rolls-Royce taxicab in Lausanne, Switzerland, which had traveled an authenticated one million miles.

Now to come closer to the point. I have always thought the folk-music which emanated from the British Isles—the Scottish, Welsh, English, etc., folk-songs—to be the most beautiful in the world. Of the formal composers, I regard Purcell (whose music, incidentally, I have conducted here as well as in Toronto) the greatest of English composers—in which opinion I am in excellent company.

Handel, I regret, is an English composer neither by birth nor in style. Now I am slowly and unavoidably coming down to the crux of this admittedly inconsequential controversy.

NEVER FAR FROM MIND

The names of Sir Edward Elgar and Ralph Vaughan-Williams have never been far from my mind whenever I set the programs for an orchestral season. I have heard much of their music, and, from the purely technical point of view, know many of the notes contained therein. These two artists have my respect due creative artists from re-creative ones. What I cannot give them, for the present, is my understanding, from a non-musical, philosophical—spiritual, if you will—point of view.

For me to play their music in the face of these handicaps, and on the strength of technical understanding alone, would be tantamount to hypercritical faking, which I will under all circumstances refuse to indulge in, notwithstanding Mr. Steed's exhortations.

He asks, in fact, the humanly impossible. Even the greatest of musicians and conductors are known to be equally at home by no means in all types and styles of music, though they, no more than I, resign themselves philosophically to this to the point of not doing anything about it. Nor would it be to the point to enlist in my further defense the known and publicly stated opinions of at least two world-famous musicians, both in their seventies, an one of them a most eminent British conductor, of what THEY think of Elgar's music. I am not in the least influenced by them, which may be to my further detriment.

SERVANT OF THE COMPOSER

It is no service to the composer if the performer plays his works without having taken sufficient trouble and counsel with himself to come to some understanding of the former's works. A performer's sole "raison d'etre" is to be the servant of the composer. For a performer to use any composer's music to show his own proficiency or for his own glory is the lowest of artistic criminal offenses—criminal nonetheless just because the laws of the country do not provide formally for its punishment.

Critic Describes Gruber as 'Middle of the Road' Man

By AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

With regard to symphony programming, Hans Gruber will, I hope, pardon me if I refer to him as a "middle-of-the-road" man!

Audrey

At any rate he should do so, for what I am suggesting is that he is, musically at least, an arch diplomat and an adroit balancer and equalizer of values. I have always admired him for refusing to woo attention by acting on the podium like a marionette worked by an operator with St. Vitus' dance. Or by playing "sleazy" music, as Constant Lambert would say. Music that requires no mental alertness, no effort of concentration on the part either of players or listeners, is not the stuff that develops quality in an orchestra. Nor in an audience!

'CONDUCTORS' BALM'

This season's programs, as announced, contain nothing that would be found on the light side of a "pops" program. But every pops concert includes one or two items which might be described as conductors' balm. Something from the repertoire of more familiar masterpieces with which the conductor can drown out the voice of his conscience!

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra, this season, will play several of these. There is, for instance, the Mendelssohn Midsummer Night's Dream" incidental music, the Preludes from "La Traviata," the Dvorak New World Symphony.

All music of unquestionable fineness; all music of broad appeal. Then there are a number of selections that are not beyond the scope of the average listener, yet lie within the realm of the absolutist—the person for whom general familiarity of a musical composition breeds contempt!

Bach, Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn, Franck, are represented in this category. And then we come to the embattled ranks of contemporary composers! Gruber is too intelligent a musical director to ignore them even though he knows a majority of his audience believes they deserve that fate—which is, after all, worse than death.

AN ASSET AT ANY PRICE

So he includes two of the best established and least resented of living composers—Stravinsky and Sibelius. And of their works, he selects the Russian's, "Firebird" suite which has been acclaimed from the day of its first performance and a symphony whose popularity has greatly enhanced the reputation of the Finnish master.

And that, I think you will agree, is a middle-of-the-road program policy it would be difficult to excel. A symphony conductor with such talent is an asset to an organization at any price!

* * *

Speaking of contemporary music reminds me that I have been variously taken to task or heaped with praise over my remarks concerning the compositions of a young Canadian composer recently. Nothing, as I think I have said before, raises such fierce antagonism, as modern serious music. Yes, I seriously mean "serious"!

The majority of modern composers are extremely serious and ardent in their intention and in their seeking. Very little music is written with a tongue-in-cheek attitude. Musical composition is entirely too much a labor of love—with accent on the first word of the phrase—to be a thing many people would care to jest over.

Well, I honestly think the young composer in question is talented, though to just what extent remains to be seen. The point is that it is always difficult to judge accurately the musical creations of one'e own age. A man, walking into a concert hall before the turn of the century was assailed by the music of Wagner's "Tannhauser."

"What on earth is that?" he demanded, outraged.

"That, my dear sir, is the music of the future," came the reply.

"Well then, for heaven's sake let it be heard in the future and not now!"

And that, in effect, sums up the case of the contemporary composer. He is a man working out of his own time and for the benefit of generations unborn. The style and concept of Beethoven did not suit audiences nurtured in the concise, elegant tradition of the contrapuntal age.

Brahms roused antipathetic reactions of the most violent kind; Schumann was warred upon by many critics; Franck's symphony—a masterwork to the ears of today—was viewed with contempt and played grudgingly by the members of the orchestra who introduced it in Paris, so short a while ago as 1889. Composer Gounod characterized it as "an affirmation of impotence pushed to dogma."

AVOIDING ENDLESS REPETITION

Each time the stream of music thrusts its way into a new channel, the watchers on the bank set up an outraged protest. If composers created music only according to the ideas of the laity, and turned out endless repetitions of the familiar music would have become immobilized in an era of the early Italian masters. None of the glorious and well-loved masterpieces from the time of Bach to the twentieth century would ever have been written.

Few Points Lost In 'Great Books' Of Western World

By W. G. ROGERS

The 54 "Great Books of the Western World" are your chance to settle down for about 10 years of solid reading.

What is the Western World and what have its outstanding inhabitants had to say for it? How have its scientists, novelists, poets and philosophers shaped it, and how have they been shaped by it?

Perhaps all the answers aren't here, but it's hard to believe any important ones could have been skipped in this set of books, assembled in the course of nine years at the cost of $2,000,000, with the backing of the University of Chicago and the Encyclopedia Britannica.

Volume I contains an essay, "The Great Conversation," by editor Robert M. Hutchins, who was chancellor of the university when this vast project was started.

CONTINUES FOREVER

Liberal education, with us in theory, ought to be much more with us in fact, he declares. Anyway, a liberal education is something you can't have "had." It goes on and on, particularly in these 32,000 pages, these 25,000,000 words.

Volumes II and III contain the unique "Syntopicon" devised by editor Mortimer J. Adler. He has filed the intellectual heritage of the west under 102 basic headings. These are subdivided into a total of 2,987 topics, with 163,000 references and 1,798 "key terms."

As a dictionary is for words and an encyclopedia for facts, the "Syntopicon" is for ideas. You can sit down and read right through its 102 separate factual essays, amounting to 600,000 words written by Adler.

You can read through the 54 books just as they are arranged, chronologically, or you can start with an idea and run it down to dramatist, statesman, historian, mathematician, economist astronomer, wherever it leads you, or you can follow the suggested 10-year reading lists.

BIBLE LEFT OUT

On the theory that everyone already owns a Bible, it is not included. On the theory that we are too near our own times to be able to judge contemporaries definitely, Freud is the only man whose writings reaches into our century. So this begins with Homer, Aeschylus, Sophocles, Euripides and other Greeks.

BOOKS AND AUTHORS

BY STUART KEATE

"The Struggle For Europe," by Chester Wilmot, is not exactly the kind of thing your doctor prescribes for hammock reading. It's about 725 pages long, profusely illustrated with war maps and graphs, and generously interlarded with footnotes and appendices. But I decided to assault it on vacation. Ten days later I put it down, firmly convinced that it was the finest book I had read in many, many years.

Stuart Keate

This does not except the war books of Winston Churchill, Dwight Eisenhower, Omar Bradley, Drew Middleton, Alan Moorehead, Ralph Ingersoll and all the others. Wilmot's book is imperishable, the best documented account of the European war yet to appear.

The reason is that the Australian writer and broadcaster (he was a combat correspondent with the B.B.C.) has done a prodigious amount of homework. "Struggle for Europe" is the fruits of six years' research and writing.

Best of all, his story is not one-sided. Better than any other historian, he has made shrewd use of captured German documents (including a log of Hitler's telephone talks with his commanders in the field) and personal interviews with men like Model, Student and Speer.

The result is that the author sets up each campaign in the manner of a chess master. First he presents the British (or American, or Canadian) plan of battle. Then he switches over to the German lines, tells what strength they possessed—even down to the actual number of tanks and nebelwerfer—and analyzes their strategy. Finally he presents the collision of these immense forces.

The final outcome makes for absolutely fascinating reading.

STRONG OPINIONS

Wilmot is an opiniated man, and lays about him with a fine, devastating hand when the occasion demands. He is merciless with Admiral King, who was such an Anglophobe that he denied the Allies all but 2,500 of the 23,000 landing-craft he had under his command. He chivvies Omar Bradley for his pettiness in telling Ike that he would quit and go back home unless he could be captain of the team. He flays General Patton for his flamboyance and his large-scale gas pilfering, which left other Allied armies short.

Basically, Wilmot is a "Montgomery man." He proves—to the satisfaction of one reader, at least—that Monty was not the cautious, set-piece operator the Americans have made him out to be; that in the Arnhem action (and in his general plan for a sweep through the Ruhr) that he was capable of imaginative, even daring, soldiering.

Wilmot hammers home two fudamental tenets:

(1) The war could have been ended in 1944 if Monty's "single thrust" plan had been followed, rather than Eisenhower's insistence on a broad, general front which tended to spend his strength;

(2) The post-war political outlook would have been much different if the Allies had mounted an assault through the Balkans, rather than in the south of France. In this connection, it is surprising to hear that Stalin was once so hard-pressed on the Eastern front that he actually recommended a Balkan "second front."

How we lost the peace—or how we gave it away at Yalta—makes for appalling reading; almost as grave as the consequences of our reckless "unconditional surrender" demand. Because of this, Wilmot argues, Hitler was able to starch up the German backbone and, finally, to bring the whole nation down in flames about him.

Roosevelt's naive belief that he "could do business with Uncle Joe," and his last-minute disenchantment, have been told before. But is it as well known that F. D. R. actually insisted on leaving Mr. Churchill out of certain vital conferences with Stalin, and refused even to tell his secretary of state (Stettinius) what went on behind those closed doors? The impact of this chapter can only be described as monstrous.

* * *

It is particularly interesting for Canadian readers to find out how a dispassionate observer assessed our land forces in Europe. On pretty nearly all counts, we come out well.

On D-Day, the Canadians penetrated seven miles, further than any other division. At Caen and in the Scheldt they fought magnificently. But it is interesting to know that at least one Canadian corps commander (unidentified) was dismissed around Falaise because his forces did not show enough spirit in taking an objective. On the other hand, Gen. Guy Simonds is saluted as one of the top commanders of the Allied forces; a soldier of vast courage, ingenuity, and talent for the unexpected thrust.

If you can get a copy of "Struggle For Europe"—it's published by Collins, and has been on sale at most book-stores here—by all means, do so. It is recommended absolutely without qualification.

REVIEWS IN BRIEF

Nevil Shute Tells Of 'New' Australia

"The Far Country," by Nevil Shute, William Morrow & Co.

Nevil Shute's new novel, "The Far Country," is a tribute to his adopted country and to the "new Australians" like himself who are helping to transform the dominion from wilderness to world power.

His principal characters are Carl Zlinter, a Czech physician who had to work as a lumberjack in Australia because he lacked a British medical degree, and Jennifer Morton, who came to visit relatives in Australia and found it a much happier place than the crumbling England into which she was born.

Shute, who has made his home in Australia, has set their story against a background of Australian country life—a life that has been hard and primitive in the past, but which promises to acquire eventually the graciousness and spaciousness that marked life in rural Britain in the 19th century.

Airman's Story of French Underground

"The Frontiers," by John Strachey, Random House.

John Strachey, war minister in Britain's late Labor government, wrote "The Frontiers" while adjutant of a Royal Air Force fighter squadron in 1941. It is the story of an R.A.F. pilot shot down over France and his successful evasion of German occupation troops and Vichy police with the aid of the French underground.

The novel was so close to fact in its discription of underground methods that the British censor forbade its publication until after Second World War. Now published in the United States by Random House, it emerges as a story not only of escape, but also of a poignant love affair between the airman and a French girl who befriends and guides him to safety.

Interwoven also with the main theme is an illuminating debate on political philosophies with a character whom Strachey now frankly admits was the late Pierre Laval justifying the path of collaboration with fascism. Some of the same arguments are advanced today by Communist fellow travelers.

Pin-Curl Coiffure for Natural Wave

Be sure to include hair beauty in your off-to-college preparations. The smart girl above is giving herself a new pin curl home permanent. Its simple method copies her nightly pin curl job, and its automatic neutralizing process sets, styles and cuts the hair in one operation. Once her hair is pinned, she turns to other before-school musts like packing (top center). When the basic 45-minute processing time is up, all that is necessary is a brief water rinse.

Her packing is finished and her curls have thoroughly dried. Before she leaves for the station she brushes them out into shining waves and ringlets (lower center). At last she is off to college, looking smartly dressed in her brand new suit, and sleekly coiffured with her curls fluffed softly beneath the brim of her deep-crowned cloche (above). School days will be chic days for this young woman. She rates top marks for outstanding grooming.

By ALICIA HART

If you are one of the lucky girls who is campus-bound this fall better take some time out from the rush of activties to concentrate on your beauty preparations.

It is a positive fact, as any bright college girl knows, that no amount of intellect or personality can bring you success without an attractive appearance.

Always be sure your face is scrubbed and prettied to perfection. Your curls should be shining with health, and arranged in a sleek, easy-to-manage coiffure.

Of course, you can discipline your tresses with morning and evening brushings that total 100 strokes a day, massage your scalp to health, and keep your hair shampoo-clean, but how about that curl?

Since fashion has cast out the poodle, and embraced casual curls, if you haven't natural waves you'd better enlist the aid of a home permanent.

* * *

On new kit sets, styles and curls your hair in one simple operation. The neutralizing is automatic. Fuss and bother are reduced to a minimum, because it works on the same principle as your nightly pin-curl set.

Plan to give yourself a new curl before you leave home, so it will work for you in making those first impressions of rush week.

* * *

Give your hair a permanent on the same day you pack. Read the directions all the way through to the end so you'll understand that this particular home permanent requires no time-check curls, no neutralizing, and no second setting once your permanent curls are made.

While you take your morning shower, give your hair its pre-permanent shampoo. Dry your hair until it is just barely damp. Wind the more wave-resistant hair at the nape of the neck on the midget neckline curlers that are included in your kit.

If you wear your hair shoulder length or longer, you might want to wind this neckline hair on regular-sized curlers instead of your kit's smaller ones. This section of your hair is the only one where waving lotion is applied before the curls are wound.

Now you're ready to pin-curl the rest of your hair just as you would if you were merely putting it up for a set. Only be sure that each curl is evenly wound and no larger than a dime. Big, bushy pin curls will spoil the result.

After all the curls are pinned, soak each one with the waving lotion. (Remember, your neckline curls have already had their first application.) This should use up the remainder of the first half of the bottle. Remember to put the lotion only on the hair wound in the pin curls.

Now wait 15 minutes. Resaturate all your curls, including the neckline section, with the remainder of the waving lotion. Wait 45 minutes while your curls process. Since there are no time-check curls to keep you occupied, you can turn your attention to laying out your clothes for the packing job.

* * *

Time up? The final step is a two-minute rinsing with luke-warm water. Afterwards towel-blot your curls so they will dry more quickly. The rest of the day you are free to pack and lock up your suitcase and trunk.

Just before leaving for the station, comb out your curls as you usually do and brush the ringlets into place. Your perfectly controlled, lovely looking hair will give you the fine grooming start to your college beauty preparations.

From all outward indications, you will certainly look like a girl who is on her way to bigger and better things.

BEDTIME BEAUTY

Always Follow A Schedule

Bedtime beauty may take some special effort on your part, but your husband will appreciate it, indeed.

Nothing so exasperates the man of the house than a sticky, gooey skin, a bobby-pinned head that resembles the hide of a porcupine, and poorly fitting, unattractive attire.

If you are home all day, there is absolutely no excuse for you to reserve your beauty care for the evening hours. All pinning and creaming should be done during the day.

But if you are a working wife, it is obviously impossible to avoid a night-time ritual. The best way to approach the situation, however, is with a system.

Remove yourself from the family scene about an hour before you will be ready to retire. Take your bath, and give you skin and hair whatever treatment is necessary.

Keep in mind the fact that most skin creams complete their action 10 to 20 minutes after application. So there really is no point in leaving them on overnight.

If your hair requires nightly pin-curling, you'll find attractive slumber caps to wear while you sleep. Choose pretty nightgowns, too. Try to achieve the same overall look of good grooming and tastefulness you maintain through the day.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

Before you buy your new refrigerator, be sure to determine the actual kitchen space you have available. For efficient operation, the equipment must have a space above it of at least 10 inches, and two or three inches at the sides and back to allow for free circulation of air.

* * *

A continuous supply of hot water is of major importance in doing the family laundry if best washing results are to be obtained.

* * *

Don't ever use ammonia in the soap and water solution you prepare for cleaning your costume jewelry. This rule also includes all jewelry that is gold or silver plated.

* * *

The hard, smooth surface of glass pots and pans is easy to keep clean. Soak utensile to loosen stuck-on food. Use fine cleaning powder rather than rough cleansers that might scratch the surface. Glassware should be protected from sharp changes in temperature and from boiling dry.

* * *

You can improve the appearance of non-washable shades by placing them on a flat surface and erasing the grime with a dough-type or art gum ereaser. Use light strokes.

When you are washing dirty white gloves, rub soap well into all the soiled spots and roll each glove up tightly, starting from the fingertips. Let them lay about an hour, so the soap can loosen the soil. Then wash briskly in warm soapsuds and the dirt will disappear.

* * *

EXPECTING?

Plan Life While Waiting

If you are expecting a baby, certain of your favorite activities will have to be curtailed, while others can continue at usual.

Your doctor will advise you, of course, but here are some general rules you might keep in mind.

Above all, avoid exhaustion. It is much wiser and healthier to stop walking or driving before you actually feel tired. If you are a woman who enjoys an active life, make every effort to concentrate on moderation.

Certainly such energetic exercises as horseback riding and dancing should not be included in your daily life. Unnecessary risks at this point might have disastrous results.

You mustn't overdo your housework either. Allow periods throughout the day for rest and outdoor walks. It is most important that you get enough fresh air and sunshine.

If it is necessary for you to do any traveling, again check with your doctor. He knows your condition best, and will advise you as to which means of transportation will be most satisfactory. Airplanes or trains are usually recommended because they get you where you want to go quickly and smoothly.

During this waiting period keep you life full of interests and activities. And, of course, do all your planning for the future.

Conditioners Work Miracles on Hard Pan Soil

Invaluable for Creating Gardens Where New Homes Stand on Bare Patches of Clay

BY CECIL SOLLY

During the past six months we have been hearing and reading a great deal about these new materials which have been the subject of tests all over the world. There are three kinds of soil conditioners, powder, flake and liquid. The possibilities of this chemically made resin, now being tested, are as thrilling as they are remarkable.

Cecil Solly

Hundreds of thousands of today's new homes stand on bare patches of blue, grey or yellow clay. Wet and slippery in spring and fall, and hard as concrete in summer, such soil destroys much of the incentive to improve it. In the recent tests that I have made personally, I have found that results are very remarkable, almost miraculous, on these clay, shot-clay and hard pan soils which compose about 50% of all home gardens in this area. The material is not needed on rich, well-drained valley soils. Little improvement can be found from its use on sandy soils. It is GOOD for poorly drained soils; if the SUB soil lacks drainage, this must still be corrected. It is excellent for clay soils that pack.

STABILIZERS

One of the manufacturers says:

"What may a soil conditioner be expected to do? Let us look at the basic facts. Synthetic soil conditioners, like the polyuronides (plant gums) are introduced by the normal decomposition of such natural structure improvers as manures, composts and plant residues.

"These soil conditioners act principally upon the clay component in soils and to a much lesser degree upon the finer silt components. In this way they stabilize the particles against the dispersing or slaking action of water.

"If the soil has been worked by any suitable mechanical means, such as hand tools, rotory tillers or full-scale farm machinery, into the desirable granular condition of a good seed bed, then the action of the conditioner on the clay will produce agglomerates whose persistence in the soil will preserve the loose, porous condition. This is necessary for good 'tilth.'

"Soils high in clay sizes will respond best.

"Another point to remember is that the action of soil conditioners is physical-chemical in nature. Sufficient amounts must be used if worthwhile results are to be obtained.

BY CULTURAL PRACTICES

"It is important to bear in mind that conditioners stabilize soil structure, but do not create it. In other words, a conditioner can only fix a soil in the state to which it has been converted by appropriate cultural practices.

"If the preparation has not produced a loose, porous seed bed with soil clusters of desired size, addition of a conditioner will not change this state of affairs.

"Since conditioner is absorbed tenaciously by the soil, it must be placed where its presence is desired. Application of a solution of a conditioner to a hard, crusted soil will not cause aggregation or any change in mechanical condition of the crust, and may in fact stabilize the undesired condition.

"How then must soil conditioners be used if the consumer is to obtain the beneficial results he may be looking for? First, he should have a soil which is capable of improvement, and one which is of a type which will give the desired response to a treatment; for example, a soil containing appreciable proportions of clay and fine silt.

"Soils which already have good structure and soils which are predominately sand will not be benefited appreciably.

MUST BE PREPARED

"Second, the soil to be treated must be prepared mechanically. This may be done before or after application of dry conditioners, or before solution application, but it must be done thoroughly since the conditioner can only stabilize whatever structure is produced by such preparation.

"The moisture content of the soil should be high enough to facilitate this preparation.

"Third, sufficient conditioner must be added to produce the effect desired, and it must be incorporated to the depth to which improved soil structure is needed.

"For example, in the case of building new lawns, treatment to a depth of one-half inch may be sufficient to keep the soil in place and to let the seeds germinate.

"For deeper rooting, such as in gardens, treatment to a depth of three to six inches obviously may be required. Once in place and adsorbed by the soil particles, it will not move appreciably with movement of ground water.

"Conditioner may be added in dry form, in which case it should be powdered very finely, or in solution. However, care must be exercised to use a solution sufficiently strong to insure penetration to the desired depth."

QUIZZING THE GARDENER

Q—I would like to know why my plum tree does not keep its fruit on? The droppings are either wormy or exuding a gummy substance.—B.A.

A—Worminess in plums is generally due to attack by curculios, stinging insects which lay their eggs under the skin of the fruit. In time more or less gum collects at the punctures before the fruit drops to the ground. Spray twice with a solution of lead arsenate, 2 tablespoons wettable sulfur, 5 tablespoons lime, ½ cup to a gallon of water will keep the curculios under control. The first application is made a week after the flower petals have fallen—and repeated in two weeks.

* * *

Q—Our new brick home stands out in marked contrast to our neighbors' wood houses. What vines do you recommend which are not too vigorous in their habit of growth?

A—Well-chosen and well-grown vines mellow and soften a brick or stone house as nothing else can. For the front of the house, which is in sunlight, plant Boston ivy, parthenocissus tricuspidata veitchi, one of the best clinging vines. On the shady sides of the house plant Baltic ivy, hedera helix baltica. While the Boston ivy will grow in the shade, Baltic ivy will not withstand a sunny location in the winter. The smaller leaved Low's ivy, parthenocissus tricuspidata lowi, is less vigorous in growth than Boston ivy.

* * *

Q—Will you please give me information about growing ivy as a house plant? I have been snipping off runners and putting them in water. Some of them sprout and form roots but more often they shrivel and die.

A—Ivy may be started by layering, that is, covering portions of the vine. After roots form at the covered area, this portion of the plant is several and treated as an independent plant. Or cuttings may be taken now from firm shoots and planted in pots. The best medium to root cuttings is in coarse, clean river sand. They may later be transplanted into ordinary clay pots and grown in a medium consisting of approximately one-third leaf mold, one-third sand and one-third sandy loam.

* * *

Q—Do crabgrass roots live over from year to year?

A—No, crabgrass is strictly an annual, and so lives just one season. New plants come from the seed that lies in the soil all winter and germinates when the soil gets warm in May and June.

* * *

Q—Why are some trees more attractive to bolts of lightning than others?

A—The following trees are most likely to be struck by lightning, because of the nature of their bark surface, the apparent water content in their internal structure, and their height: Oaks, elms, locusts, hickory, tulip tree, poplar, spruce and pine. The large tree least likely to be struck is the beech.

* * *

Q—Will cucumbers and squash cross-pollinate when planted side by side?

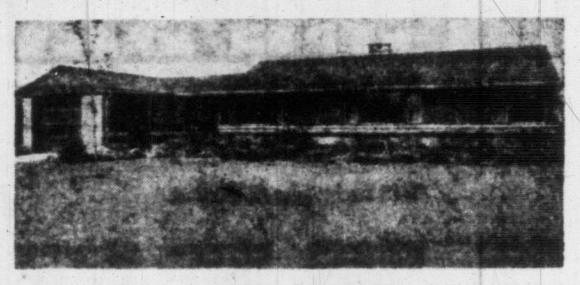
A—It is possible, but should a cross occur it would affect the seed only and not the fruits. Research men have tried to cross-pollinate such crops without much success.

* * *

Q—Is it too late to plant Gladiolus bulbs?

A—No. Gladiolus corms put in the ground now will bloom in late September. Be sure to fertilize the soil, and to water them well during periods of drought.

Crab Grass Control by Chemicals Now Possible



A weedless lawn without hard work is now possible.

Crab grass, long the No. 1 summer pest of lawns, can now be controlled by chemical treatment. In infancy it is not easily distinguished in the lawn but in midsummer it ruins the appearance of lawns.

You may know crab grass as wire grass, water grass, or even quack grass, though the real quack is quite different. Crab grass is killed by frost, but starts from seed in early summer. In midsummer it becomes conspicuous for its coarse stems, difficult for the lawn mower to cut, and soon develops rusty red seed stalks which discoler the lawn, and drop seed for the next year's crop.

No effective and economical method of eradicating this pest was ever found, until chemical weed killers were developed, and it resisted the first one, 2,4D, which deals with most other lawn weeds. Considerable success has been had by those who use PMAS, the initals standing for the chemicals in the formulation, chiefly mercury. A more effective chemical, potassium cyanate, then was released, after tests by both government and state experiment stations.

Though PMAS is poisonous, potassium cyanate is harmless to animals, including pets and children, in spite of the resemblance of its name to the deadly potassium cyanide. It has been used for years by onion growers to kill weeds in their fields, among which crab grass was present. Since it killed crab grass along with the others, it was tried out for lawn use, and proved to kill both this pest and chickweed, without injuring the grass. Temporary yellowing of the grass may be noticed after an application, but it lasts only a few days, and the chemical breaks down into potash and nitrogen, both plant foods, so that growth may be stimulated by the application.

Two sprayings are recommended, the first when plants are first detected, the next before the plants which may escape the first treatment go to seed. Use a sprayer, to apply the solution in a mist which will coat the grass leaves. Follow directions accurately, and do not spray dry grass. Either water the lawn before spraying, or apply just after a rain.

Annual spraying may be necessary until your neighbors spray their lawns and the production of seed to be carried by the wind and by birds is ended.

If you have not sprayed your lawn with 2,4D this year, a combination of 2,4D with potassium cyanate will kill nearly all lawn weeds with one spraying. When you do this you may find many vacant places in your lawn, where the weeds formerly grew. An application of plant food to stimulate growth of the remaining grass will quickly cover these vacant places with fine lawn grasses. Instead of being the hardest work required for good lawn care, weed killing has become a simple matter of strolling around the yard, directing a lethal spray upon the pests.

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNORS OF B.C.

Hamber in Office When Royalty Visited

Generous in Hospitality and in Gifts From Private Fortune for Every Wartime Effort

By N. DE BERTRAND LUGRIN

The regime of Hon. Eric Werge Hamber and his wife at Government House was distinguished by the greatest honor which has ever been bestowed upon British Columbia. It was the visit of their Majesties King George V and his gracious Queen Elizabeth. Most of us can remember the day they arrived, perfect weather and old and young lining the streets awaiting the Royal procession which we greeted with heartfelt enthusiasm. That visit seemed to draw us more closely within the great family of the Commonwealth than we had ever been before. The smiling faces of our king and queen as they returned our greetings brought to us a realization of the glory that has been and always shall be England and in which every member of the Commonwealth can claim a heritage.

Mrs. Hamber was one of three other hostesses in North America who entertained Their Majesties, the others were Lady Tweedsmuir of Rideau Hall, Mrs. Franklin Roosevelt of Washington, and Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, the president's mother at Hyde Park.

AT CORONATION CEREMONY

The governor and Mrs. Hamber in 1937 had the privilege of special seats in Westminster Abbey when King George and Queen Elizabeth were crowned, and they attended the court ball at Buckingham Palace.

Winnipeg was the birthplace of Lieut.-Governor Hamber, but his parents were English, his father, Edmond Marsh Hamber of Wordsworth, Surrey, England. Mrs. Hamber was Aldyne, Irene Hendry. She was born in New Westminster where her parents settled in 1872. She was chosen May Queen of her native city for she was a very pretty little girl and grew up to be a lovely woman. Her primary education was in New Westminster, but later she was sent to school in Germany to study art and the languages.

Hon. Eric Werge Hamber, C.M.S., and Mrs. Hamber

MARRIED IN LONDON

She was presented at court in London, and it was in London that she married. The wedding took place at St. Columbus Church in 1912.

It was understood when the governor and his wife came to Government House that they should spend six months there and six months at their home in Vancouver. Their regime was during the war years, but they entertained generously, opened their home for any affair for the soldiers, sailors and nurses. The governor gave $100,000 from his personal fortune as an outright gift. Every war charity was aided by them. Most of all they loved to give parties for children of the Orphanage, and of the Queen Alexander Solarium, especially at Christmas time. The Girl Guides and the Boy Scouts and the Sea Cadets had a warm place in their hearts. One of the most popular acts of their regime as far as the cadets were concerned was when the governor turned over his yacht Vencedor to 100 of them. The governor and Mrs. Hamber went along on a trip with them which will never be forgotten. There was one day in Seattle Harbor when the Vancedor slipped in among a large fleet of United States warships and were given a salute and a royal welcome.

DISTINGUISHED GUESTS

Among other distinguished guests at Government House were the Duke of Kent, His Excellency the Earl of Athlone and Princess Alice, many noted musicians and artists, among the latter the famous Gracie Fields. She was the guest of honor at a garden party, and never were the beautiful lawns and gardens more closely packed with guests. Gracie won the hearts of everyone, singing song after song, some of those in the crowd joining in the choruses.

The governor and Mrs. Hamber were greatly missed when they left Victoria, they had formed such an important part of the social life of the city and identified themselves with so many organizations. Among the latter the governor was vice-president of the Queen Alexandria Solarium, Provincial chairman of the Salvation Army, governor and life member of the B.C. Cancer Foundation, and Mrs. Hamber interested herself in most of the women's associations for welfare work in Victoria. She is and always has been an active member of the I.O.D.E.

IT HAPPENED 30 YEARS AGO

Victorians Helped to Furnish Aged Ladies' Home

By MARGUERITE LAUGH[illegible]N

There was great bustle and [illegible] air of excitement in the Aged [illegible]dies' Home in October, 1912, for [illegible] new wing of the [illegible]ome was opened by [illegible]Hon. Dr. H. E. Yo[illegible]g, in the unavoida[illegible] absence of Hon. [illegible]ichard McBride, [illegible] premier of B.C.

Laughlin

Later the same afternoon, in the new reception rooms, Mrs. T. W. Paterson, wife of Lieut.-Governor of B.C. opened the bazaar whose funds were in aid of the new building.

The Home for Aged Ladies was founded in 1898 and had its beginnings in the old French hospital—the site of the present institution—where two elderly ladies occupied rooms. The necessity for the institution drose from the needs of an old crippled woman whose husband was in the hospital, and who was unable to care for herself. A kind friend took her to the newly-founded home in an express wagon which had been especially fitted with easy chairs. An energetic group of women, Mrs. I. Gould, Mrs. William Grant, Mrs. L. Goodacre and Mrs. H. Carne organized and managed the affairs of the home.

The present building was erected in 1909 and in the intervening years between then and 1912 the home housed between 30 and 40 women. Quarters were soon found to be too cramped and it was deemed necessary to build an additional wing. As with the original building every attention was given with the idea of affording maximum warmth, sunlight and comfort to those of advanced years. The latest conveniences of steam heat and electric light were also provided. Kind friends donated other extra home comforts such as warm dressing gowns, cosy slippers and foot warmers.

Mrs. William Grant, one of the members of the original committee. She died in 1943 at the age of 90.

Over the years the original committee had added to its numbers, Mrs. W. L. Clay, Mrs. Vincent, Mrs. Simon Leiser and Mrs. McTavish.

The corridors and reception rooms on that October afternoon in 1912 were filled with interested visitors who patronized the bazaar generously. Tea was provided by the ladies of the First Presbyterian Church. The Metropolitan and Reformed Episcopal young ladies served capacity crowds with ice cream. The decorations throughout the home were the artistic work of Mrs. McTavish and her daughters. Miss A. Thain and her orchestra provided musical entertainment. Many handsome donations were received from generous Victorians. Mrs. Goodacre furnished the upstairs sunroom, and bedrooms were furnished by Mrs. H. D. Helmcken, Mrs. McTavish, Miss Finlayson, Mrs. Shotbolt, Mrs. Landsberg and members of the First Presbyterian and First Baptist Churches. Others who gave donations were Mrs. W. Grant, Mrs. Dixie Ross, Mrs. Goulding Wilson, Smith and Champion, Spencers, and Miss Jessie Cameron who gave a room in memory of Miss Agnes Deans Cameron.

ANOTHER NEW WING

The humanitarian work started in 1898 has been efficiently carried on throughout the years. A second new wing was added in 1938 and opened by Lieut.-Governor E. W. Hamber. The home has always been practically self-supporting and rarely has appealed to the public for aid . . . a worthy tribute indeed to the kindly motives of the women who organized this worthwhile project.

CANASTA — JACOBY

Rules Can Settle Card Fights

"Please settle an argument," requests a Memphis correspondent. "The game was four-handed Canasta, and I was dealt a red three. I put it down on the table but forgot to draw a card for it. Hence I had to play on for a while with only 10 cards in my hand.

"As the hand proceeded, I developed four sixes, four sevens, and a pair of deuces. Finally, I got a third deuce, so I put my entire hand down. I didn't care which way I put the deuces as long as all three of them were used to make one canasta or the other.

"One of the opponents then challenged my meld. He said I didn't have the required count, which happened to be 120 points for both sides.

"I said I was melding out concealed. I pointed out that no minimum count is required when a player melds out concealed.

"My opponent's wife then got into the act. She said I was not allowed to meld out concealed, since my failure to replace a red three left me with a short hand. The opponents then found a book and read out a rule to that effect.

"I have two questions in connection with this. First, is there such a rule? Second, is it fair to quote the rule in a home game between neighbors?"

Yes, to both questions.

To begin with, it is easier to meld out concealed with only 10 cards than a full normal hand of 11 cards. This advantage is undeserved, and therefore the laws provide that a player who has failed to replace a red three may not meld out concealed.

Now for the second question. Is it fair to stick to the rules in a home game? Yes, because there is no other sensible course to follow.

In a friendly game you may decide to overlook unimportant infractions of the laws, but you can't afford to overlook important infractions. For example, you may ignore the fact that a player touches the top card of the stock pile and then decides to take the discard pile. Such a rule is not ignored in a match game, but it may be overlooked in a home game.

But you can't let a player enjoy an undeserved advantage. You must allow the laws to equalize the situation. That's one of the important reasons for having laws in a game.

In the case being discussed, therefore, the attempted meld is not legal.

STAMPS — R. NAIRNE

FINIS FOR SPERATI

The notorious Sperati, whose counterfeiting activities were referred to in this column recently, has been laid by the heels at last, and the stamp traders, particularly in Europe, where he operated, heave a sigh of relief.

For several years past the Syndicate of Stamp Dealers in Paris have been bringing pressure to bear on the government to stop the flow of amazingly executed forgeries of rare stamps which this man has been producing and marketing without hindrance. For owing to the French law permitting manufacture and sale of facsimilies of stamps, provided they are sold as such, it has been heretofore impossible to prevent him from turning out his little masterpieces of engraving.

PASS AS GENUINE

Luckily the French government has at last realized that though these fakes may in the first instance be sold as copies, it is not long before they fall into the hands of people who pass them off as genuine, for they are so well done that even experts have sometimes disagreed as to their status.

So Sperati was hailed into court, was given two years' suspended sentence, fined 120,000 francs, and must pay the Syndicate of Dealers 500,000 francs damages. This is in recompense for the adverse effect of his activities on the market for rare stamps.

Wealthy collectors who had been buying partly as an investment naturally got cold feet when they found that their treasures could be almost perfectly copied for a small fraction of their cost.

TO GET EVEN

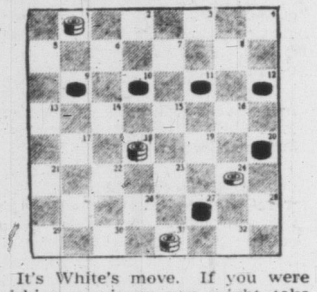
As a matter of fact, this was exactly Sperati's intention when he turned his hand to forging. At one time he had been a keen philatelist, and had spent considerable sums on his hobby, until he discovered that some dealers had been selling him at high prices faked and repaired stamps that were practically worthless. This upset him so much that he decided to get even with the stamp trade in general. Being an expert printer and engraver (his father had a high class establishment of this nature) he devoted his time to the manufacture of counterfeit stamps, and soon had the trade in a dither.

* * *

The advent of the new catalogues is always looked on as the season-opener for philatelic activities. Both the Gibbons and Scotts 1953 editions have come to hand, and these will be eagerly scanned by all good collectors to check off prices with the old volumes.

Local interest centres mostly in the B.N.A. group, and a look at Canada shows quite a few items showing increases, starting with the 3d 1951. The dollar values of the Jubilees and many 20th Century issues have been priced upwards. Biggest jump is the 50c Lumbering O.H.M.S., which has doubled in value, being now $8.50 unused and $7.00 used.

Your Move to Win



It's White's move. If you were picking a winner you might take Black. You'd lose your bet if you did. White, moving upboard, wins in four moves.

Solution: White moves 1-S, Black jumps 20-27; White jumps 5-16, Black jumps 12-19, White jumps 31-22 to win.

Only five icebergs during the 1951 iceberg season are known to have drifted south of the 48th parallel, approximately the southern limit of Newfoundland. Such a low number is unprecedented.

A—The ball used in the United States is 1.68 inches in diameter; the one used in other countries is 1.62 inches.

* * *

Q—Can radar spot human beings?

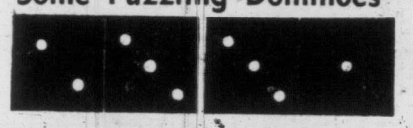
A—Yes.

* * *

Q—Why is there such a difference in the number of eggs produced by various creatures?

A—Danger to eggs and young determines the number produced.

Some Puzzling Dominoes



Most everyone has an old set of dominoes around the house. You can use them to work out an amusing puzzle. Note the two stones above. They are placed in such a manner that by counting the spots in their unbroken numerical order you can count all the digits from one to nine inclusive. That is, you can use the spots one and three to get four; two and three to get five; three and three to get six; three, three and one to get seven; two, three and three to get eight; one, two, three and three to total nine.

Now for the big test—select four certain stones from your domino set and try to arrange them in such a way that the spots, taken in their unbroken numerical order, can be added up to make all the numbers from one to twenty-three.

Solution: Place the following four stones end to end in the order given: 1 Double one-spot; 2 Deuce four-spot; 3 Four-three spot; 4 Double three-spot.

Reviewing the Records

By HOMER JENKS

Lee Wiley, direct descendant of a Cherokee Indian princess and an English missionary, has been a favorite singer among jazz musicians for years. The late George Gershwin preferred her interpretations of his songs, and Eddie Condon would permit no other girl vocalist to appear in his famed New York Town Hall and Carnegie Hall jazz concerts.

Lee demonstrates anew her claim to jazz fame in two albums for Columbia, one featuring Irving Berlin songs and the other, Vincent Youman's selections. She hasn't much voice and what there is sounds pretty husky, but her caressing, intimate style puts a new polish on such old favorites as "How Deep Is the Ocean?", "I Got Lost in His Arms," "Time on My Hands," "More Than You Know" and "Keepin' Myself for You." The accompaniment is in the capable hands of the two-piano team of Stan Freeman and Cy Walter.

NEW FILM ALBUM

M.G.M. has just issued another album taken directly from the sound track of a film musical. This time it's "The Merry Widow," featuring the voice of Fernando Lamas in such familiar Franz Lehar selections as "The Merry Widow Waltz," "Maxim's" and "Villa."

On the new singles, Bing Crosby in his old relaxed self on the ballad, "Do You Care?" The reverse side has Woodie Herman and His Woodchoppers backing Bing in the hand-clapping oldie, "Deep in the Heart of Texas" (Decca) . . . Jo Stafford scores with a lovely tone poem, "Early Autumn," backed by a rousing song of the Louisiana bayou country, "Jambalaya" (Columbia) . . . Peggy Lee and Gordon Jenkins' orchestra apply the same raucous, fast-tempoed style that made "Lover" a best-seller to "Just One of Those Things" and back it up with more conventional treatment of the ballad "I'm Glad There Is You" (Decca) . . .

Leroy Holmes and His Orchestra offer a most danceable version of "The Gypsy in My Soul." On the flip-over is "The Girls Are Marching," dedicated to our women soldiers (M.G.M.) . . . Spike Jones and His Country Cousins and Jerry Shard and His Music come up simultaneously with corny versions of the famed Henry Busse muted trumpet number, "Hot Lips." Spike's version on Victor has "Hotter Than a Pistol" on the reverse side, and Jerry's on Capitol, "Can, Can Can."

The popularity of the "Personality Parade of Children's Portraits," sponsored by the Hudson's Bay Company and the Victoria Daily Times, is evident from the large number of Victoria youngsters taking part in the big contest.

A total of 1,400 portraits have been taken since the contest was opened on the second floor of the Hudson's Bay Co. store two weeks ago. Some of the children came from as far as Duncan to have their pictures taken.

Winner of the best child photograph will receive a merchandise scrip worth $50 to be awarded at the end of the contest next Saturday. The second prizewinner will receive a scrip worth $25, and the third prizewinner a scrip for $10.

There are also prizes for the best child photograph of the week. The name of the winner for the first week will be announced Monday.

Contest judges are Bill Halkett, Times news photographer; Mrs. Nancy Hodges, Times columnist and M.L.A.-elect, and A. G. Culver, divisional manager for the Hudson's Bay.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

"There will be no Nobel peace prize this year."

And darn little peace, either.

What I can't quite understand is, how the grain elevator has grown so much more valuable in just a few months.

It must be maturing with age, or something.

At any rate, it is nice to see the price climb on the elevator. If it could only rise enough for the city to pay for the grain elevator before selling it. . .

They seem to give away a great many things at hockey games in Victoria.

Between each period, the public address system booms out additional sets of lucky numbers.

I like the way the announcer handles it. He says "Go to the penalty box at once and get your reward."

The New Westminster team seemed to have the wrong idea last night, though. Every time a member was asked to go to the penalty box to receive his reward, he complained bitterly.

I guess New Westminster does not understand Victoria hospitality.

My favorite wife is a hockey fan from 'way back, having been brought up on a diet of National League hockey since she was a youngster.

I am glad to report that, after last night, she has no regrets at missing the current N.H.L. season. She says she's seen a lot duller and more ragged games at the peak of the season in Toronto than the pre-season exhibition at Memorial Arena.

In fact, in 10 minutes she was converted from a skeptic to a loyal and vocal Cougar rooter.

Victoria is fortunate to have such a hustling, hard-driving team. And Victoria certainly is a sports town, when it packs the arena for an exhibition.

It is encouraging to see this truly Canadian sport so well supported.

Elevator Price Boost Rejected

Patton Says City Can't Accept Bid Received Three Days After Deadline

A new offer from Kerr Gifford Ltd., of $250,000 for Ogden Point grain elevator cannot legally be accepted by the city, Arthur Patton, solicitor, said today.

At the same time, Duncan D. McTavish, representing Kerr Gifford Ltd., said he had "reason to believe there is some chance of the new offer being reconsidered" owing to legal technicalities.

He admitted the matter is under study by legal counsel. The offer is $47,500 higher than the bid council accepted.

Mayor Claude Harrison felt the city would have to stick to its $202,500 bargain of Thursday with Hallet and Carey, B.C. Ltd., but he said he had other information about which he could say nothing now.

He declined to elaborate.

"There's nothing the city can do," City Solicitor Patton contended. "It has already sold the building."

While Mayor Harrison and City Manager Cecil Wyatt felt the city would have to go through with the sale to Hallet and Carey, each added qualifying words.

"As far as I can see, the sale should go through," said the mayor. "When we accept a tender we should stay by it."

"I don't know of any circumstance at the moment, whereby the city could accept the new offer," was Mr. Wyatt's comment.

Kerr Gifford Ltd. of Portland, present tenants of the elevator, bid $201,500. Mr. McTavish, their agent stated he made a verbal offer of $250,000 to the mayor and several aldermen following Thursday's meeting which accepted the $202,500 bid of Hallet and Carey.

"The mayor and aldermen said it could not be accepted," said Mr. McTavish. "I suggested the mayor send the council resolution accepting the other bid, back for reconsideration, just as he did on the Prince Robert House matter. The mayor said he could not do that."

Friday Mr. Kerr wired the new offer to the city manager.

Bids Closed Sept. 30

"Bids closed Sept. 30," said the manager. "The new offer was not received until Oct. 3."

He added that references to date have been to the $434,917 in principal and interest which the city still owes on the elevator.

"Some consideration may be given to the value of the $205,000 received when invested," Mr. Wyatt said.

"It too has earning power. Invested with interest it would approximate very closely the city's obligation in principal and interest on the elevator."

Invested at "even a simple interest of 4 per cent" he said the $200,000 "would earn $184,000" by 1975.

It was on action of Mayor Harrison that bids were called on the elevator. He opposed a lands committee move in August which would have given a lease to Kerr Gifford Ltd. for increased rent and an option to purchase for $150,000. He said it was not sufficient.

Following council acceptance of the $202,500 bid Thursday, he stated he still believed the building was worth more but felt there was no use holding out, since "they all want to sell it."

"I was certain it was worth more, but what can you do?"

The city has only a "leasehold" of the property on which the elevator stands. It pays rent to the federal government for the property. It is believed this may be one of the legal points under study by Kerr Gifford interests.

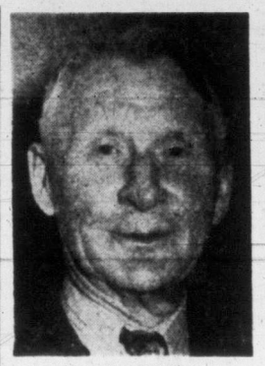
Miss Zybina won the event in the Helsinki Olympics with a world record toss of 50 feet, 2.58 inches.



TOM KING

Old Warhorse May Race for Golden Seat

The Liberals may draft the "Sage of Golden" in an effort to win back their old Columbia seat in the coming by-election.

Tom King, 74, who held the Columbia seat for the Liberals for about 20 years, is being pressed to come out of retirement and contest the by-election, called by the government in an attempt to seat Attorney-General Robert Bonner, a non-elected minister.

In the good-natured philosopher from the Interior, the Liberals hope to have a strong candidate in the contest. He has successfully contested seven elections in Columbia riding.

He retired last year, and the Liberal candidate in the general election was V. S. Kimpton. He was beaten by 300 votes by Socred R. O. Newton.

Mr. King owns a general store and farm at Golden.

V.M.D.-Built Vessel Readied for Navy Job

By MONTE ROBERTS
Times Marine Reporter

The Pacific Command of the Royal Canadian Navy will soon accept a new ship—H.M.C.S. Port la Reine, sturdy deep-drafted, trawler-type gate vessel, built by Victoria Machinery Depot.

Port la Reine is approaching the end of her builders' and acceptance trials, and will be turned over to the navy in about a week. She was launched last sprng, the first ship completed on Vancouver Island in the navy's current building program.

Navy observers are well satisfied with her performance to date. Her next trials, in Juan de Fuca Strait, will be on Tuesday.

Her sister ship, Port Quebec, built by Burrard Drydocks, was recently accepted by the navy, and is attached to H.M.C.S. Naden as an auxiliary vessel. Port la Reine will also be attached to the Pacific Command.

The 20-year-old Ss. Princess Norah is to have a new set of boilers. Her hull and machinery are in very good condition, and the new boilers will add years to her life.

She was in to V.M.D., Bay Street, two weeks ago for inspection, and the experts decreed that the old boilers might develop trouble. So out they'll come, to be replaced by new ones.

The radiotelephone distress and calling frequency used by West Coast radio stations of the department of transport has been changed from 1630 kilocycles to 2182 kilocycles.

Stations involved are: Alert Bay, Bull Harbor, Cape Lazo, Dead Tree Point, Estevan, Prince Rupert, Vancouver and Victoria.

Sailors take warning: Nine bundles of logs have been lost from a tow in Juan de Fuca Strait, in the neighborhood of Sombrio River. These logs are a menace to navigation.

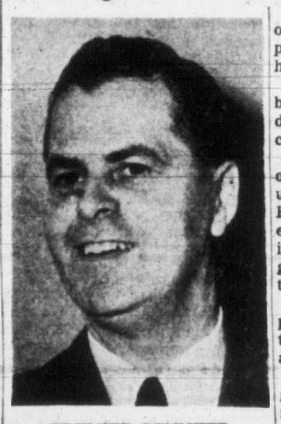
Details aren't yet available, but the department of transport has established a new flashing white light on Bamber Point, and a new day beacon on Irving Point, Tribune Channel.

BENNETT FEARS CHAOS IN B.C.

Premier Urges Electorate To Support His Ministers

By GORDON FORBES

Social Credit or chaos. . . . This is the issue in the Similkameen and Columbia by-elections, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said today on his return from a week's tour of interior ridings.



PREMIER BENNETT
. . . must risk chaos.

"Social Credit can bring order out of chaos, and I call on all people to support our ministers," he declared.

He said the government has been busy in the last two months doing what it could by order-in-council.

Noting there will be a session of the Legislature in late January or early February, Premier Bennett said it must be apparent to all thinking people it is imperative to have the attorney-general and finance minister sitting in the House.

The finance minister, he explained, must be there to present the budget and answer, personally, questions regarding it.

The attorney-general, as the government's first legal adviser, must be in the House to explain questions of law regarding new legislation and amendments, he said.

"The calling of by-elections is part of the Social Credit's plan to bring stability to British Columbia in its greatest period of industrial activity," said Premier Bennett.

Queried about reports that the government is planning to establish treasury branches in B.C., similar to Alberta, the Premier explained that the question had merely been asked of him at an Edgewater meeting.

"My reply was that we would take such a step if and when the situation requires it," the Premier explained.

He indicated no decision has been made to set up treasury branches.

"We believe in meeting problems when we come to them," he added.

One of Two Cars Stolen Overnight Recovered Damaged

Two cars were stolen in the city during the night. One was recovered in a damaged condition near Duncan and another was still on the missing list at press times, city police reported.

Julian Labrosse, 1261 Denman, awoke this morning to find his car, parked in his driveway overnight, had been stolen. Police were notified and 10 minutes later were notified by the R.C.M.P. that Mr. Labrosse's car has been found abandoned about two miles south of Duncan. About $50 damage had been done to it.

Donald D. Mann, 3268 Alder, reported to city police at midnight that his Model A two-door sedan had been stolen from Fernwood Road near the Victoria High School earlier in the evening.

Cerebral Palsy Group Explains Independence

Any organization formed here to aid cerebral palsy sufferers will not be under jurisdiction of the Cerebral Palsy Association of B.C according to Mrs. P. G. W. Dufour, secretary of the Pythian cerebral palsy committee of Victoria.

The committee is now helping to organize an association of parents of sufferers and representatives from interested groups. The Pythian group will be only one member of any city-wide organization formed.

MINISTER MUM ON OAKALLA RIOT PROBE

Attorney - General Robert Bonner will confer with Oakalla prison warden Hugh Christie Sunday afternoon in Vancouver in connection with Thursday's prison riot.

Mr. Bonner, before entering a cabinet meeting this morning, declined comment on the possibility of an investigation into the riot.

He also declined comment on the government's plans for speeding up construction of the new jail at Haney which would relieve congestion at Okalla.

Placing of two prisoners in one cell was the cause of the riot. Completion of the Haney jail will abolish the necessity of doubling up at Oakalla.

Driver Fined After Crash Injures Two

John Wesley Starck, 19, of 928 Selkirk, driver of a car involved in a traffic crash which sent two women to hospital Friday night, was fined $50 and his license was suspended for three months in city police court today.

He pleaded guilty to dangerous driving.

Starck was in collision with a car driven by Mrs. Mary Sands, 900 North Park, at Burdett and Quadra at 7.40 p.m. Mrs. Sands and her passenger, Mrs. Hope Myles, 605 Michigan, were treated for minor hurts at Royal Jubilee Hospital.

PASSED TRUCK

Constable Richard Ward told the court that accused was proceeding south on Quadra and in swinging around to pass a truck ran into the side of Mrs. Sands' car.

The officer said Starck's vehicle continued down the Quadra Street hill and turned onto McClure before it came to a halt—a distance of about 450 feet.

Constable Ward said the driver had been drinking.

Thieves Steal Fishing Gear

Sgt.-Maj. W. Harmston of Gordon Head Army Camp lost his fishing gear and Harry Turner 2067 Crescent Road, will have to take to the oars for his fishing jaunts as a result of thefts amounting to more than $300 in Oak Bay this week, police report.

Thieves tore the hasp off the door of a boathouse owned by James Baird, 2066 Marne, and stole the two rods, complete with reels and lines, Sgt.-Major Harmston had stored there. They also took the Briggs-Stratten engine out of the boat Mr. Turner had left on the beach near the boathouse.

The boathouse is located on the Foul Bay Beach near the foot of Marne.

Blue House leaders are Shirley Polson and Bill Stockall. Peter Sparks captains the soccer team. Volleyball skippers are Sylvia Erb and Yvonne Bradley, Don Norbury and Harold Jacobsen.

Ticket-Sale Race Prizes Vary From Fuel to Puppy

By RUTH SONES

Any Vic High student suffering from severe chills or lacking friends need no longer worry. With little effort these unhappy characters can be the proud owners of two cords of dry wood, a companionable cocker puppy, or a mantle radio. Those who find they are not useful in dark corners might find two flash-lights handy.

These are only a few of the many prizes being offered by the students council to the city school's top salemen. Wearing grim expressions the sellers of the famous "Booster Pass," the school's financial life-blood, will again accost friends and relatives with sales talks and piles of four-ticket booklets.

Not only an investment in school activities, the passes also admit purchasers to five thrilling Friday night Totem games before Christmas. To the business-like division selling the most goes a banner. There's a free theatre ticket to all those who sell at least one booklet.

On hand at all games this year will be peppy cheer leaders chosen on Tuesday by house captains. These never-tiring performers rouse cheers with plenty of eye-catching action.

SOCIAL OCCASION

First big social event of the year was held on Friday night in the form of a staff-sponsored dance.

Casually-dressed dancers found no trouble keeping in step with the mellow strains of Bernie Porter's orchestra. Designed to acquaint new students with one another, the event featured two "draws," where previously chosen partners were claimed by the gentlemen.

Three Houses Aim at Title

BY JILL UPWARD

Competitive sports rank high as Mount Douglas High's three rival houses, Fraser, Skeena and Douglas gather points toward the inter-house shield.

Ping-pong, grass hockey and soccer top the list.

The house standings are as follows: Douglas, 27; Fraser, 26; Skeena, 19.

The school paper, The Summit, is well on its way and the first issue will go to press Oct 17.

A mammoth country fair will be held at Mount Douglas High School on October 22. The Parent-Teachers' Association has kindly offered to take charge of the tea and home-cooking.

This year a project of the Parent-Teachers' Association is to supply the three houses with sweaters for inter-house games.

S. J. Willis Elects Council Candidates

BY PATRICIA PETRIE

The excitement and suspense of the provincial elections is dying. But for the students of S. J. Willis, elections have just reached a climax.

For the last week and a half the students have been busy nominating candidates to represent their various classes in Student Council.

The elections were held in the classes last Tuesday. Candidates who were elected as class representatives are: May Lim, Grade IX A; Margaret Kennedy, IX B; Ken Martindale, IX C; Edythe Ticknor, IX D; David Mar, IX E; Wynona Foster, IX F; Gerry Gee, VIII A; Elaine Halstrom, VIII B; Russel Lang, VIII C; Beverly Lidstone, VIII D; Yvonne Boynton, VIII E; Gordon Monroe, VIII F; Beverley Sinclair, VIII G; Bob Jones, VII A; Don Kirbe, VII B; Judy Worthington, VII C; King Lee, VII D; Bernice Rogers, VII E; Jim Marshall, VII F and Wendy Copeland, VII G.

FRENCH START SCHOOL AT 4

It is very hard to compare the education systems of Canada and France in brief, but M. Ray Halin, journalist and singer of Paris, who has been visiting here, points to one big difference: French children start to work at their lessons when they are four.

"By the time he is eight," says M. Halin, "he will tackle the natural sciences."

The average French student is about three years ahead of the Canadian he says. And he is contributing an article in next Saturday's Hi-Times to tell about it.

Belmont Initiates School Newcomers

BY DENNIS GAVIN

The annual initiation for the Grade VII's at Belmont High is completed.

The mutual fun of the initiation started when the beginners came clad in the usual comic outfits, delivering low bows to every Grade XII student they met.

The last period of the day was given over to an onion race and other events—the onions being rolled down the centre corridor by Grade VII noses.

This was followed by an obstacle race through tires, under sawdust piles, which was the cause of a lot of gaiety.

The ceremony was ended when the school pledge, delivered by Robin Kitching, was repeated by the new members. Then, for their sportsmanship, the Grade VII's received refreshments.

Students To Address First P.T.A. Meeting

The first meeting of the term for Mount View Parent-Teacher Association will be held on Tuesday, October 7 at 8 p.m. in the school library.

Introductory speeches will be given by Allen Fatt, student council president; Barbara Whiteley, "Scribe" editor; Pete Winter, house representative; Dave Price sport council president and Elfie Jernslet, Y-teens president.

On the agenda will be the meeting of new teachers, to tour at the new construction scene, and a welcome from the P.T.A. president, A. G. Hemming.

Esquimalt's Commencement Wednesday

BY SHIRLEY HALLMARK

Esquimalt's commencement exercises next Wednesday afternoon, featuring scholarship, cup and trophy awards, will have a special item on the program. A gold drama award pin will be presented to the best all-round drama student, commencing this year.

Plans for a series of radio plays are being taken over by the drama club and should interest a number of students. Main project of the club for October will be the sponsorship of the Halloween dance, "Witch Wiggle," on October 24.

A very active girls' Y-teens club exists in the school this year, led by president Val Jeanes, and sponsor Miss M. McKay.

Executive officers are: Secretary, Bev Ross; treasurer, Gladys Hodge; vice-president, Jean Saunders; publicity, Dianne Sandford; reporter, Gloria Molofy; ceremonial chairman, Barb Campbell; service, Doreen Ray, social chairman, Bev Ross; standards chairman, Jean Saunders.

Two house parties have taken place since the beginning of the term. Canvassing for the Community Chest and initiation plans are well under way.

Swimming enthusiasts will find a big increase in the size of the club this year. Use of H.M.C.S. Naden pool will add to the enjoyment of the sessions, and facilitate the Esquimalt students' training.

Mary Armstrong, president of the splashers last year, will take on the same duties until the elections of the new executive. Practices are under way in preparation for the annual inter-schools gala this fall.

Charles Ozard will train the school swimmers, assisted by Miss M. McKay.

Oak Bay 'Prelims' Enjoy First Dance

BY BRIAN GRIER

The "prelim" dance was held Friday afternoon at Oak Bay High when the seemingly bewildered and somewhat bashful grade-niners had the opportunity of getting acquainted with their upper classmates. After a slow start the newcomers joined in the fun and eventually enjoyed it.

Norman Dixon did a swell job as M.C.

There has been a wave of enthusiasm about the forthcoming fair, which is to be based on a pirate theme. The committee heads for the different stalls have been chosen and are now busy selecting assistants.

There have been early morning special classes in instrumental and choir work, under the direction of Mr. G. King, the week past. He reports keen participation by surprisingly large numbers.

Girl Student Heads Milnes Landing High

By DOROTHY ARTHURS

Highlight since returning to school at Milnes Landing High was the election of the students' council.

As usual, campaigning was in full swing right up until voting time. Myrna Reid was elected president, becoming the first girl elected to this post in six years.

Others elected were: Vice-president, Evelyn Arthurs; secretary, Dorothy Arthurs; treasurer, Gail Lajeunesse; girls' sports representative, Elinor Eve; boys' sports representative, Pat George.

BLIND WORKERS

WEYBURN, Sask. (CP)—More than 1,500 of the 19,000 blind people in Canada are completely self-supporting, a meeting here was told by field secretary R. V. Rudolph of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind.

Guiding Students' Destinies at Oak Bay

ECONOMY MARKS HALLOWE'EN HOP

Plans are under way for the first school dance of the new school term at Mount View.

The dance will have a Hallowe'en motif Oct. 24.

Costumes will be on a hard-times theme.

The same theme will be carried out in decorations and refreshments.

CULLED Off The CAMPUS

Congratulations are due Jim Mitchell, valedictorian of last year's Oak Bay High graduating class and past president of the Student Council, who has been presented with a subscription to the Reader's Digest for one year and an engraved certificate in recognition of his high scholastic ability and fine leadership.

Barry Lang, of Grade VIII, is the boys' table tennis champion of S.J. Willis. He defeated Hunky Lowe, also of Grade VIII, three games to one, Thursday.

In the girls' tournament, Beverley Greggor of Grade VIII placed first, with Darlaine Bagshaw runner-up.

A panel of four judges has chosen Mount View's cheer leaders for the coming sport season. Competition was keen and tension high. The four judges: Mr. Robert Huddleston, staff representative; Mr. D. Falconer, team sponsor; Alan Fatt, Student Council president; and Leslie Duplaine, student representative, had a tough job to choose the four most elegible for the team. After much consultation and puzzling, the following girls were elected: Florence Scrimshaw, Joan Kelter, Marj Lawson and Jagdish Baines.

These girls will head a cheer club made up of students attending all games and activities and those pupils interested in cheering on their school teams.

North America was credited with 43,424,000 of the total 70,300,000 telephones in the world in 1950.

Mount View Students Organizing New Clubs

BY MARJORIE LAWSON

Many new clubs are being formed this year at Mount View High and many of the old ones have got under way.

The students' council, first and foremost in the minds of all students, has been formed for the new term. President is Alan Fatt. Vice-presidents are Jean Diespecker and Norm Russell. Secretary and treasurer are Florence Scrimshaw and Diane Streeton, respectively.

Others on the council are: House captains Anne Snowsell, Pete Winter and Ken Murray; Scribe editor Barbara Whiteley, and Y-Teens' president Elfie Jernslet. Class presidents are Doug Jones, Kenny Lee, Marg South, Dig Peadneault, Leslie Duplain, Art Walker, Keith Hunter and Dick Granger.

The first meeting of the swimming club was held and a slate of officers was chosen. Joan Kelter was again chosen president with Gary Jones chosen as vice-president. Wednesday evening was chosen for swimming sessions at the Crystal Garden. This should be a good year for the swimming club.

A large group of enthusiastic girls attended the opening meeting of the Mount View Y-Teens. Elfie Jernslet is president and Anita Baird vice-president. Secretary and treasurer are Lorraine Baird and Kay Vowles, respectively. Inter-high delegate will be Donna Finch. The club has again sponsored the pop-stand.

At an organization meeting of Mount View's Glee Club, Norm Russell was elected to sit in the presidential seat. Assisting him are secretary Pat Russell and librarian Gail Anderson. Publicity chairman is Marlene Hunt, Jackie Ormond, Marlene Hunt and possibly some other will be accompanists. The Glee Club will sing at the first assembly set for October.

After many hours of hard work the Scribe rolled off the presses at noon last Thursday. It was filled with many interesting features, editorials, gossip columns, sports write-ups and fashion news. Congratulations go to Editor Barbara Whiteley, sponsor and staff.

Central Junior Hears Own Voice Recordings

By JOSEPH HAEGERT

There's a new recording machine at Central Junior High.

It will be put to a variety of uses. But one of its first was in the music classes.

Divisions V and VI made recordings of several songs in which they had been drilled. Then they were treated to a play-back. It was the very best of criticisms.

The photography club is off to a good start this year. Business is excellent. Members are making a good job of developing film and printing.

They are also making enlargements and for this they charge a small fee.

The club serves a dual purpose. It not only teaches its members a useful hobby but encourages photography amongst the student body in general.

D. V. Dore, sponsor and member of the staff, says the club has no financial worries.

Red Cross representatives from each devision elected their president, Barbara Jones, and vice-president, Bill Wilson. Dorcas Whittaker is secretary-treasurer. Red Cross membership of the school is expected to include every student.

Bewildered Freshmen Learn To Like It

Freshmen's bewilderment at various Esquimalt High School activities and seemingly strange systems came to a climax Friday night as they turned out in full force for the opening dance, appropriately named "Hi-Ball."

Don Silcocks, master of ceremonies, backed by Hugh Gray's orchestra, played a major part in keeping the dancers entertained. Spot, elimination and bingo dances made a hit with the new participants, but running a close second pop and do-nuts were served during intermission. Ken Campbell, social convener, and a group of enthusiastic students were responsible for the effective decorations in the gym.

Mt. Newton Students Win Prizes at Fair

Fifteen exhibitors from Mount Newton High School won prizes at the Saanichton Fair, held recently.

Here is the prize list: Sylvia Cave, Marlene Henderson, Carolyn Sinkinson, Doris McCullough, Joan Molyneus, Patsy Scott, Judy Goddard, Claudia Butler.

Linda Brooks, Georgette Scriven, Leola Mlchell, Margaret Callander, Heather Wishart, Rose Hetherington took awards in home economics work.

'LOCAL YOKELS' OUTNUMBERED

St. Ann's Dormitories Cosmopolitan Club

By KAREN HOLM

This year at St. Ann's Academy the boarding school has a distinct cosmopolitan flavor.

To be sure, we have some "local yokels," six to be exact, but the rest are recent "imports."

Our "hayseed crop" from Decker Lake includes Linda, Greta and Shirley Andersen, and Lavinia Froese—put your shoes on, gal!

Also from the Interior we have Rose Marini from Kamloops. Vancouver contributed Patricia Malley and Marilyn Deharnais.

Vancouver Island has representatives from Nanaimo and Sayward Landing, Myrna Daines and Lea Boyd, respectively.

Our one "Yankee" in exile is Donna Reidel from Port Angeles. We have a bumper crop this year from the sun-baked land of Central America, with all coming from San Salvador. Vicki Lassaly, an old-timer, has been here for two years. Vicki is very proud of herself, for she speaks English like a native. The others are Martha Vasquez, Norma Paloma, Lydia Corticelli, our most recent addition. To hold a conversation with Lydia one must often resort to hand signs. Last, but certainly not least, are Elsa, Luz, Lassaly and Carmen Trigueros. These girls are proving to us that they are fast picking up the ways of our land, for when one is missing, a voice will pipe up, "Oh Seester, she has gone for some feesh and cheeps."

Carmen is our world traveler who just returned Wednesday from Europe, where she visited Portugal, Spain, France, Belgium, Holland, Switzerland and Ireland—also New York City. Her newly acquired wardrobe has a distinctly Parisian touch, with some American thrown in, and is without doubt the envy of all—Oh, tres chic.

Lastly, we have Ann Large, who is just the opposite of what her name might imply. This petite blonde hails from Manila in the Philippines. For those who complain about school hours here, try Manila.

There, from grade six on, they go to school from 7.30 a.m. to 5 p.m.—and we think that we're hard done by! Ann informs us that if you like heat, Manila is the place to go. However, it is still largely in ruins as a result of the war, so don't expect luxury.

It's New... It's Original... and it's yours for the asking...

PROBLEMS OF CANADIAN DEMOCRACY

Solution Sought in Nation's Early History

(This is the first of a series of summaries of lectures delivered by Prof. C. S. Burchill on "Problems of Canadian Democracy." He is addressing Victoria College evening extension classes. Here he commences discussion of the problem of French Canada and some of the background which created it.)

"When most of us went to school, arithmetic periods were blighted by things called "problems." But every problem had a solution.

Problems in political arithmetic are what we are introducing here.

For each of the problems presented we can only work honestly and rather humbly, with such understanding and good will as we are capable of exercising, towards the best solution we can get.

French Canada poses the first problem for consideration.

"How can a minority group within a democracy, differing in language, in religion, in culture and tradition, in social pattern and in international outlook from the majority group, contrive to maintain the integrity guaranteed to it in the past by treay, by law and by the constitution?"

French Canada knows the will of the majority is likely to prevail in a democracy. French Canada knows treaties can be broken, laws can be repealed and constitutions can be amended.

For at least a century and a half the problem of survival . . . "la survivance" . . . has obsessed the best minds in French Canada.

The average citizen of any province other than Quebec regards the French Canada problem as belonging with an obstructive minority. To this average citizen the solution lies in devising a pattern for cajoling or coercing the minority into supporting, or at least tolerating, the policy favored by the majority.

From the point of view of the Anglo-Canadian, there is no French-Canadian problem. There is only a simple exercise in political arithmetic: embracing enough votes to gain a point, and enough policemen to enforce it.

But the best, indeed the only way, to arrive at an understanding of any political problem is through the historical approach . . . although this, too, has its drawbacks.

One must start by grasping the existing problem. Then one digs into the past to find the origin of the problem and possible hints for its solution. You may provide through this study a reasoned program for intelligent action which, in a democracy, can compel enlightened policy.

The period where we must look for the origins of the French problems is in Western Europe of 350 years ago. It was then that the flow of ideas and institutions across the Atlantic to this country commenced.

During the entire period Canada was a French colony, when institutions of government were imported and worked into the permanent framework of the nation, an administrative chaos persisted in France. It was not until 30 years after Canada had been ceded to Britain that the French revolution finally swept away the feudal anachronisms. But they had rooted here, where the revolution did not impinge.

The institutions of government were not alone among those undergoing fundamental changes in the 16th and 17th centuries in France. While government institutions controlled men's bodies, it was the church which controlled their minds and directed their ideas.

The authority of the Church and of its priests was enormous and their influence wide.

Henry of Navarre's seizure of the throne of France made possible, for a time, creation of a religious asylum in New France. But in 1610 he was murdered and Richelieu, to all intents and purposes, became the government of France. From that time only good Roman Catholics came to Canada. So it is natural colonial religious institutions were to bear the imprint of the French of the 17th century. The religious pattern had set in Canada while it was still fluid in the old land, nor did the French revolution affect it, here, as it did in Europe.

Four institutions . . . the chartered company, the re-integrated Catholic Church, the disentegrating feudal type of government and the expansion of the European powers towards new frontiers . . . combined to mould the French institutions which have survived to this day in Canada.

The Still Sweet Fall of Music

Music is a great art, a broad stream with many tributaries. Those who really love it do not confine their concert-going to that small segment of music they know. They attend a symphony concert every time one is presented knowing they will emerge refreshed, stimulated, broader in spirit and knowledge. They will hear music they know and music which is new to them. . . . They will strengthen the supports under their community's chief musical glory, and enrich their own lives. . . . The regular pursuit of this course is the only one by which men and women become true friends of music. If music has this power, the symphony orchestra in a city has the ability to influence greatly the lives of those who hear good music. . . . And this music, by helping people become better, can help change the character of an entire city.

Hans Gruber, popular young conductor of Victoria Symphony Orchestra, will mount the podium Monday evening to commence his fifth symphony year in Victoria.

At the first concert of the symphony season on Monday at the Royal Theatre, Mozart's Prague Symphony will be presented. At left, Mrs. W. A. McElmoyle, Mrs. H. M. Newson and Mrs. F. A. E. Manning listen to a recording of this number while they wait to pick up their season's tickets. Mrs. Ronald Whittington, an ardent music lover and a season's ticketholder for many years, has again taken tickets for all the concerts. Right, Donna Whitehead, Donna Easton, Garrie McNaughton and Kenny Walters, executive members of S. J. Willis Junior High School Band, receive their tickets from C. H. Denike, school music teacher, for Sunday afternoon rehearsals of the symphony orchestra, which school children are privileged to attend.

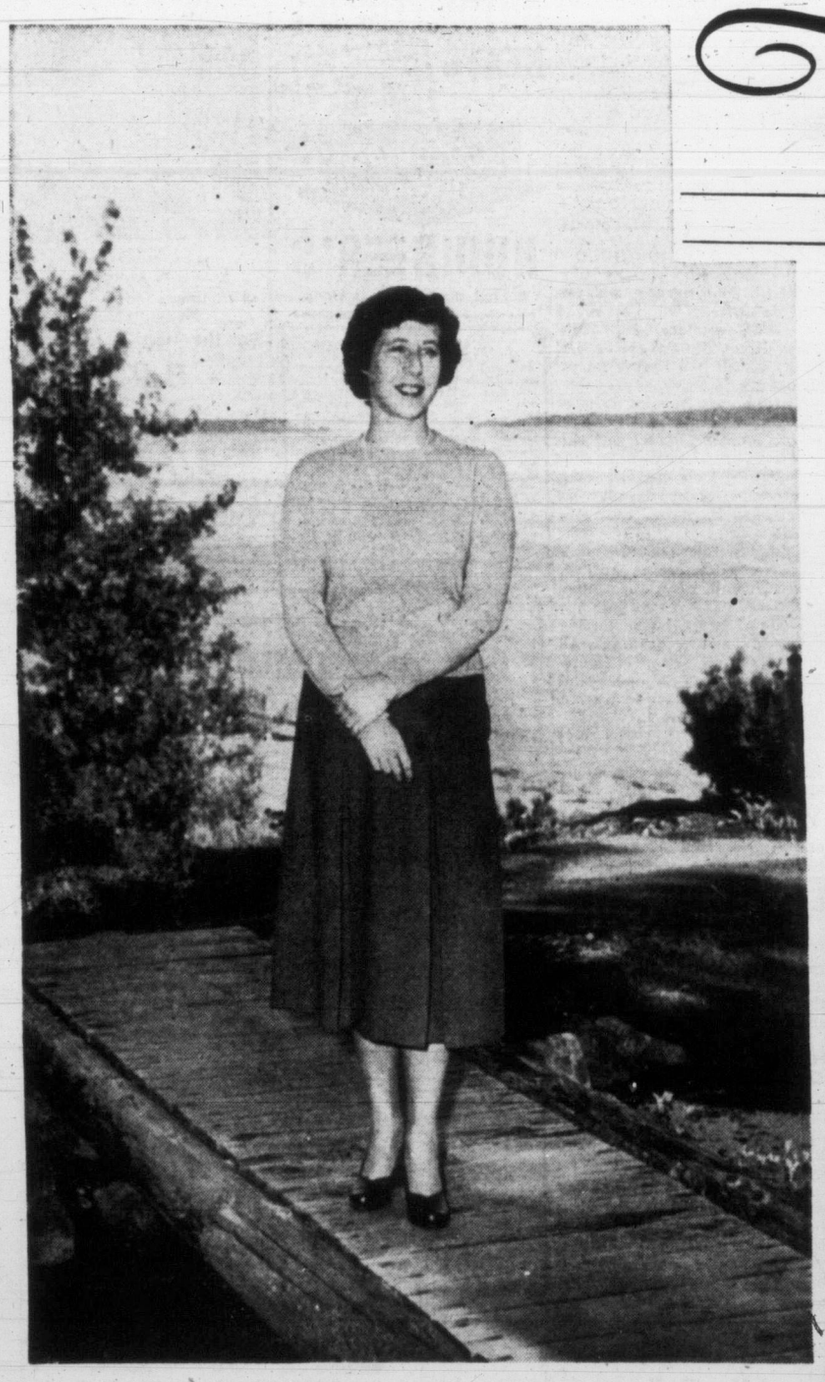
With the first breath of autumn, daughters of two well-known families hear the call of far-off places and are away to visit friends and relatives in other lands . . . to see the coronation, too, for both will remain overseas for a year. . . . Another young visitor in the city will experience a winter in the north country, where the snow lies deep and quiet and the Aurora Borealis sends colored fingers across the starlit skies.



Miss Pamela Merston, Beach Drive, left Friday for Vancouver where she met Miss Sheila Stewart, who will accompany her to England. They are traveling to Quebec City via Chicago, from where they will sail in the Samaria. Miss Merston will visit friends and relatives in the British Isles and will attend the Coronation in June. (Photo by Bill Halkett.)

Miss Elizabeth Molson leaves Victoria on Oct. 16 for England where she plans to spend the next year. En route she will visit friends in Montreal before sailing on the Empress of Canada on Oct. 24. Late in November, she will fly to Gibraltar to spend 10 days or so touring in the south of Spain. (Photo by Rice, Montreal.)

Visiting her cousin, Mrs. T. H. Johns, Somass Drive, en route to Ketchikan, Alaska, is Mrs. C. F. Fortlage. The young visitor was married recently in Pasadena, Calif., and is going to the northern city to join her husband who is with the Coast Guard. Mrs. Fortlage, who is enjoying her first trip to this city, was honored at a tea held by Mrs. Johns yesterday. (Photo by Irving Strickland.)

SHOPPING GUIDE

Found Something New For the Cupboard, Ma

By PENNY SAVER

What's new in the cupboard, Ma?

If you are really keeping up to date with the modern conveniences you'll answer, "A plastic egg dispenser."

But then I know you're busy and you haven't all day to browse through the stores looking for these things so here is all the data on my latest discovery.

The dispenser is the width of an egg and the length of half a dozen eggs. It is slightly higher at the back so that as you take one egg out from the plastic "box" another rolls to the front automatically.

It's as simple as that; but just think how handy it would be instead of having to lift the case out of the cupboard every time you want a single egg?

Really something, I would say!

There's no reaching—no bother. Just convenience through a very simple plastic dispenser. As I said, the unit will only hold half a dozen eggs. Now, that doesn't let you people out who buy a couple of dozen eggs or more at one time.

The units are so designed that they will stack securely on top of each other and save space in the bargain. You just buy enough units to fit your needs.

A price tag of 45 pennies is attached to each egg dispenser.

* * *

Now here is something which I guess has been on the market for some time but I must admit I've never come across it before.

I had in mind a long-handled lighter which costs only 25 pennies. You may know all about it, but for those who are in the same boat as myself this is what I found out.

The lighter is designed to eliminate danger of matches or defective pilots when lighting a gas stove or anything else along that line.

It is said to be safer, cleaner, cheaper and quicker than pilots or matches.

Also, there is 3,000 or more lights to every refill and new flints can easily be replaced. It lights artificial gas, natural gas and other fluids instantly.

That's quite a lot for only 25 pennies.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

As Life Begins—at 40—Exercise and Watch Diet

It is only human to think, "It won't happen to me."

Women go along for years without effort and keep a svelte figure and then suddenly find that it is a battle to hold their weight down. They also discover that their weight is accumulating in new spots. Before, even when they gained a few pounds, they did not have that pad of fat over the abdomen or those rolls under the brassiere.

The reason for the almost universal tendency to gain weight as we grow older is twofold. From middle-age on both our physical activity and our glandular systems slow down, but we continue to consume the same amount of food.

Often women eat more rich food at this time because they have more money to spend on it, and also because they indulge in more daytime social life after their children are grown.

We need less food and a different pattern in food from middle-age on if we hope to prolong the youthful portion of life and to keep our figure under control. The middle-aged person should eat smaller amounts and cut starches and fats low in the diet. Calcium, iron and protein, are the important foods at this age. Add to this a wide variety of fresh fruits and vegetables. Middle-aged persons are also apt to be deficient in the vitamin B family.

The reason for the change in the pattern of weight is due to the change in the glandular set-up. The rule for vitality and youth after 40 consists of watching of diet as indicated above and of taking mild exercises. Exercise not only molds the figure beautifully but speeds up the glandular system.

Fat across the shoulder blades is a most annoying figure fault but the right exercises can do wonders. The following one is corrective to this condition.

Sit on the floor with your legs separated, knees stiff. Raise your legs separated, knees stiff. Raise your arms sideways, shoulder height. Twist your trunk to the left, bend forward and try to touch your right hand to your left foot. Raise the trunk. Twist your trunk to the right, bend and try to touch your left hand to your right foot. Raise your trunk. Continue. This is also a waist slimmer. If you cannot touch the hand to the foot reach as far in that direction as possible.

Some of you may have missed my Nine-Day Reducing Diet when it ran this spring. This gives you a loss of from 5 to 10 pounds in nine days. If you would like to have my Nine-Day Reducing Diet booklet send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for it to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

African Girl to Speak To Church Groups Here

Miss Marie Chela Luciano, a young African girl, traveling in Canada on a scholarship from the Women's Missionary Society of the United Church of Canada, is a visitor in Victoria this weekend.

She arrived in the city this morning, accompanied by Miss Margaret Dawson, who is on furlough from Chissamba, the same mission station where Miss Luciano teaches.

The two friends are staying at the United Church Community Centre, 1120 Pembroke Street.

There was a box supper and rally of all Explorers and C.G.I.T. of the United Church, in honor of the visitors at 5 o'clock today under auspices of the Presbyterial of the Women's Missionary Society. On Sunday at 3, in Metropolitan United Church there will be a gathering of young people's societies to hear Miss Luciano speak. Sunday evening she will speak in First United Church.

Only 24 years of age, the smiling little African girl speaks enough English to make herself understood but Miss Dawson stays close to her side to act as interpreter if she finds herself at all confused with questions.

"She is a product of our mission school," says Miss Dawson, who has spent 17 years in teacher-training and girls' work at Chissamba.

"The United Church in Angola is trying to develop an indigenous church," she added. "We have an African-Girls-in-Training and there are thousands of members in Angola and 250 leaders in this work."

Miss Luciano holds a Portugese certificate in teaching and en route back to Angola will spend some time in Portugal taking special studies.

She flew to America via Lisbon and New York and has been visiting various centres across Canada. Last July she attended the National Canadian Girls in Training camp in Ontario.

TODAY'S RECIPE

CINNAMON RICE COOKIES

Half cup butter or margarine, ½ cup beet or cane sugar, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon vanilla, 1 cup sifted flour, 3 teaspoons baking powder, 1½ cups cooked rice, ½ cup grated coconut, 2 teaspoons of cinnamon, ½ cup chopped pecans.

To make three liberal cups of fluffy rice, put one cup of uncooked rice, two cups of cold water and one teaspoon of salt into a two-quart saucepan and bring to a vigorous boil. Turn the heat as low as possible. Cover saucepan with a lid and leave over this low heat for 14 minutes. Do not remove lid nor stir rice while it is cooking. Turn off the heat.

Use exact measurements of rice and water. Time the cooking accurately.

Method: Cream together the butter or margarine and sugar. Add egg and vanilla and mix thoroughly. Add the flour which has been sifted with the baking powder. Add the rice and coconut. In another bowl, mix together the cinnamon and nuts. Form the cookie dough into balls and roll in the cinnamon and nut mixture. If the cookie dough becomes too soft to be easily handled, chill in the refrigerator before forming balls. Place the balls about two inches apart on an ungreased cookie sheet. The balls become flat as the dough is baked. If large cookies are desired and large balls of dough are baked, allow ample space between the balls since the dough spreads as the cookie bakes. Bake in a 350° F. oven about 25 minutes. Remove and allow to cool before storing. This recipe makes 18 cookies 2½ inches in diameter.

IN STEP WITH STYLE

By DAWN VAN NORMAN

To get the proper prospectus of the fashion picture — the fashion picture for yourself—you first have to think of what you are likely to be doing during the coming season.

If you plan a trip, you will, of course, want an entirely different wardrobe from the girl who is going to be the centre of the social whirl here at home.

If your plans coincide with the latter you will want at least one "dressy" frock in your wardrobe.

A dress you can wear for brige, for tea, for small evenings, for any informal gathering requiring a somewhat dressy turnout.

The same dress goes to matinees, to late-afternoon parties, to small and informal dinners and even, at times, to the theatre in the evening.

Whether you live in a small or big town, it's a dress a woman must have if she leads even a fairly active social life.

A sophisticated dress for city life, left, is this feminine design, softly draped and folded, done in an organzine taffeta. Gentle drapery rounds out the bodice and shoulders, deals gracefully with the hipline.

Equally handsome but less extreme is the dress on the right in shining rayon satin. Again, the soft drapery appears in the neckline and brief sleeves, is suggested in the unusual cluster effect achieved in the very full skirt. Waistline is small and neat.

AS WE LIVE

Young Man Hero-Worships Mother, Underrates Wife

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

When a wife is compared—to her disadvantage — with her mother-in-law, what should she do? Should she put up an argument, ignore, or try to model herself along the lines of her mother-in-law? That is the problem facing the young wife who wrote:

(Q) "How would you handle the problem of the 'hard-working' mother-in-law? Nobody has ever worked as hard as she has, according to her and her son, my husband. She has only one child and I have four sons. My husband keeps telling me I have no love for his mother. I haven't. But it would have been a lot better if I weren't always told: 'You'll never be half the woman my mother is'. I can't 'yes' either of them any more. What should I do?"

Hurlock

(A) You're in a difficult spot. Your husband is a "mama's boy" and hero-worships his mother. It's hard for you to compete with the ideal of his mother your husband has built up in his mind.

Of course it irritates you to hear him compare you constantly with her, especially as you work hard trying to make a home for your husband and children.

Naturally you don't want to make your home unpleasant for your sons. That's why you shouldn't hold up your side as you would otherwise do. You don't have to "yes" your husband. Rather, try changing the subject whenever he starts to talk about his mother and her virtues. If he tries to get back to the topic, remind him that you are his wife. Tell him if he has any complaints about your home to let you know without bringing up the subject of his mother.

As long as his mother lives—and probably when she is no longer here—he will continue to feel as he does about her. You can't sit back, fold your arms, and hope that he will change. A "mama's boy" never does. You must take the offensive and see to it that you get the respect a wife should.

Dr. Hurlock is author of 12 books on psychology. Her advice in this column is free. Write her in care of this newspaper.

Hair Stylist Likes 'Tapered Neckline'

WINNIPEG, Oct. 4 (CP)—A Hollywood hair stylist visiting here said the "poodle cut" is out, and the new look for 1953 will be the tapered neck line.

Thomas Frank, who among other activities works for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, helped direct the program for the Western Canada Hairdressers' conference here recently.

He says the accent now is on smooth, clean lines. "The whole head needs a small effect," he said, "not busy, frizzy or curly. We want feminine, fitted waves and close-fitted necklines."

Most women, he says, have too much hair and are afraid to cut it. The result is a top-heavy look, which does not do justice to their clothes.

Loves the North

CHURCHILL, Man. Oct. 4 (CP)—The Arctic way of life appeals so much to Margaret Oldenburg of Grand Maris, Minn., that she has come back 10 times since her first visit in 1939.

Miss Oldenburg says she fell in love with the north on her first visit. On that trip she collected botany specimens and presented them to the University of Minnesota. On each succeeding trip she has been a one-woman botanical expedition.

One of her contributions to science was a plant she found with the long-winded name of Chrysospleniumiowanian. This plant is found in Iowa and has a yellow blossom. That of the Arctic is green.

They will be joined there by their daughters, Miss Doris and Miss Phyllis Chester, New York. The family will spend the Thanksgiving week-end in Vancouver before returning to this city.

Miss Edith H. "Hettie" Player, recently retired after 22 years in charge of the operating room at Chelsea Hospital for Women in London, Eng., is a visitor in Victoria at present, the guest of her aunt, Mrs. P. Player, Burdett Avenue. Miss Player is traveling in Canada on a mission to observe how hospitals organize and conduct work, in all branches, from the viewpoint of the nurse rather than the doctor. She plans to visit hospitals in Montreal, Victoria, Vancouver and Toronto.

Victorian Home After Four-Year Appointment in Fabulous India

BY DAWN VAN NORMAN

Treasures from far off India are the proud possessions of Miss Vimie Kilsby, who has just returned to this city.

While on the staff at Canadian High Commission in New Delhi, Miss Kilsby made a point of seeing as much of the country as possible and collecting souvenirs from each place.

Included in her valuable collection is a sari embroidered with solid gold thread; a hand-carved walnut tray and other matching pieces; a black velvet evening purse with the Taj Mahal lavishly embroidered in silver threads; a cigarette case with silver inlaid on zinc carved right from rock; a numbha rug; native slippers and many other articles, momentos of her four years in India.

Before going to Asia, Miss Kilsby was with the government here. In 1948 she went to Ottawa where she trained for overseas service.

It was in April, 1949, that she went to the foreign land in a position dealing with immigration into Canada.

"When people ask me what my first impression of the country was," Miss Kilsby said, "I tell them it was the drastic difference in temperature."

"When I left India the temperature was 118. It is usually between 105 and 120 and, of course, doesn't cool off even at night."

Because of this intense heat the white population has to go to the mountains for one month during the hot spell to protect their health.

One of these breaks took Miss Kilsby and another Canadian girl to Kashmir.

The couple went by plane to Srinagar, known as the "Venice of India."

"While I had many unusual experiences during my stay I think that plane trip was one of the most harrowing of them all," she said. "Since there are no safety regulations the planes take of in any kind of weather and, once in the air, play tag with mountain tops."

However, Miss Kilsby and her friend arrived safely at their destination. They lived on a boathouse with servants at their beck and call.

"It was glorious," she recalls. "The people of Kashmir are very friendly. They only want peace. After so many years of war they are inclined to be willing to be ruled by anyone as long as it doesn't involve battles."

Mingling with the blue-eyed and often red-headed people the two girls learned a great deal about Kashmir.

Miss Kilsby visited a factory where the famous Kashmir rugs are made, went surf-boat riding and visited many scenic spots which were seldom more than a day's trip from her "home on the water."

On another holiday, "Republic Day in India," she tells you Miss Kilsby and her friends were guests of the Maharajah in his guest house in Jaipur.

"It was an experience I shall never forget. The buildings represented true Oriental architecture and most of them were in pink marble."

During her holiday in Jaipur she rode for the first time on an elephant.

"Three of us rode on one animal and made a trip over rough roads and steep paths. No one seemed to have any fear as the elephant is exceptionally sure footed."

On other trips she often traveled on horseback and on one occasion went to a glacier where she went skiing and sleigh riding.

"That was one thing I never dreamed I'd do in India," she said laughingly.

Looking through her album of pictures which covers every event in her life in India, Miss Kilsby said, "I wouldn't have missed the opportunity of visiting fabulous India for the world!"

Following a short holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Kilsby, Chester Street, she will go to Ottawa to receive a new appointment in another part of the world.

Solange Peltier and Dode French Wed at Nuptial Mass This Morning

During the low nuptial mass in St. Andrew's Cathedral this morning, which united Solange Angele Marie Peltier in marriage with Donald (Dode) French, the St. Ann's Academy choir sang, accompanied by Miss M. McKay.

Father D. LeHane officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Alfred Peltier, The Dalles, Ore., and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar French, Victoria.

The altar was decorated with white chrysanthemums and gladioli.

The petite bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown, an original creation of imported Chantilly lace and nylon lace, following the French pattern with long molded bodice worked into a diamond-point blend with diaphanous net. The bride's gown had a strapless bodice topped with a bolero and her fingertip veil misted from a lace Dutch-style cap entwined with pearls. To complete the ensemble she wore a single strand of pearls and small pearl earrings and carried a hand spray of white stephanotis with red feathered carnations.

As maid of honor, the bride's sister, Miss Gabrielle Peltier, wore a yellow gown with same fabric theme as the bride's. The classic lines were off-set with artificial scalloped neckline.

Miss Theresa French, bridesmaid, and Mrs. Fred French, bridesmatron, wore similarly styled gowns in green and yellow, respectively. Miss Paula Gordienko wore a white gown and carried a miniature version of the bride's bouquet.

Senior attendants carried bouquets of bronze and yellow chrysanthemums entwined with green ivy. They also wore sprays of same flowers in their hair.

Fred French was best man for his brother and ushers were another brother, Leonard (Buddy) French, and Myron Balagno.

Century room, Monterey, was decorated with chrysanthemums for the reception. As guests arrived they signed a novel musical guest book. The bride's table was centred with a three-tier cake and Darhl Errett proposed the toast to the bride.

Upon leaving for her honeymoon on the mainland and other points, Mrs. French wore an olive-green tailleur with pencil slim skirt set off with gold hat and gloves. Her shoes and bag were in chocolate brown alligator and a gold orchid corsage and fur coat completed the ensemble.

Following their honeymoon the newlyweds will return to Victoria before going to Portland to make their home.

DOCTOR SAYS

Foolish to Neglect Symptoms of Ulcers

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Mrs. G. D. writes that her husband was operated on for gastric ulcer, and wants to know if that is the same as cancer.

The answer is that it is not the same as cancer, but cancer can form in or near an ulcer pocket. It is important to be sure that one is dealing with one and not the other, since the treatment is not the same for both.

Coming to a discussion of ulcer of the stomach, it should be said first that there are two main kinds. In one the ulcer is located in the stomach itself and in the other it it lies below the stomach in the first portion of the intestines known as the duodenum.

The symptoms of these two types of ulcer are not quite alike, nor are they always the same even when the ulcer is in the same spot in two different patients.

The pain of an ulcer in the stomach proper usually comes on soon after meals and is associated with some tenderness just below the breastbone. It is not always constant and may disappear, perhaps leaving the patient with no symptoms at all.

Other digestive disturbances or sensations are common. Vomiting several hours after eating is one. The pain when present may be burning or gnawing in nature and may come and go for several hours.

The symptoms of an ulcer in the duodenum are not too different and the physician cannot tell from the symptom alone where the ulcer is located.

In duodenal ulcer, however, the discomfort or pain is more likely to come two or three hours after a meal rather than immediately after eating. Vomiting is not as common as in ulcers located in the stomach itself.

MUST TAKE HISTORY

Actually, the diagnosis of the location of the ulcer depends on the results of careful history taking, examination of the stomach contents, and looking into the stomach or photographing the lining.

If the ulcer eats through the wall of the stomach, the contents will be spilled into the abdominal cavity, and this is a very serious complication indeed.

Such symptoms as those mentioned, therefore, even if they are not present continuously, should not be neglected because of the danger of the serious complications of bleeding or eating through into the abdominal cavity.

Sanitation's Maintenance Gayton Topic

Maintenance of city sanitation and accident prevention was explained to a Rotary luncheon meeting by Dr. J. L. Gayton, Victoria health officer, Thursday at the Empress Hotel.

"In 1900, a child had only a 50-50 chance of living long enough to vote," said the doctor." Today he has the same odds on living to draw the old-age pension."

In spite of the fact that many of our ailing and infirm are now able to be self-supporting, due to aids offered by public health departments, public facilities for care of the senile and other unfortunates are still inadequate on Vancouver Island, he emphasized.

Money expended in this manner is not lost, he proved in a reference to the United States rehabilitation program for disabled veterans. For every dollar spent, $10 was recovered from new taxable incomes.

Touching on the recent reprieve granted Lime Bay "squatters," threatened with eviction by city council, Dr. Gayton remarked, "Governments must realize certain elements can't and never will be able to provide their own decent accommodation. Help must be given them."

The Rotarians' ranks were swollen by a large attendance of United States club members, here for the Steelmen's convention.

Chairman, Dr. J. Cruise, spoke briefly regarding the forthcoming Rotary vaudeville presentation.

Motorist David S. Harrison, 930 McKenzie, ran over what he said he thought was a dirty, washed-out painted line on Douglas Street recently. He was mistaken. It was a fire hose. In city police court Friday he was found guilty of running over a fire hose and was fined $5 by Magistrate H. C. Hall.

Engineers' Claim Against Architect For $1,911 Fails

A claim for $1,911 filed by professional engineer Arthur Lionel, 1029 Douglas Street, against architect F. W. Nicolls, 3895 Tudor Road, has been dismissed by Mr. Justice A. D. Macfarlane in B.C. Supreme Court.

Lionel claimed the $1,911 was owing him for professional services. He said his bill for a structural design for a Victoria Riding and Hunt Club arena, drawn in 1950, had been $1,700, but that he had only been paid $200. In addition he claimed the architect owed him $411 for designing an electrical system for the Strathcona Hotel extension.

The defense was that the engineer was not entitled to any more than $200 for the arena job because the project was dropped. The defense also submitted that since Nicolls himself had not been paid for the Strathcona job, he could not pay the engineer.

The defense also argued that Lionel had been hired in the first place because the architect was led to believe he was a structural engineer, whereas, it later developed, he is a chemical engineer.

Classifications of engineers played a big part in trial. Lionel's letterhead was exhibited which referred to him simply as "engineer."

The phone book was shown to list him as "consulting engineer."

The Association of Professional Engineers of B.C. certified Lionel was entitled to use the title "professional engineer."

POOR RESPONSE SO FAR

Native Sons Seeking Aid Building Royal Memorial

A proposal to erect a memorial here to the late King George VI, is receiving light support from other city organizations, the Native Sons of B.C., Post No. 1, reported today.

Spokesman J. A. Bland said letters showing willingness to aid in the project were received from only 15 groups out of 100 circularized.

Mr. Bland was disappointed that not one of the city's service clubs had shown any interest in the plan.

He hopes that the light response might be due, in part, to the fact that some social groups have not yet convened for the winter season.

Most of the Canadian Legion branches have offered their assistance.

At the next meeting of the Native Sons a date will be set for a get-together of all groups interested.

Election of officers of the post at a Thursday night meeting resulted as follows: Chief factor, R. G. Creech; past factor, L. W. Westendale; vice-factor, A. C. Loat; chaplain, J. P. Abel; senior guide, H. F. Stamford; junior guide, J. W. Stewart; treasurer, J. A. Bland; secretary, R. H. Hiscocks.

Two Famous Artists Will Entertain Here

Two of the most famous stars of the concert stage will appear here this season in the finest program ever offered in Victoria by Famous Artists Ltd.

They are Marian Anderson, world famous contralto, who will sing from the Royal Theatre stage February 26, and pianist Artur Rubenstein, who will close the series with a performance April 30.

The 1952-53 series will open November 6 and 7 with performances of the National Ballet Company of Canada, largest professional Canadian ballet group to tour Canada.

With its own scenery and lighting equipment, it will have 30 dancers and a staff of 10.

Director is Miss Celia Franca, of the Sadlers Wells Ballet, and on the program will be such classical numbers as Les Sylphides, Giselle, Coppelia, and The Nutcracker. Modern ballet will be represented by the following works of Canadian choreographers—Etude, Ballet Behind Us, Le Pommier, and Ballet Composite.

Jan Peerce, the Metropolitan Opera's most popuar tenor, will appear Nov. 12, and Patricia Travers, young violinist, will perform Dec. 2.

The First Operatic Symphonette, an exciting evening of great operatic arias sung by outstanding soloists and with an orchestra of 20, will be presented Feb. 19.

The Slavenska-Franklin Ballet will be seen March 12.

The box office in Fletcher's will open Monday for the sale of season tickets. Purchases made now will assure good seating for all attractions scheduled.

The mallard duck, one of the favorite game birds, is characterized by the male bird's bright green head.

NEXT WEEK

A PREVIEW FOR CONCERT-GOERS

By AUDREY St.D. JOHNSON

BY AUDREY ST.D. JOHNSON

After a couple of enjoyable preliminary bouts with boy choirs and B.C. artists, off we go Monday night for what—off the record—is the official opening of the winter concert season.

The Victoria Symphony Orchestra! First-up and seven to go in the series.

Speaking of records——! The orchestra may not have waxed anything but trial runs so far, but the Victoria Symphony Society reports a waxing record at the box office. And that will probably lead to cutting a groove in several directions!

I foresee, for instance, folks digging the sidewalk outside the Royal Theatre pleading for a chance to grab a seat for a concert.

Rise and make ready then,
Sassenach and Highland men,
Beseige the box office and step forward in order!
Smart Alec Finlay, the vest-pocket Lauder
And the Scots entertainers are over the border!

With profound apologies to "Border Ballad"—in case anyone recognizes it.

The Royal Theatre will be flashing with tartans, thick with Gaelic accents, lilting with Highland music, Tuesday and Wednesday nights.

From a past experience, I must say I'm looking forward to it. Even though I do have to slide stealthily into my seat and hope to goodness my ancestral Sassenach slip isn't showing.

Yes, m'lord, the drahma is back in town!

The Victoria Theatre Guild gets rolling this week with its first production of the new season. It's all about Lords and Ladies and Beecham, the butler, and other jolly old English customs. The curtain rises Saturday night.

It's called "The Chiltern Hundreds" and if you want to know what that means, you'd better jolly well come down to the Langham Court Theatre and find out. Only, we warn you—you'll have to sit through the whole play, laugh your head off, crack your ribs before you do, because the secret only comes out in the last gurgling lines of this light-hearted comedy.

Theatre Guild Chooses Play For Festival

Victoria Theatre Guild has chosen "The Mad Woman of Chaillot" as its entry in competition for the Dominion Drama Festival award this season.

The play, to be directed by Aurdey St. D. Johnson, will be staged in Victoria as the guild's November play, starting a week's run Nov. 28.

It will be taken to Vancouver for provincial trials in February, and if successful there, will be allowed to compete in the Dominion festival here in Victoria later in the spring.

The guild's opening play of the season, "Chiltern Hundreds," starring Stan Wade and Basil Isigonis, will start Oct. 11 for a week's performances.

SCOTTISH TENOR George Cormack, who will appear in Victoria next week in Alex Finlay Show, served during Second World War with Britain's crack air-borne division. He was a member of the heroic force which was dropped over Arnhem during the invasion of Holland. He was taken prisoner of the Germans there. A member of the Finlay troupe since the end of the war, Cormack is regarded as one of Scotland's best tenors. He will appear with six other top entertainers from the "land of the heather" Tuesday and Wednesday nights at the Royal Theatre.

Everybody knows there's news on the hour, every hour on Radio Victoria—CKDA.

Everybody knows that right after the 9.00 a.m. news on the hour comes the "Guy Lombardo Show," daily except Sunday.

And it's a lead-pipe cinch that everybody knows about "Housewife's Holiday," which follows the Lombardo Show, from 9.30 to 10.00 a.m. daily.

As a matter of fact, a whole lot of people who are far beyond the range of CKDA, know about "Housewife's Holiday," because it has been widely acknowledged as the only, as far as we can find out, appliance-dealer-sponsored daily half hour, seven times per week, on the North American continent!

Now here's something else!

Starting Monday next, there'll be something new and different in between the "Guy Lombardo Show" and "Housewife's Holiday."

Maestro Lombardo will get the chop to a fifteen-minute stint, to make way for this new feature.

It's the "PURITY BIRTHDAY PARTY," starting Monday, October 6, and continuing daily Monday through Friday from 9.20 to 9.30 a.m., for full many a moon to come.

The idea behind the show is to celebrate the first anniversary of the introduction of the Purity Cake Mixes to the Canadian public.

In order to celebrate their own anniversary, the Purity people have arranged things so that the listener's birthday will play an important part in the programs.

That's the wherefore of the program title: "Purity Birthday Party."

BETH GRAHAM

This glamorous creature is Beth Graham, whom you've heard many times over the Canadian air-waves on both network shows and transcriptions.

Formerly of Winnipeg, Beth is one of Canada's leading radio actresses, and you'll hear her on "Birthday Party" over CKDA.

And this handsome gent is none other than . . .

CY MACK

Like Beth, he's no stranger to you.

You've heard Cy on numerous Canadian originations, too.

Beth and Cy, with the help of some top-notch Canadian musical talent, will help you celebrate your birthday on the daily "Party" over CKDA.

You'll have to listen to the show to get all the details, but, roughly, it works out like this.

You will be invited to send in your birthday date. Just the day of the month and the month of the year. That's all. Beth and Cy don't want to know in what year you were born. They're not checking up to find out how old you are, Grand'ma . . . they just want the bare essentials.

On each program several entries are dug up out of the well-worn head-gear, and the people who sent them in get their personal birthday greetings over the air, together with a cash award.

You'll have to tune in, to find out how much it is. We're not telling!

Now, in addition, there's a sort of "wheel-of-fortune" gadget that's a vital part of the show.

By spinning this contraption, Cy and Beth will, daily, select one "Lucky Birthday."

The first mailed-in entry whereon the birthday date coincides with the "Lucky Birthday" date, wins for its writer a big jack-pot award. Believe the show starts off with several hundred dollars in the jack-pot. Give a listen to find out, eh?

And this jack-pot is carried over from day to day, and it is also added to daily by something like twenty-five dollars, so you see, it will grow like mad.

Then, too, if an entry is drawn on which even the month coincides with the "Lucky Birthday" month, there's a nice fat cash award.

But, of course, you'll never win if you don't write in!

And to find out how and where to write, tune in CKDA for the "Purity Birthday Party," starting Monday next, at 9.20 a.m.

BRIDGE LESSON

by Oswald Jacoby

If you sometimes lose a game contract that you should have made, don't weep too many bitter tears about it. The greatest experts in the world sometimes do the same thing, if that's any consolation. Today's hand, for example, was misplayed at both tables in the finals of the national team championships a few weeks ago.

Opening lead—♠ 6

In both rooms South played the hand at four hearts against the opening lead of a low spade. Both declarers won the first trick with the ace of spades and promptly drew three rounds of trumps. The third round of trumps was a mistake, but not necessarily fatal.

In both rooms South then continued by finessing a diamond to East's queen. In one room East boldly returned a low spade, and South made the fatal error of ruffing. When he led another diamond, West put up the ace and led another spade to force out declarer's last trump.

Unfortunately, the diamonds were now blocked. South could lead to dummy's king of diamonds, and could get back to his hand with the ace of clubs to lead another diamond to West's jack, but then South could never get in again to cash the last diamond. Down one.

This declared should have discarded (instead of ruffing) when East led a low spade. Since East had led away from the King of spades, the rest would have been easy. But even if West had turned up with the king of spades, the contract would have depended only on a successful guess in diamonds later on. In short, South would have had two chances for his contract.

In the other room, East was not bold enough to return a spade when he got in with the queen of diamonds. He returned a club, which declarer should have won in the dummy. Instead, South made the mistake of winning in his own hand with the ace. He led a diamond, and West put up the ace.

Opportunity was knocking once more at the door, for South could still make his contract by dropping dummy's king of diamonds on this trick. But declarer had a blind spot and played dummy's low diamond. Now a spade return obliged declarer to ruff, and South found that the blocked diamonds were a fatal handicap. Down one also.

The curious thing is that the contract cannot be missed if South only draws two rounds of trumps at the beginning of the hand. He then leads a diamond to dummy's king, not caring who has the ace. The defenders can take two or three diamond tricks, depending on their luck, but no more.

IN TUNE WITH THE TIMES

By RAY SIDAWAY

Bing Crosby, whose name and voice have been a legend for over two decades, returns to the C.B.S. network on the "Bing Crosby Show" next Thursday.

Jane Wyman joins "The Groaner" and the Rythmaires in a rendition of "Zing a Little Zong" and for her solo offering, Jane will do, "He's Just Crazy for Me."

Come October and Arthur Godfrey will celebrate an anniversary. He made his radio debut in October, 1929, on an amateur program in Baltimore.

Jeanne Crain and Thelma Ritter will recreate their original screen roles in the hilarious comedy, "The Model and the Marriage Broker" on Lux Radio Theatre, heard over KIRO on Monday at 6 p.m.

Marie Wilson, as "My Friend Irma," returns to the airwaves Tuesday to launch her fall series.

The "Phil Harris-Alice Fay Show" will return to the air to begin its seventh season of comedy and music on Sunday.

Also returning as a featured performer will be Elliot Lewis, who will continue to play Phil's side-kick, but this year will be known by his real name rather than the fictitious "Frankie Remley."

Singing comedians, Lonzo and Oscar, will be Red Foley's guests on Grand Ole Oprey tonight 8.30 over KOMO.

They will sing two of their recent hit tunes, "Honkey Tonk Sweetheart" and "Goodbye Little Darlin' No. 2." Oscar plays the drums, piano, saxaphone and mandolin, and Lonzo plays the guitar, fiddle and bass fiddle.

When young Henry Aldrich (Bobby Ellis) announces to the family that his picture is to be taken for the paper, great turmoil is aroused in the Aldrich Family, heard over KOMO Sunday at 4.30 p.m.

"Mystery" returns to CKWX on Tuesday as Boston Blackie makes his fall debut. He will be heard every Tuesday evening at 9.30 p.m.

I was a Communist for the F.B.I., the true-life story of Matt Cvetic, who posed as a Communist for the F.B.I. is heard over CKWX on Tuesdays at 9 p.m.

Dana Andrews takes the leading role and reveals the dangerous assignments and shocking secrets he had to keep to himself while working, as a special agent for the F.B.I. during the last war.

An address by General Matthew B. Ridgeway, Supreme Commander of the Allied Powers in Europe, accepting the Freedom Award at the 11th anniversary dinner of Freedom House in the Waldorf-Astoria, New York, will be heard over KIRO, Sunday.

Radio times and programs are furnished by stations and networks and are subject to last minute changes. The Times assumes no responsibility for inaccurate listings.

64 FARMS FOR SALE

FARM DISTRESS SALE INVESTORS NOTE!
Excellent farm of approximately 300 plus acres with approximately 200 acres cleared and under cultivation. Many good outbuildings including barn, sheep sheds, hay sheds, pig pens and dairy, plus good four-room cottage. Main house comprising large living room with fireplace, large dining room, den, four bedrooms, double plumbing, kitchen, hot-water heat and full basement. Cleared acreage today costs at least $200 per acre to clear which would place the value of the cleared land at least $40,000. Due to the fact that this farm must be immediately sold, owner would take $30,000 or offer for everything with very low terms. This is a golden opportunity for an investor to make a large capital gain. For full particulars contact J. M. Chesman or K. R. Liss, evenings, E 4833 or B 5865.

Research Council Trying New Plan to Fight Marine Borers

B.C. Research Council is attacking marine borers in saw logs with poisons in an experiment aimed at limiting the degree of damage caused by the pests.

The council's survey so far has shown that logs handled in "flat booms" could be kept free of borers by good management methods.

However, large deep-sea booms such as Davis rafts or Gibson rafts may incur damage owing to the longer period during which logs are in contact with salt water, according to the council's annual report.

The logs that are incorporated into a deep-sea raft are collected during a six-week period in "bag booms" spread over several acres of water.

"As it seemed impractical to prevent teredo larvae from attacking logs that cover such a large area, it was decided to search for a marine borer poison that could be added to deep-sea afts during their assembly," the report said.

Experiments were carried out to find a chemical that would poison adult borers already established in wood.

A technique for screening possible chemicals was evolved. Fifteen insectitudes, seven fungicides, and 15 inorganic poisons were tested.

One insectitude (dinitor-o-cyclohexphon) and one inorganic poison (sodium arsenite) showed promise.

Next phase of the problem facing the research council is to determine if the chemical should be placed in the raft in the form of solid blocks, as a powder, or as a solution.

Saanich Prepares Appeal To Test Building By-Law

Saanich solicitors prepared today to appeal a judgment of Magistrate H. C. Hall dismissing a charge against Victoria contractor George Wheaton of failing to obtain a building permit for the construction of the new library wing at Victoria College.

Saanich Council Friday instructed its solicitors to launch an appeal.

The appeal is a test case involving the validity of the Saanich building by-law.

Magistrate H. C. Hall in his judgment ruled that the building by-law as worded did not stipulate that a contractor was obliged to obtain a permit for the construction of school or public building.

Should the appeal fail, it will mean that Saanich will have to amend its building by-law.

The magistrate's judgment already has had its effect. The legal firm of Crease, Davey, Lawson, Davis, Gordon and Baker wrote a letter to the council requesting the refund of a building permit fee to Luney Brothers and Hamilton paid for the construction of a school in Saanich.

The council did not think it was obliged to refund the money even if the by-law was badly worded. It referred the letter to its solicitors.

Wings Flash Power

KITCHENER, Ont., Oct. 4 (BUP).—The N.H.L. Detroit Red Wings walloped the Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen 8-1 in an exhibition game here on Friday night.

Alex Delevecchio scored a double during the avalanche against the junior A O.H.A. club. Don Rope was the lone Kitchener attacker to break through the Detroit defense for a goal.

SERIES EVENED AGAIN
DODGERS SCORELESS

FINAL ★★★★ BULLETINS

New Research Aid for B.C. Industry

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4 (CP)—Ralph Chetwynd, Minister of Trade and Industry, today announced formation of what he called the most complete technical research service ever offered to British Columbia industry.

The service will be a new division of the B.C. Research Council, known as the division of technical services, and headed by D. S. Smith, the council's assistant director.

Stengel Pitches Blackwell Sunday

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—Manager Casey Stengel, jubilant over the way his Yankees snapped back to even the World Series today at two games each, unexpectedly switched his strategy and decided to send Ewell Blackwell, former National League pitching ace, to the mound tomorrow in Sunday's big game.

Before the 2-0 victory over the Dodgers, he announced it would be Vic Raschi, winner of the second game of the series.

England Ties Rugged Ireland

BELFAST, Ireland, Oct. 4 (UP)—Underdog Ireland battled England to a 2-2 tie today in the first international soccer match of the British season before a crowd of 60,000 at Windson Park.

Ireland grabbed a 2-1 lead in the first minute of the second half and appeared headed for its first victory over England in 24 years, but left wing Billy Elliott of Burnley booted home the tying goal several minutes later.

Simpsons to Merge With Sears

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP)—Shareholders of Simpsons Ltd. have approved plans for a $40,000,000 merger with Sears, Roebuck and Company to form a new mail-order organization in Canada.

Simpsons and Sears, a United States firm, will have equal $20,000,000 investments in the new company, to be known as Simpsons-Sears Limited.

British A-Bomb Alleged Waste

Canada Officially Pleased, But Some Cabinet Members Said Angry

By BRIAN O'LEARY, Times Ottawa Correspondent

OTTAWA, Oct. 4 (Special)—Canada was sharply critical today of Britain's first atomic bomb explosion despite the fact that a Canadian government observer was present at the historic event.

Officially, the Canadian government was pleased to see Britain move back into the ranks of the major powers, alongside the United States and Russia, the only other countries to test atomic bombs.

But privately, some members of the Canadian government were sharply critical of Britain's action, saying it was a waste of time, energy, material and money.

One cabinet minister, who did not wish to be quoted directly, said bitterly that this British atom bomb explosion was "nothing more than a prestige sop to please Churchill."

"The British know perfecfly well they can never produce atomic bombs en masse such as the Amerieans can," he said, "because of the terrific expense . . . and why should they bother? America is her ally, and about the only country which can afford to produce the atom bomb via the assembly line.

"It would have been much better," he added, "if the British had spent all this time, energy, material and money on something much more productive for their economy which they could have sold on this side of the Atlantic for dollars."

This critical attitude of the British government was a general reflection of Ottawa's current attitude towards the sterling area in general and Britain in particular.

Next month, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent will go to London for Commonwealth talks with special emphasis on trade and economic questions within the Commonwealth.

The Canadian attitude is expected to be one of mild criticism, pointing out to her sister members of the Commonwealth that the basic question underlying the sterling area's problems can best be solved, not by additional dollar loans, but by cutting government expenditures, such as food and rent subsidies.

Saw Blades Found Again In Don Jail

TORONTO, Oct. 4 (CP)—Three saw blades were found Friday night on a window sill in the hospital section of Don Jail where a few hours earlier a window bar was found sawed and another partially sawed.

The blades were found by Inspector Frank Kelly and Det.-Sgt. Bernard Simmonds who are preparing reports for a royal commission inquiry into Don Jail conditions to start October 14.

Officials said they believed the blades were used in cutting the bar which had been camouflaged by soap mixed with black shoe polish.

Toronto fire department today sent ladders to the jail to enable close examination of every window from the outside.

Acting Jail Governor Archibald Graham said he believes the sawing was done three or four months ago.

Another official said the cut bars were in a window in the hospital section where convicted murderer Leonard Jackson was confined after he was brought back to Toronto when wounded by police bullets in a Montreal gun fight last March.

Chest Drive Boosted

Canvass Falls Short of Quota

The Red Feather campaign, originally scheduled to close today, will definitely continue into next week, according to co-chairmen Ralph B. Mathews and John A. Craig.

It will not end until a 100 per cent canvass has been made of the area to be covered, between Sidney and Jordan River.

Although half the $195,000 quota is now in hand, officials of the drive to provide funds for 17 welfare agencies understand that many canvassars have not turned in their kits because their jobs are not complete.

Metchosin is still well in front of the other 13 districts competing to reach their individual quotas. It "ran off" the Times box score Friday with 186 per cent of its quota returned, and now has reached 250 per cent.

Central Saanich has 94 per cent, and Langford is in third place with 80 per cent.

Volunteer workers are still spending hours every evening covering their districts, and have promised that everyone will be given the chance to donate to the annual drive.

Although Greater Victoria is only half-way along the road to its objective, it is well ahead of Vancouver, which has collected less than 40 per cent of its desired total of $1,260,000.

Trigger-Happy Bandit Hunted

VANCOUVER, Oct. 4 (CP) — A baby-faced bandit with an itchy trigger-finger was sought today following the wounding of a cabaret manager in a $400 holdup here Friday night.

The youthful bandit successfully evaded police when he fled on foot from the office of the New Palomar cabaret after shooting the night club's 42-year-old manager, Sandy De Santis.

Angry Reply to Reds' Recall Demand Drafted

WASHINGTON, Oct. 4 (UP)—The United States today drafted an angry note to Moscow protesting the "shameful" unprecedented demand for immediate recall of Ambassador George F. Kennan, America's topmost expert on Soviet affairs.

From President Truman and Secretary of State Dean Acheson down through State Department ranks, tempers were high over the Kremlin's blunt order.

Stiff retaliatory measures were reported under close study, including the possible demand for the ouster from this country of new Russian Ambassador Georgi N. Zarubin, who presented his diplomatic credentials to Mr. Truman just 10 days ago. No serious thought was given, however, to a final break in diplomatic relations with the Soviet Union.

Western observers in Moscow said there was no reason why chilly, formal relations could not continue indefinitely between the United States and Russia, at least until after the American elections. They believed, however, that the U.S. Embassy staff would be reduced.

State Department officials said this government definitely would take these twin actions:

1. Denounce the "rude" Kremlin decision to oust Kennan as invalid, unjustified, improper and a reflection on the Soviet Union's peace propaganda campaign. Authorities said an American note outlining this government's ire probably would be delivered early next week.

2. Rejection of Soviet charges that Kennan made "completely false and hostile" statements against the Soviet Union will be backed up by this government's refusal to appoint a new Ambassador to Russia until after inauguration of a new U.S. president next Jan. 20.

Half R.C.A.F. Jets Arrive

PRESTWICK, Scotland, Oct. 4 (BUP).—More than half of the 63 R.C.A.F. Sabre jet fighters making the greatest mass flight of Canadian jets over the Atlantic arrived here Friday from Keflavik, Iceland.

Forty of the speedy, silver fighters, en route to France, landed in quick succession. Twenty-two other jets remained at Bluie West airfield in Greenland, and one was in Keflavik.

Guess we're stuck with thet $200,000 fer th' elevator, but it sure goes against th' grain.

Reynolds Comes Back Mize Hits 2nd Homer

New York (A)	000 100 01x—2	4	1
Brooklyn (N)	000 000 000—0	4	1

By HUGH FULLERTON JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4 (AP)—A tremendous homer by 39-year-old Johnny Mize and equally tremendous pitching by 34-year-old Allie Reynolds paced the Yankees to a 2-0 victory over the Dodgers today in the fourth game of the World Series. The Yanks thus evened the series at two games each.

Mize's homer into the right field stands in the fourth inning was the only score as long as Reynolds and Joe Black waged a pitching duel for seven innings. The Yanks made a second run in the eighth off Johnny Rutherford on a mighty triple by Mickey Mantle plus a wild throw by Peewee Reese.

A crowd of 71,787, largest of this series, saw Reynolds stop the Dodgers with four hits and chalk up ten strikeouts.

Here is the game, play-by-play:

FIRST INNING

DODGERS — Cox struck out, swinging at a 3-2 pitch.

Reese singled to left centre for his seventh hit of the series.

Martin fielded Snider's slow roller and stumbled, flipping the ball to Rizzuto while falling in an effort to force Reese. However, the ball sailed into centre field, Reese going to third on the error and Snider holding at first.

Robinson took a called third strike. Campanella went down swinging.

YANKEES — McDougald filed to Snider. Pafko made a running catch of Rizzuto's liner. Martin walked. Robinson scooped up Mize's roller and threw to first to retire the side.

SECOND INNING

DODGERS—Pafko struck out for Reynolds' third strikeout in a row.

Hodges grounded out, Rizzuto to Mize.

Mize scooped up Furillo's hopper and threw to Reynolds covering at first.

YANKEES—Berra, with the index finger of his left hand taped up, struck out.

Woodling doubled into the left field corner.

Cox raced in front of Reese to throw Bauer out at first.

Martin bounced out, Reese to Hodges.

THIRD INNING

DODGERS—Black took three balls and then struck out.

Cox filed to Mantle deep in centre field.

Reese lined a stinging drive off the top of Rizzuto's glove for his eighth hit of the series.

Reese was thrown out attempting to steal second and put up a mild squawk on the call.

YANKEES—Reynolds bounced out, Reese to Hodges.

Black came off the mound to field McDougald's bunt and throw him out at first.

Rizzuto walked on four pitches. Mantle flied to Snider.

FOURTH INNING

DODGERS — Mize picked up Snider's roller and made the put-out unassisted.

Rizzuto made a fine play to throw out Robinson on a high-bounding grounder.

Campanella struck out.

YANKEES—Mize hammered a long home run into the right field stands for his second homer in two days.

Snider raced back against the auxiliary scoreboard to make a sensational leaping catch of Berra's 400 - foot blast. He sprawled to the ground but held the ball.

Woodling fouled to Cox near the third-base boxes.

Pafko came in quickly to collar Bauer's looping fly.

FIFTH INNING

DODGERS — Pafko slashed a ground single into left field.

Hodges drew the first walk given up by Reynolds.

Furillo moved the runners along with a sacrifice bunt which was fielded by Mize who threw to Martin covering at first.

Black attempted to squeeze Pafko in but missed the bunt and Berra made a diving tag on Pafko for the second out.

Black walked on a full count.

Cox fouled to Berra who made a neat catch in front of the Dodger dugout.

YANKEES — Martin grounded out, Hodges scooping up Cox's low throw.

Reynolds grounded out, Robinson to Hodges. McDougald walked. Rizzuto walked on five pitches, causing activity in the Dodger bull pen. Mantle flied to Snider.

SIXTH INNING

DODGERS — Reese flied to Bauer. Mantle caught Snider's high fly after almost losing it in the sun.

Robinson, for the second time, was called out on strikes.

YANKEES—Mize, who received a great ovation, drilled a one-bounce ground-rule double into the stands.

Berra skied to Snider. Woodling was intentionally walked. Cox fielded Bauer's roller and stepped on third, forcing Mize.

Martin popped to Campanella.

SEVENTH INNING

DODGERS — Campanella walked on four pitches. Pafko struck out. Hodges rapped into a double play, Rizzuto to Martin to Mize.

YANKEES—The official paid attendance was announced as 71,787. Reynolds struck out swinging. Black threw out McDougald. Reese threw out Rizzuto.

EIGHTH INNING

DODGERS — Furillo lined a single off Rizzuto's glove, the shortstop just failing to make a leaping catch.

George Shuba, a left-handed hitter, batted for Black and flied to Mantle.

Rocky Nelson, another leftie, batted for Cox and was the victim of Reynold's ninth strike-out.

Reese chased Woodling back to the wall for his long fly.

YANKEES—Johnny Rutherford came in to pitch for Brooklyn and Bobby Morgan took over at third base.

Mantle belted a tremendous triple off the centre field wall and scored when Reese's relay bounced into the stands.

Mize walked on a full count, and Collins ran for him.

Furillo made a running catch of Berra's liner to right, making Mantle's run earned.

Morgan threw out Woodling on a close play.

NINTH INNING

DODGERS—Collins took over first base for the Yankees.

Snider went out on a high fly to Mantle in left-centre.

Robinson was called out on strikes for the third straight time, again being fooled by a fast ball across the knees.

Campanella went out on a bounder to McDugald inside the third baseline to end the game and square the series, 2-2.

WILKINSON RESIGNATION CONSIDERED

The provincial cabinet today was expected to accept the resignation of George A. Wilkinson, a member of the Labor Relations Board.

Mr. Wilkinson's resignation has been in the hands of Labor Minister Lyle Wicks for several days.

He was an A.F.L.-T.L.C. nominee to the board, appointed when the board was formed in 1947.
